For $27.95, the Corning Ware Electromatic coffee maker does a lot more than just make 10 great cups of coffee.

It strips away the ritual and mystery about making great coffee and makes you a coffee expert. Automatically.

It does it by being the one electric coffee maker that's easiest to use, easiest to clean, and easiest to keep clean.

It's easiest to clean because every part is completely immersible, completely dishwasher-proof. Including the heater element.

It's easiest to keep clean because it's made from Corning's unique Pyroceram® brand material. Stale coffee oils won't cling to it. So when you make today's coffee you don't wind up serving a little of yesterday's coffee.

And it couldn't be easier to use: all you do is add the coffee and water, plug it in and that's that. There aren't even any dials to fiddle with. A light tells you when the coffee is perfect. A built-in thermostat keeps it perfect.

And besides looking pretty on your table, the Corning Ware Electromatic coffee maker also helps you serve more gracefully with a handle that's easy to grasp and perfectly balanced.

There are Corning Ware Electromatic coffee makers with the familiar Cornflower symbol, in All White and, for $2 more, with a luxurious platinum filigree. In 10 cup and 6 cup models.

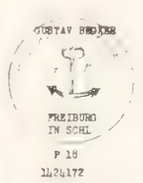
FRENCH TEA SET

I bought this silver tea service in Victoria, British Columbia. It enchanted me because it was so unusual and I hope it will become a family heirloom. We had the set appraised, but the appraisers could not tell us its country of origin. What is your opinion? C.B.B. Seattle, Wash.

Your tea service is French. It dates from the Second Empire period, 1852-1870, and was probably made around 1860. The form and ornament of the set have been borrowed mainly from the Louis XV and Louis XVI styles.



We found this old boxlike lamp in Indiana. It is copper with a silver-like metal overlay. The handle appears to have been resoldered. How was the lamp used, and when?
I.F.W. Louisville, Ky.

OLD MINE LAMP

It is a mid nineteenth century mine lamp. The device at the left is for the wick and the round center hole for fuel. But the fuel pan lid is lost.

GERMAN MANTEL CLOCK

I have copied the mark from my antique clock and would appreciate learning its history and where it was made. F.L.—Cincinnati, Ohio

Gustav Becker made clocks at Freiburg, Saxony, Germany from 1870 to 1890. The serial number, 1121172, would indicate that your clock was made toward the end of that period.

I should like to know more about this pitcher and washbasin that I bought recently. There are many markings on it but the most prominent are "Copeland," "England," and a crown. I.O.—Phila., Pa.

W. T. Copeland started the Spode works at Stoke-on-Trent, Staffordshire, in 1847, and the firm is still active. The word England indicates your set was made after 1891.

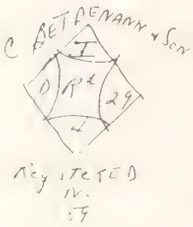
CHIPPENDALE TILT-TOP

Can you tell me where my cherry tilt-top table was made?

L.F.—Norwalk, Conn.

The design of your table suggests that it was made in New England, circa 1770-1780. It is impossible to tell from a snapshot, however, whether the table actually dates from the eighteenth century or is a fine twentieth-century reproduction of a table in the Chippendale style.



I would appreciate any information about this chair that you can give me. The leather back and seat are beautifully tooled. Also, can you recommend anything to preserve the leather?

I.S.S.—Vienna, Austria

Your chair with its X-form supports has been freely adapted from a sixteenth-century Italian Renaissance chair known as a Dantesca. It was probably made either in the late-nineteenth or early-twentieth century. To preserve old leather, many experts recommend Butcher's White Diamond Wax.

RENAISSANCE ADAPTATION

BRITISH PHOTO-FRAME

Can you tell from this sketched mark when and where my frame was made? It is gold-plated bronze designed like a gate, has a latch, and when open, it holds four photos. H.K.—Elmhurst, N. Y.

Your bronze frame is English. The mark indicates that C. Betdenann & Sons registered the design at the British Patent Office on September 29, 1846.

SHERATON STYLE SIDEBOARD

The Somerset County Historical Society of Maryland has been presented with this sideboard. Could you tell me its age and whether it is an English or American piece?

R.D.B., Curator—Princess Anne, Md.

Your sideboard in the Sheraton style was probably made around 1825, but we cannot tell from the snapshot if it is English or American.

THE NEW POP-IN TAPE CARTRIDGES

Dropped easily into place, they provide up to eighty minutes of uninterrupted entertainment in your car, your house, or where you will

BY RONALD GIBSON

When you crave Sinatra or Sibelius, which do you reach for, a record or a tape? The chances are you will put on a record. Although the merits of tape have been extolled for something like twenty years, the butterfingered American listener just hasn't liked the bother of it. It's true that a lot of us bought tape recorders to fool around with, and we recorded our children playing the piano, set up the microphone at a couple of parties, and taped a few shows from TV or radio. But then, too often, the equipment went into a closet and stayed there. For ordinary listening, we stuck to the good old phonograph record.

Revolution in tape

Now a big change is in the offing. Music on tape is beginning to catch on—particularly in the form of new no-fuss cartridges. They do away with the bother of tape—the threading, rewinding, the switching of reels—and they retain all the advantages. These easy-to-play cartridges are making tape accessible to the music listener who loves the message but couldn't care less about the medium.

It's important to keep these advantages in clear perspective. Some enthusiasts would have us believe that tapes are intrinsically better sounding than discs. But the fact is it's just about impossible in a blindfold test to tell the difference between a good tape and a disc recording of the same piece. Tape, however, does nose out the disc on two important counts: durability and portability.

On a tape recording there's nothing to wear out. No needle grinds away the vinyl, no grit and dust clog the grooves. A tape will sound as fresh and quiet after the hundredth play as it did after the first, and this just can't be said of discs. (Listened to your old recordings of South Pacific or My Fair Lady recently?) Tape is also more compact. An hour's entertainment on tape requires considerably less space than an hour's entertainment on discs. And tape players can be made smaller and lighter than even the tiniest portable phonograph.

Taped concerts in your car

The tape cartridge first came into widespread use as an accessory in automobiles. A couple of years ago, a prominent record company (RCA Victor) and a prominent car manufacturer (Ford) decided that the beleaguered American driver deserved an alternative to the unimpressive music available from his car radio. The upshot was the Stereo 8 tape cartridge system—a completely automatic player that provides excellent stereo sound for the itinerant music lover. A Stereo 8 cartridge is about the size of a small paperback book and encloses a spool of tape holding up to eighty minutes of music. It couldn't be simpler to use. You merely pop the cartridge into a slot in the dashboard, and the show is on.

And it's quite a show. Stereo in the car can be very exciting. Music spills out of speakers hidden within the doors, and it swirls about the interior. Put on a Tijuana Brass cartridge and you will find it hard to believe that those aren't real trombones over by the glove compartment, or switch to Barbra Streisand and you will swear she's right there in the back seat surrounded by a full-strength orchestra. And, of course, it's a great joy to be able to program music of your own choice instead of being at the mercy of local disc jockeys. This choice is now more than ample. All the major record companies have joined RCA in producing Stereo 8 tape cartridges, and the repertoire ranges all the way from Bach to rock. (By the same token, all the major car manufacturers have joined Ford in offering Stereo 8 players as optional equipment in their new models. Prices range from about $100 to $190.) THE $125 DIFFERENCE

r the flowering vine has been carved from a single piece of wood, the hand of the Heritage finisher picks s ridges in gold. When a cabinet is given a character that mirrors much more than pure function, more money can buy it.

ight be able to find a cabinet oks somewhat like this for $600. And, if all you want is f to hold a pair of bronzed shoes, you'll be happy with it. Heritage cabinet costs about Or $125 more than its look-alike. abinet was made for the person onsiders a cabinet a showcase, less importance than the objects its on the shelves.

The antiqued, delicate look of the finish was built up slowly. Two coats of paint, a striping of gold, lacquer, a glazing to pick up the marks of the brush, more lacquer, a flick of some paint for distressing and a final shield of lacquer produced this elegant exterior finish. Inside, we textured the wood, added a coat of pure silver, dyed it the color of gold, then accented, mellowed and aged it.

The higher price on this cabinet, or any piece of furniture we make, buys something that only more money can buy. Whether it's the way we'll take a cabinet out of the realm of cold function or the way we'll shape a chair from its frame to hold its lines and looks. When you see work like this, you'll find the Heritage name. Burned inside the doors of this Heritage cabinet, stitched under the cushions of a crushed velvet Heritage sofa.

The Towle Reputation:

When everyone's patterns begin to look alike it could help you make up your mind.

It usually happens two weeks after you start shopping around. Suddenly, "Heritage Rose" looks exactly like "Moonlight Fantasy," "Moonlight Fantasy" looks like "Sunset Sonata." And they all look like carbon copies of "Rococo Rhapsody," or whatever.

Don't panic. You have just reached the turning-point in a silver shopper's life. The point where she begins to suspect that there's more to selecting sterling silver than just the pattern.

And there is. Because behind every piece of silver, there's a silversmith. And each silversmith has his own personality. His own traditions. His own reputation.

The Towle tradition, speaking for ourselves, goes back over 275 years. In fact, we're still located near the same little river in Newburyport, Massachusetts where we started in 1690. We still follow the same rules of our craft, even though doing so much work by hand may seem a little eccentric these days. And we still keep our shop small, because that's the best way to assure high standards. (We have only 325 workers. Mar of these craftsmen have never worked anywhere else).

When all the patterns begin to look alike, sto and think about what we've just told you. Then start choosing again. Perhaps you'll begin to see the difference.

For color folders showing these and other Towle patterns, write Towle Silversmiths, Dept. H3, Newburyport, Mass.

Chickering
does everything a concert piano does only it does it at home.

Home is where Chickering is most often seen. That's because we've designed our largest grand a full 3½ feet shorter than a concert piano, so it fits perfectly in your living room.

And because home is where Chickering is most often heard, we've tuned its volume to home proportions. But the richness of tone and sensitivity of response are worthy of the Philharmonic.

Of course, Chickering doesn't make the only grands and consoles for the home. But we do make the finest, and music lovers the world over agree. As for appearance, we're highly fashion conscious. You enjoy a choice of twenty different console and grand styles and finishes.

The pros and cons

Of course, the cartridges that you enjoy in your car can also be heard in your home, and a good many table-top players are now on the market. But quite frankly, Stereo 8 cartridges are less impressive in the living room than on the road. Here they have to hold their own with high-fidelity stereo phonographs instead of with low-fidelity car radios, and in the home context their disadvantages become more obvious. Most of these disadvantages relate to the "endless loop" principle on which the Stereo 8 is based. Rather than running from one reel to another, as in ordinary tape recorders, the Stereo 8 peels off from the center of the reel and is returned to the outer lap of the same reel. Consequently, Stereo 8 tapes can only run forward (putting an endless-loop tape in reverse has been likened to pushing a glob of toothpaste back into the tube). If you want to repeat a selection you have just heard—forget it! The whole tape has to make its loop before the piece you want comes around again. Another disadvantage stems from the track-switching which is integral to the Stereo 8 system. In order to accommodate maximum playing time in minimum space, there are eight tracks of sound on each tape. It's true that the player switches automatically from track to track, but the breaks are annoying, and sometimes come in awkward places. When you are zooming down the highway, none of these drawbacks seem to matter. At home they begin to rankle.

The cassette breakthrough

Recently another tape cartridge system has come along that seems to have more going for it. This is the Philips cassette, designed by one of the electronic giants of Europe. Unlike the endless-loop Stereo 8, the cassette works on the reel-to-reel principle. This means that it can be thrown into reverse whenever you want. Amazingly enough, cassettes are smaller and lighter than Stereo 8 cartridges, even though they enclose two reels instead of one. The space-saving has been accomplished by employing ⅛-inch tape instead of ¼-inch, and by running the tape at a speed of 1⅞ inches instead of 3¾ inches per second. Maximum play time in either mono or stereo about one hour.

From the outset, Philips' gineers designed the cassette recording as well as playback– distinction to the playback-o Stereo 8. This means that the tener isn't restricted to the pa aged repertoire. If you want record the latest hits for fut replayings, there is nothing to s you. (As a matter of fact, porta radios with their own built-in sette recorders are already on market.) Another advantage of cassette is its see-through pla window, which enables you to at a glance how much of a reel been played.

In the past few months, most every record company in world has jumped on the casse bandwagon. Whether your tas run to Louis Armstrong and Dix land or Herbert von Karajan a Brahms, you will find it record in cassette form. Recorder/pla back equipment is also being ma by dozens of manufacturers. The are battery-operated cassette un for easy toting, under-the-das board units for automobiles, a handsome console units for t home. Cassette players begin about $70 and go up to about $2(

The future of the tape cartridge

Will tape cartridges or cassett eventually replace records? N one seems to think so. Records c still be manufactured less expe sively than tape; figure on spen ing about $2 more for an album cartridge or cassette form. In son respects, records are more conve ent (finding a selection in the mi dle of a disc is a lot easier tha finding it in the middle of a tape) and for the moment at least, re ords have a slight edge over ca tridges and cassettes in the matte of fidelity, particularly for musi of wide dynamic range.

But even with their limitation of cost, convenience, and fidelity it is clear that tape cartridges an cassettes will have a useful futur as adjuncts to records. Music i not only for listening at home, bu also for listening on the move, an the beauty of the new easy-to-pla and easy-to-carry tapes is that the allow you to take music with yo wherever you go.

WHY DO SOME CHILDREN SEEM TO HAVE ALL THE ANSWERS?

Is it native intelligence? Bright parents? Or just hard work and study? Obviously, it's a combination of all these qualities that helps a child excel, but there is often one other factor: the educational resources in the home.

For families who cannot afford a home reference library of a thousand or more books, most of the answers that children need are provided by Encyclopaedia Britannica. Here, in compact form, is one of the world's most complete reference libraries. Each authoritative article begins with a basic, over-all explanation. This is then followed by material of greater and greater depth, so that the reader may go as deeply into any subject as his age and talent allow. What a wonderful challenge to discovery and learning!

And Britannica holds the fullest answers to adult questions as well. To own it is an enriching experience for the whole family.

Join the crusade against ugly.

Our Pledge: We will root out every weedy, seedy, ugly spot we spot on the face of the earth and let dazzling Dutch tulips take root. We will plant tulips outside our homes; tulips inside our homes. Tulips on our front lawns; tulips on our back patios. Tulips, tulips everywhere (except where there are hyacinths or daffodils).

The straight and narrow but not very beautiful path. This is the ugliness (Fig. 1) that greeted Mrs. Rita Nord of Kitman, N. H., whenever she walked into her house. How sad it made her. Six months ago a neighbor told her about the Crusade against Ugly. She joined and planted Dutch tulip bulbs along her path.

Today, this (Fig. 2) is the beautiful sight Mrs. Nord sees when she walks into her house. No wonder neighbors now refer to her as "Mrs. Sunshine!"

Warm beautiful story. "I was a 298 pound bully. I used to stand in my yard surrounded by dandelions and ragweed and kick sand in people's faces. Nobody liked me. Then, I joined the Crusade against Ugly. I got rid of the sand, the dandelions and the ragweed and planted Dutch tulip bulbs. Now, six months later, people come from all around to say, 'Hi, there, nice guy. Beautiful place, you've got.' "

The Mimosa Yellow of the custom painted Flemish cabinet enlivens the wood veneers of the walnut Baroque table base and the ash lamp table. Shell crown of bookcase in the foreground shows typical accentuation of traditional motifs; a striking accent for any room.

At last.

Something new that isn't Modern. Something important that isn't Antique. And with its finger on the pulse. Rapport: tradition—broken out of the mold!

Spirited. Warm. Unshackled. For a generation with a polite lack of reverence for sacred cows, but a healthy regard for great design.

Rapport takes historical forms . . . accentuates them slightly . . . treats them in an unhistorical fashion.

It takes from many periods in the prevailing mood. A bombé cabinet is Flemish. A commode Venetian. A vestry mirror Portuguese. And so it goes—French, English, Modern, Mediterranean.

A spicy mélange. With a vital common denominator: affinity. So that your personal mix is always harmonious. And utterly individual—a fact furthered by an uncommon choice of woods, of finishes, of high-style custom paints and gilts.

People seeing it in your home will think you've been places. They'll also know you're going places. With great Rapport.

Beauty and the Best

Beauty, as you know, is so often fragile.

Not Waterford Club Colorcast, the revolutionary new cookware born in Ireland.

"You don't have to treat it like a new born-baby," said one writer. Said another, "The inner surface is like hard velvet ...proof against the most careless cook."

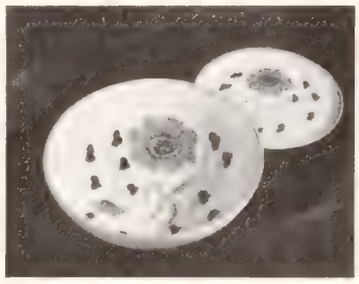
They were talking about the black velvet Teflon finish, baked on so ingeniously by the Irish, you can practically hit it with a shillelagh.

The beauty you can see. Each piece is sculptured in cast iron and enamelled in white porcelain by Irish hands plying their art under a banner, "Lest we forget, one quality only, the best."

It cooks beautifully. Low heat, no burning. Keeps every bit of the flavor in. "Incomparable for cooking food evenly," said the British Reader's Digest.

Take cast iron, white porcelain, black Teflon, Siamese teakwood and Irish hands...

And what have you got?



Beauty and the best.

WHAT'S NEW for living

Instant cabin. If all you ask of vacation living is a bed to fall into after a long day out-of-doors, plus cooking and bathing facilities with no more upkeep than a camp site, Acorn Structures has what you want—wrapped up neatly in the Nutshell, a new 8-by-18-foot prefab. Complete with a kitchen unit, bathroom with shower, metal fireplace, and sleeping accommodations for five, it costs $2,995 ready to be dropped at your site by truck, helicopter, or barge and connected to water and power lines. Architect Earl Flansburgh designed this civilized solution for campers and dawn-to-dusk skiers with a steep shed roof to provide livable ceiling height and space for fold-down bunks.

Draft dodging. In chilly weather, most drafts around a house don't come from an open door, but from icy windows that chill the air near them and reach out for the heat of the nearest warm body. Large expanses of glass, sliding doors, etc., can make a room expensive to keep snug. A pennies-a-day solution is Cameo Curtains' new WindowWarmer, an electrified curtain liner made of Fiberglas that works on much the same principle as an electric blanket. You just slip the buttonholes of the liner over your curtain hooks and plug its cord into a socket. In minutes, the liner creates a warm shield.

Pretty as a picture. Look carefully at the next square picture you see—chances are it is really a framed scarf. Good design, originality, and dazzling colors are making couturier-signed silk prints an art bargain, and precipitating a fad for hanging them on the wall. According to rumor, designer Emilio Pucci may laminate some of his scarves between plastic and wood for tabletops.

A cocoon with a view. When you sit in the Harmon-Kardon Stereo Lounge, everyone thinks you are still in the room—except you. Actually you are off in your own environment of high-fidelity stereo removed from all outside noise, immersed in the surrounding sound. Individual controls are in the acoustically cushioned wraparound canopy. The lounge is a neat and tidy private room for the hi-fi buff, but not recommended for the claustrophobic.

Leather bellwethers. Leather is learning to behave. Now you can get marvelously colored suede certified to be so sudsable and ironable you can use it for slipcovers. Also new are top-grain cowhide floor (and wall) tiles from Poland that thrive on hard use. Nine 2-inch squares are mounted on a canvas back to form tile.

The brute in the living room. Along with the current decorating enthusiasm for furs and furlike patterns on everything from wallpapers to kitchenware comes a sudden infatuation with big and expensive ceramic jungle beasts. These malevolently grinning alligators and dyspeptic lions are not in the least cuddly or petlike and—with the exception of the elephant, whose back can support a drink and bibelot—they do nothing but sit there and be brutal.

Short-term investment. Like true love, a good rug is supposed to last, but that was before the just-for-fun, throw-it-away paper explosion. Now, even floor-coverings can be disposable. The new paper rugs, like most paper capers, rely on humor—for instance, Regal's "Birdnest," a 54-inch circle of shaggy, raffia-like tufting around quilted eggs.

People pillows. "I think the human shape is inarguably more comfortable and natural for a pillow than a square," says weaver Dolores Elbert, who makes to order a family of cotton-stuffed, life-sized pillows. Man is 5 feet, 7 inches and weighs about 4 pounds; Woman is 60 inches tall; Boy, 33 inches; Girl, 30 inches. Sprawled on a sofa, the figures are a little startling at first glance, but their lack of endearing detail keeps them from looking like stuffed toys.

isley neckties for your husband. Pais- eadscarves for yourself. And once all-out burst of affection, a paisley e. Why don't you stop skirting the of your passion for paisley and cover whole floor in it? There is nothing about our black-and-white paisley rug. It is very paisley. And modern. And controversial. People will love it. Or change the subject.

If you want to get the conversation back onto your new paisley rug, you can point out that it's all wool. You can show them the fringe. You can say that paisley's origins are Persian. And that they can get Lees Paisley for themselves either as a rug, or as a gorgeous broadloom carpet. And then you could do an exotic dance. That would look nice on your new paisley.

H&G's primer on Oriental rugs today

RUGS FROM THE CITIES OF NORTHWEST PERSIA

When we think of Persian rugs, most of us visualize the carpets made in the storied cities of Iran. For although the weaving of rugs in Persia has existed since ancient times as both a nomad craft and a village craft, it was in the cities during the early sixteenth century that the great tradition of Persian carpet weaving was born.

In 1499 A.D. there arose in Persia a new dynasty whose first three shahs, besides being administrators of exceptional ability, were patrons of the arts, and they set out to develop the craft of carpet weaving into an entirely new art form. Master weavers and the talented painters of Persian miniatures were gathered together and put to work producing carpets of incredibly beautiful and intricate designs.

The first cities where rugs were made under royal patronage were naturally in Northwest Iran, for there the shahs had their early capitals, but other cities soon shared in the carpet design renaissance. When Shah Abbas later moved the capital from the north to the more central city of Ispahan, he established there his renowned factory to make rugs for the new palaces and mosques.

Of the acres of fabulous carpets that were woven in this golden age, a mere handful, mostly now in museums, have come down to us. But the designs created by these sixteenth-century artists left a lasting and profound imprint. They adapted to carpet design the smoothly curved lines of their paintings, and, along with these, the intertwining scrolls and vines; medallions; architectural, floral, and animal motifs we think of as typical of Persian rugs.

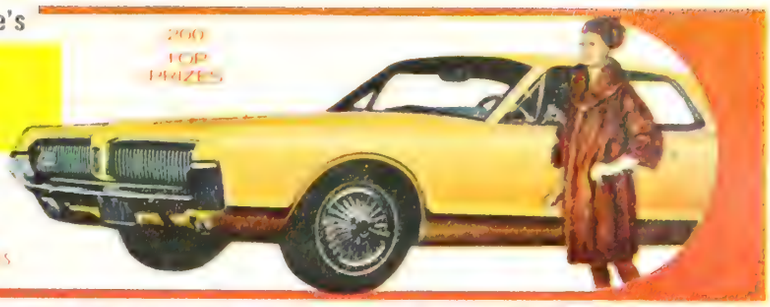
This achievement was possible only because, for the first time, carpet designs were committed to paper. In contrast to the nomad designs memorized and handed down from generation to generation, the city designs were painstakingly drawn on sheets of paper ruled into tiny squares, with each square representing a single knot and filled in with its proper color. Down the ages, these designs of the great city artists have been reworked and adapted in various colorings and sizes, and they are still the principal inspiration of Persian rug design today.

Once weaving became a city craft, rugs could be made in larger sizes than were possible on th primitive demountable looms o the nomad shepherds. A new kin of upright loom was invented, loom still in use in many cities an villages in Northwest Persia. But although it is adequate for makin fairly large room-size rugs, th very large Persian carpets ar woven today on a more mechani cally developed loom.

After the sixteenth century the creative fervor waned, al though carpets continued to b made during the seventeenth an eighteenth centuries. But invasio and political upheavals eventuall reduced rug making to a mer trickle which was absorbed largel by the Persian home market.

The revival of carpet weavin in the nineteenth century is credited to the enterprising merchants o the great rug marketing cities o Northwest Iran, who sensed in the growing affluence of the Victorian middle classes a ready market for Oriental rugs. This renaissance flourished from the latter part of the century through the first three decades of the twentieth. The traditional designs continued to be used, but fresh creative designs also began to appear. Many of the fine antique and semi-antique rugs available today—as well as some classified as merely "old" or "used"—date from this era.

The economic depression of the thirties, however, was the first of a series of troubles that beset the Persian rug-weaving industry. Drastic changes in popular taste were followed by the dislocations of World War II. Many weavers gave up the craft and encouraged their sons to seek other work or jobs in the oil fields. Cities and villages once famous for their weaving produced fewer and fewer rugs every year. But about ten years ago the tide turned, and today, many of the historic carpet-weaving centers are again turning out magnificent rugs.



Before you go shopping for a rug, it helps to know a few general facts as well as the basic characteristics of each type of rug likely to be available. For instance, not all Persian city rugs are curvilinear, but all have a certain sophistication of design. As a matter of fact, nearly all rugs in the Herez group are geometric, but they include many of the same motifs that are rendered in curved

GOING PLACES, FINDING THINGS IN BRUSSELS

BY RALPH POMEROY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ralph Pomeroy is a poet, painter, and journalist who has lived and traveled extensively in Europe. He now makes his home in New York, with occasional forays out of town to give poetry readings. His latest book of poems, published by Chairoteer Press in 1965, is called "The Canaries As They Are."

Brussels takes time to know. Most travelers have heard it recommended as "good for a day," but that is superficial advice. I am not suggesting that it can compare with one of the great treasure-cities like Rome or Paris, but it has its own elusive quality and that quality is slow in emerging. I stayed there for some time and it was time that gave me the feel of the place through changes of season and weather and the chance to make friends.

Admittedly there is an air of heaviness about Brussels and all of Belgium—a seriousness in the face of work, a shopkeeper's attitude toward the new or extravagant. But there is also an ebullient side to the city which is revealed in much of its greatest art—a sort of carnival spirit along with a great pleasure in eating and drinking, looking and being looked at.

It is nearly impossible not to begin to see Brussels from some part of the Grand' Place. This is the most famous sight in the city and is situated in such a way that a continual flow of people and traffic runs through it. The square, site of an eleventh-century market, is surrounded by guild houses rebuilt in the baroque style of the seventeenth century. They are decorated with symbolic statues, heraldic beasts, gables, and dormer windows, and brilliantly gilded to catch the sunlight and the glitter of lights after dark. The most important and beautiful of the buildings is the Hotel de Ville, or City Hall. It dates from the early fifteenth century and is a mass of carving, niches and pedestals, heads and foliage. Its turrets and balustrades lead up to a great slate roof. I love it on summer evenings when the façade is illuminated with changing colored lights, and music is amplified from the great tower topped with its weather-vane figure of St. Michael, a bronze hero 17 feet high.

The Grand' Place is not just for tourists. Bruxellois go there to meet, eat, drink, theatre-go, shop, work, or just stand around. It is both very old and very contemporary. Sitting there in the morning, watching the flower vendors arranging blooms and enjoying the effect of light on the gilded details of the buildings, you can sample the superb Belgian coffee served with delicious biscuits and little squares of dark chocolate.

Next to bicycle and pigeon racing, the preparation and consumption of food is a major Belgian sport. Street stalls offer hot French-fried potatoes wrapped in paper cones or the wonderful crisp waffles dusted with clouds of powdered sugar called gaufres. The chocolates produced by the firm Godiva, one of whose shops faces the Grand' Place, destroy all resolution about dieting.

Several great restaurants, luxurious and expensive, are located on or just off the Grand' Place. Among them are the 300-year-old

Polycrest.® The carpet fiber tested in Persia.

Carpet is Royalweave "Royal Coach." By Mand Carpet Mills.

"We applaud your carpet," said Haji.

The Persians have been making fine carpets for 3,000 years, but when they saw Polycrest olefin they were impressed.

To test Polycrest's durability, the Persians carpeted the Bazaar itself. But camels, donkeys, pushcarts, bicycles, horses and wagons left Polycrest none the worse for wear. When it was over there were no holes, no worn spots, no loose threads or frayed edges.

As one Persian put it: "Three days in the bazaar is like three years at home. But your carpet still looks like new."

We told him that Polycrest is the most stain- and wear-resistant carpet fiber in the world.

The Persians were also impressed with the luxurious Polycrest pile.

"I have seen these miraculous fibers before," said one rug merchant, "but none so lovely as this."

Nobody knows more about fine carpets than the Persians.

They were impressed.

You will be, too.

Épaule de Mouton and the Filet de Boeuf in the Rue des Harengs and La Couronne on the corner. Le Directoire, and Le Thermidor are on the square itself. So is Le Cygne, but you enter it through a modern slab of glass a few steps along the Rue Charles Buls.

One of my favorite establishments is the Roy d'Espagne on the corner of the Rue au Beurre. In winter, or on a chilly day, a great open fire roars greeting in the middle of the room and there are odd little nooks and corners where you can sit and talk. My particular hideaway was a booth on the first balcony, up against the small windows facing the Place and the morning sun, from which I could look down on all the passersby. On the main floor, the café curtains at the windows are hung on two hinged rods so that you can swing them inward if you prefer not to be hidden from the world.

While all the Grand' Place restaurants serve the international cuisine of first-class establishments anywhere, there are some Belgian specialties to look for here as well as at less costly places. Chicons de Bruxelles, which we call endive, are a joy served hot with a sauce or cold as salad. Their season runs from October through March. In May and June, platters of magnificent huge white asparagus are served, very simply, with chopped hard-cooked eggs and masses of melted butter. Tomates aux crevettes are tomatoes stuffed with tiny delicate shrimp and lovingly prepared mayonnaise. Baby eels, served hot or cold, and seasoned with sorrel, mint, sage, and verbena are called anguilles au vert. Their Flemish name is delightful: paling-in-het-groen. I found the dishes of Flemish origin the most unusual: boudin sausages—noir or blanc—served with applesauce or fried apples; civet de lièvre à la flamande—hare with prunes; carbonnades Flamandes—utterly delicious stews cooked in beer (my friends served a marvelous one combining prunes with pork); waterzooi—a stew of sea fish and fresh vegetables. Belgian trout is something special, too, particularly when freshly caught out of the Semois or Ourthe rivers in the Ardennes area.

If you are interested in curious potables, there are the local brews called lambic, kriek, and gueuze sold in the cafés on the Rue Marché-aux-Herbes. Gueuze is a strong, high-density drink, half wheat, half barley. Kriek and lambic are essentially gueuze flavored with cherries.

Brussels Haute Monde

There is considerable elegance to be seen in Brussels. As in most of Europe now, the young are striking in their beauty and sense of style—very much "with it" and international in their outlook. Paris is still the sun toward which the fashionable Brussels turns and its influence can be sensed in the best sections of town and the people who frequent them. One such area is just below the Mont des Arts where two wide streets converge. Here you'll find the lovely double galleries of Saint-Hubert: "the King's" and "the Queen's." Under the high glazed arches flags flutter and flowers flaunt. Where the two galleries meet, a narrow dividing road leads off to a maze of twisty, colorful streets. This is the favorite haunt of Bohemians and artists and at night becomes a kind of Soho. It is especially gay in September when street fairs are held. After dining on a huge fragrant bowlful of the marvelous moules served at the Armes de Bruxelles, have a look, nearby, at the narrowest street of all, the Rue d'une Personne (literally "One Person Street") between numbers 31 and 33 Rue des Bouchers.

Above the quarter, the Mont des Arts rises in gentle stages. Although the buildings situated here are admittedly not a success by architectural standards (they display that stupefying insensitivity that distinguished most of our own "post office modern" of the late thirties), it is still a pleasant way to get to the Place Royale. In the center is a newly planted garden. The Royal Library on the right houses the magnificent collection begun by Philip the Good in the fifteenth century and offers exhibitions of great quality. The arcaded shops along the left side of the garden sell prints and ceramics, lamps and other specialties.

The Place Royale itself is one of my favorite spots in Brussels. Formal in layout, treeless, flanked by white buildings, it gives off a touch of mystery like the squares painted by de Chirico or the Belgian, Delvaux. Its focus is an eques-

DRAPERY HARDWARE

For windows people care about

We chose the beautiful spiral base to illustrate what makes this graceful tray lamp a Stiffel. So very Stiffel is the manner in which it expresses the early 18th century Anglo-American era. The ash veneered tray and the glowing antique old brass finish give this lamp an identifiable aura. It's rare indeed today to find a lamp so obviously made by gifted and dedicated craftsmen. $100.*

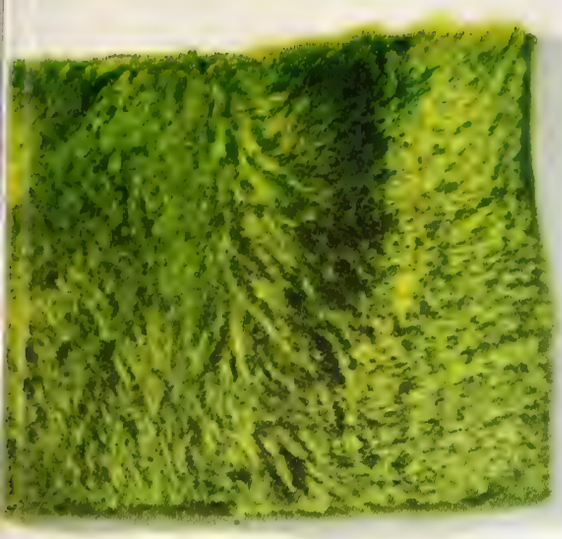
trian statue of Godefroid de Bouillon, Duke of Lorraine and King of Jerusalem, one of the great heroes of the Crusades. The handsome church behind him is Saint-Jacques, which the royal family attends. The whole square has about it the oblique quality that must have struck the French poet Arthur Rimbaud as beautiful when he praised the city during his wanderings through Belgium late in the last century.

On the corner of the Place Royale the temporary quarters of the Museum of Modern Art have been installed. When work is completed, the collection will be hung in new galleries behind the beautiful façade—all that remains—of the eighteenth-century former Royal Library. The exhibits rotate, but you have a good chance of seeing most of the major Belgian moderns such as Ensor, Magritte, Permeke, Delvaux, and Bury along with Meunier, Tytgat, Smits, de Saedeleer, and Wouters.



When you leave the museum, it is fun to pause on the corner and study the utterly delightful riveted-metal, nineteenth-century, railroad station architecture of the "Old England" store. If, like me, you are a fan of those graceful contradictory curves and columns that turn metal into the elegant and light forms of carved wood, you will be enchanted by the airy look and pale color of this store.

Down the gentle curve of the Rue Ravenstein are several fine shops offering objets d'art and antiques. The P. Vanderborght at number 9 is outstanding for such things as Art Nouveau vases, eggs of lapis lazuli, malachite and other marbles, odd, esoteric, and rare items. Not far along on the same side of the street stands the Palais des Beaux-Arts—a rather misleading place as it gives every appearance of being a public gallery. Actually it is a sort of privately run cultural center where major concerts are given, important new films projected, lectures delivered, traveling art exhibitions mounted, and crowded auctions held. Usually there is a small entrance fee for the art shows which range from ancient sculpture to pop. The little film library changes shows every night and the admission fee is only 20 francs (40 cents). As it is small and very popular, it's advisable to buy your ticket a day or so in advance. The building in which the Beaux-Arts is housed is in the style moderne—all slabs and asymmetrical angles typical of the paintings of Mondrian and van Doesburg. It was designed by the great Belgian architect Victor Horta and it is probably his best large public building left in Brussels since the recent destruction of his famous Maison du Peuple built for the Socialists in the more fluid idiom of Art Nouveau, for which he is better known. I watched unhappily as it was being torn down, but there are hopes that at least part of it will be reassembled somewhere else. Great care was taken by the workmen and everything was being numbered.

Art Nouveau houses

I was surprised to find so many Art Nouveau houses in Brussels, particularly in the Cinquantenaire quarter. Some have elaborate metalwork and painted exteriors of flowers, figures, and even words. But the most exciting example I saw was the historic Art Nouveau house on the Avenue Louise designed by Victor Horta for Armand Solvay in 1900 and now the haute couture salon of Louis Wittamer. It had appeared at one point that the house, abandoned for many years, was going the way of so many monuments of architecture these days. No one seemed interested in saving it. But Mr. Wittamer bought and restored the great house because he needed light-filled, inspiring rooms in which his employees could do their sewing and intricate, exacting beadwork, and now the lower and most spectacular floors (the upper floors are workrooms) are immaculately preserved. The lovely staircase rising from the marble carriage entrance to the trompe-l'oeil mural of a balcony and a garden, the wonderful hot terra cottas, oranges, and gleaming dark woods of the color scheme, the ironwork vines and tendrils and foliation in the Art Nouveau style are all fairly well-known through repeated reproduction in books on architecture. But the two things that struck me most forcefully were the use of ascending color as you walk up the stairway to the upper floors—greens and reds paling to faint yellows that intensify the light as you approach its source—and the architectural use of horizontal light to expand space. On both sides of the main entrance stairway there are large rooms—salons. Where these would normally have solid walls there is simply glass framed by curving wood and metal. The rooms are like huge vitrines, and to emphasize this quality, Horta used real vitrines as dividers in both rooms and mirrored their interior, non-glazed surfaces. He added mirrors to the end walls as well so that you get a magic world of clear and reflecting glass diffusing inward the natural light admitted by huge windows along the outer walls. To complicate this fugue of light even further, Horta placed enchanting chandeliers and lamps—bouquets of brass and crystal petals from which clear electric light bulbs seem to bloom —at heights guaranteed to make the mirroring rooms sparkle brilliantly, but without glare.

Originally, the entire ceiling of the stairway was a dome of colored glass, but it was badly damaged during World War II and has been covered over to enlarge the floor space above. One of the most interesting, if invisible, aspects of the house is the natural air-conditioning system of ventilation pipes and air vents built into the walls of the rooms and closets.

Mr. Wittamer is in love with his beautiful house and if you are really interested and ask to see it, there is a good chance of your receiving permission.

Grand opera in stone

The Avenue Louise runs off the Porte Louise, a part of Brussels somewhat reminiscent of Fifth Avenue in New York or Union Square in San Francisco. Nearby is the huge, fantastic pile known as the Palais de Justice, or Court House. There is a story about the fury of the slum-dwellers whose houses were demolished to make way for this "grand opera in stone" to the effect that the expletive, "architect," is still used in local patois as a term of vile abuse.

Brussels is one of the few large cities that still has a complete network of streetcars. combined with flowers and greenery achieve an entrancing effect, especially when lit up at night.

The Grand Sablon contains some of the finest antique shops in the city. I noticed in some of them the Belgian habit of using rugs, often quite heavy ones, as table covers. Topped with pewter or brass or a rough jug of flowers, the effect can be extremely intimate and rich, like the tables in Vermeer paintings. At Christmas time, the shops put lighted trees in their premier étage windows and the square turns magical.

On Saturday and Sunday antique dealers set up their stalls next to the Sablon church. There I found five heavy old liqueur glasses for 50 cents each.

Near or in the Sablon are most of the few galleries devoted to contemporary Belgian art: the Egmont at number 11 in the Petit Sablon, the important Zodiaque at number 17 Rue des Sablon, the Contemporains at 18 Rue de l'Hôpital, the Disque Rouge at 2 Rue de Rollebeek. They are usually open in the afternoon until quite late and the prices are fair.

From the Grand Sablon you can reach the open space in the shadow of a church called the Marché de la Chapelle. Here you'll get a glimpse of a bustling popular market where you can sample mussels and cockles from spotless pushcarts or try snails boiled over glowing embers. Depending on the day, there are fish to buy, wonderful cheeses (especially a white cream cheese Belgians like to spread on bread and sprinkle with sugar), fruits, vegetables, and flowers. The people seem to be straight out of a painting by Jordaens. This is the Marolles quarter, the oldest part of Brussels, where a Flemish dialect is spoken.

The streets of the Marolles quarter have lovely old names like Rue de Radis, Rue de la Plume, Rue du Jardin Rompu, Rue des Chandeliers, and Rue de l'Economie. In the autumn, street fairs (braderies) are put on in the Rue Blaes and Rue Haute. The area is increasingly frequented by Spaniards and there are a good number of Spanish taverns where you can drink red wine and eat delicious fried shrimp or octopus. My favorite is the Rincon at the end of the Rue Blaes. In the Rue Notre-Seigneur is a restaurant full of life and charm called the Estaminet de la Grand Porte. The Rue Haute boasts the birthplace of Brueghel, restored as a small museum. Continuing on along the Rue Haute you will come to the flea market, crammed with people and junk (especially on Sundays) and great fun to explore for finds. There is every conceivable kind of object from funny-hideous vases shaped like parrots to fine old brass door fittings and pretty, inexpensive rugs, but you must be wary of dealers disguised as stall holders—their prices are way above the flea market level.

There are other good buys in Brussels. One of the most distinctive of Belgian handcrafts is ... fired pottery with a gray glaze and ... dark blue designs. MAIL-ORDER MECCA FOR NEEDLEWORKERS

For anyone who plies needle or shuttle, antucket Island has become an opulent source of choice and rare materials, top instruction

nany people, Nantucket, Mass., gests sailing, scrimshaw, and ns about the days when the e island off Cape Cod was the ding center of the world. But people who have summered e in the past few years, Nanket is just as apt to suggest dles and yarns. Right now, in , this small seaport seems well its way to becoming the needlek center of the world.

At The Nantucket School of edlery you can take summer rses in embroidery of all kinds. The Cloth Company of Nanket you can buy handwoven rics, finished crewel for curns, finished needlepoint for irs, hooked rugs. At The Nanket Needlery, open just this r, you can buy every imaginakind of needlework supply m rug frames to rare cloth of d for ecclesiastical embroidery. d, starting this month, you can ler by mail everything The Cloth mpany and The Needlery offer, well as a Home Study Course m The School of Needlery.

Born of a restoration

ntucket's enthusiasm for needlegot its start in 1961 when the ntucket Historical Trust decidto restore the old Jared Coffin use as a first step in its efforts revive Nantucket traditions and mulate the island's year-round nomy. To provide authentic rics and stitchery for the restoron, Mrs. Walter S. Beinecke Jr., e of the Trust's founder and a ined weaver and embroiderer, gested that weaving and needlelessons be offered to any islandwho was interested. Under the gis of the Trust, two organizans were established: the Nanket Looms and the Nantucket edlewomen. Mrs. Beinecke dened and had looms built, arched out spinners and dyers provide the special yarns that re needed, and invited the first a series of distinguished needleexperts to come to the island to ach.

Two years later Nantucket's avers and needlewomen had fined not only the superb handwovand crewel-embroidered fabrics that now embellish the Jared Coffin House (see H&G, April, 1966), but work of their own that offislanders were eager to buy. The Nantucket Looms was reorganized as an enterprise separate from the Trust, and in 1965, D. D. and Leslie Tillett, designers known for their own woven and silk-screened fabrics, were asked to come to Nantucket as color and design consultants. New York decorators began to order specially woven or specially embroidered fabrics. Needlework teachers shared their skills with increasing numbers of islanders and summer visitors, and it soon became apparent that an increased range of supplies was needed. So in 1966 The Cloth Company of Nantucket was established.

The Cloth Company is the parent company of several island shops that now carry everything from wool and silk afghans crocheted in island homes or woven at the Nantucket Looms to printed decorative fabrics with silk-screened needlework patterns available to match. One of these shops is The Nantucket Needlery that specializes in stitchery supplies for people who do their own handwork.

Today's needlework scene

When someone suggested starting a mail-order service, a cross-country survey was undertaken to find out whether interest in needlework was as keen off-island as on. Department stores were asked what kind of supplies they stocked and what kind of person bought them (one of the surprises was how many men and young people do). Fashion and trade schools were checked. In certain areas, house-to-house interviews were conducted.

The results confirmed the hunch that interest in needlery was nationwide, and underscored the difficulty most people have in finding the supplies they need for truly creative needlework.

Taking these cues, Mrs. Inge Brenner, manager of The Needlery, Mrs. Beinecke, and Mr. Tillett began their search for additional supplies to fill the needs of serious craftsmen. In Germany and Switzerland, Mrs. Brenner dug up sources that would make to Nantucket specifications such hard-to-find items as unsized canvasses of long-staple linen for embroidery; wool-like basket weave for embroidered bedspreads or curtains; airbrush batistes for spot stitchery; strong, resilient rug and embroidery frames of oak and ash. For the soft long-staple worsted yarn they wanted, Mr. Tillett and Mrs. Beinecke tested and experimented, and finally selected a New Zealand wool. After searching Europe for fine silk and metallic threads, the team arranged to have them made in the U. S. from raw materials gathered from the four corners of the earth.

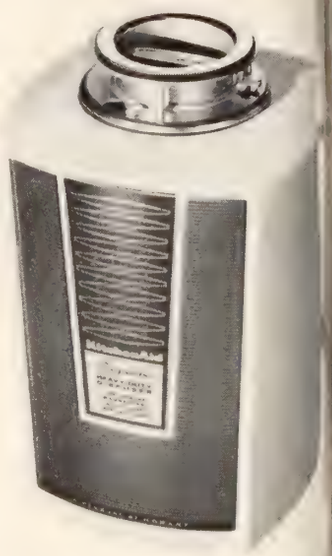
Yarn for all seasons

Among the supplies you can now buy in person or by mail from The Nantucket Needlery are cross-wound skeins of a basic multipurpose yarn in 120 light-fast colors including hard-to-find hues like hot pinks and turquoise. For the versatile needleworker, this 4-ply/2-ply yarn simplifies buying and storage because it can be used for knitting on any size needle, for crocheting, for canvas work, even for rug making. And since the four strands can be easily separated into 3-ply, 2-ply, or single strands, the same yarn is also good for needlepoint, crewelwork, even petit point and delicate embroidery. Each skein comes in clear plastic tubes with a pull-through hole in the top so the yarn cannot snarl or become dusty, and twelve tubes fit into a clear plastic box with corresponding pull-through holes in the lid for neat shelf storage. Two twelve-tube boxes could give you a handy palette of the twenty-four basic colors selected by Mr. Tillett so that all your handwork (as well as finished handwork bought on the island) can be coordinated in color.

Renaissance of riches

The Needlery is also stocked with an array of ecclesiastical embroidery supplies, equally ravishing for caftans and evening dresses, which has not been equaled perhaps since Venetian days. It includes nearly 200 kinds of gold, silver, aluminum, copper, and color-enameled threads, with matching hair-thin threads for couching them on metallic cloth or on the silk twill woven on Nantucket. The Needlery's wooden frames range from small felt-lined hand-hoops to floor-standing embroidery frames and big metal-free rug frames (nothing to rust or snag). You can also get handsome copies of antique Nantucket needlery tools: whale-ivory knitting needles, rug needles, and crochet hooks that feel marvelous in the hand and will not oxidize like metal ones; ivory stiletto and plunging needles for heavy embroidery; scrimshaw needlecases and whale-ivory thimbles that old books recommend for smoothing silk. About eighty needlery designs—many inspired by Nantucket wildflowers, cranberries, butterflies, and nautical themes—have been silk-screened on linen to embroider for chair seats, pillow shams, etc. Or they can be had in the form of iron-on transfers for anything from cocktail napkins to a Christmas tablecloth. In accordance with The Needlery's emphasis on individuality, these line-drawn designs do not dictate your choice of colors or intricacy of stitch.

The home study course



Individuality is also the underlying philosophy of The Nantucket School of Needlery. The aim of the Home Study Course is to teach a comprehensive survey of stitches and techniques so that students can apply their knowledge to many different media in creative ways. A second goal is to offer new opportunities for needleworkers: a diploma from The Nantucket School of Needlery will be given to students who complete the course and qualify them to teach others. Twenty-five of the island women (who have studied under Erica Wilson, Lisbeth Ransjo, Rosemary Heads, Emily Louise Rivett, Hope Hanley, Mildred Davis, Georgiana Brown Harbeson, Jacqueline Enthoven) will serve as Home Study teachers, and they are also available to go anywhere in the country to teach at seminars. School consultants will be Emily Louise Rivett, whose private needlework school is Britain's largest, and Jacqueline Enthoven, author of The Stitches of Creative Embroidery.

IT'S FREE FROM BARWICK.

A book which takes all the confusion out of buying carpet. Once you read it, you can march fearlessly into any carpet store and know just what to look for. (And what to steer clear of.) You'll learn which are best for your own particular needs. You'll know one texture from another. You'll have a good idea how much money you'll be spending. Or how little. And—you'll have a whole batch of fresh new decorating ideas.

This valuable book comes from the Barwick Carpet people. Naturally. Who else makes so many different kinds of carpet. And puts so much research behind each one. For example, the carpet pictured above is Private Party from Barwick's famous Acrilan® collection. Acrilan acrylic fibers make a carpet a lot more than just beautiful. You can count on its being easy to clean and extra long-lasting. Read all about it—and lots more. And then—what you don't know about carpet won't matter.

WISE MEN

Which of these 3 art treasures may we send you FREE?

ORIGINAL BRONZE AGE ARROWHEAD

This ancient artifact, forged by a primitive hunter between 1000 and 700 B.C., makes an arresting objet d'art that you will display proudly in your living room or office. Averages 5 inches in height and is beautifully mounted on a rich walnut base. Included with each is a document attesting to its age and place of origin.

ORIGINAL ANCIENT POTTERY OIL LAMP

Excavated in the Near East, this lamp is dated between the 5th and 7th Centuries A.D. The encrustations fused to certain parts of the surface testify to its antiquity. Olive oil was poured through the center hole and the wick protruded from the spout. It's an artifact that knowledgeable friends will admire.

CARICATURE PRINT BY "SPY"

In the last half of the 19th Century, the bitingly satiric sketches of Leslie Ward—anonymously signed "Spy"—filled the pages of England's "Vanity Fair" Magazine. His targets were Churchill, Wilde, Shaw, and other famous contemporaries. Your 7" x 12" print is a prime example of the work of the caricaturist whose fame continues undiminished.

PORTRAITS IN OIL

"EVERY PAINTING A MASTERPIECE"

● Magnificently painted on canvas from old or new photos, by outstanding European and American artists. A superb living likeness in full color is executed in rich oils.

● 12 portrait painters to choose from Van Dyke Oil Portraits from photographs, are indistinguishable from those done from life. It is of special advantage to those who are not available for personal sittings. All that our artists require (besides the photograph), to create a superb living likeness is a description of the color of the subject's hair, eyes, complexion.

No longer need you envy those fortunate enough to own a family portrait . . . you, too, can now own one. Like them you can see immortalized, for all time, the loved and never ageing personality of your wife, husband, children, parents, grandma or grandad, each faithfully captured at a particular moment of their lives.

Van Dyke Oil Portraits are TRUE WORKS OF ART, painted from your photograph and not on top of an enlargement of your photo as is the method of other commercial portrait services. The latter commercial method has a life span of about two years, while our genuine PORTRAITS IN OIL will last for many centuries.

SINK-SIDE APPLIANCE CENTER

Here is a case of everything and the kitchen sink! In addition to push-button hot and cold water control and a dishwashing device with its own soap container, the Electro Sink Center operates a battery of versatile appliances all fitting handily into two built-in motor units. Included are a blender, dough hook, juicer, salad maker, mixer, coffee mill, and—rare for any appliance center—an ice cream freezer. The Center also has an ultraviolet sterilizer and deodorizer, which sanitizes and keeps the whole sink area clear of unpleasant kitchen odors. Because the current is automatically converted to a mere 24 volts, there is no danger in handling any of the equipment while your hands are wet. The Sink Center is easily installed on any existing sink merely by removing the present faucets. It is available through contractors, builders, and interior decorators from the Electro-Way Corporation. The price for the complete unit with all of the appliances is approximately $450.

Salad maker has three blades. Will also slice and shred potatoes, grate cheese, cut up small vegetables. Mixer has cover to prevent splattering, triple-action blades that reach entire surface of bowl and eliminate scraping.

Self-churning ice cream freezer will produce up to one half-gallon of your favorite flavor. A quick ice-cream dessert can be made in ten minutes. Paddles are easily cleaned.

Blender, which operates on left unit, has two speeds. Can grind, whip, liquefy, chop, grate, and purée. Has an automatic cutoff switch to prevent overloading of container.

How to give your rooms a New Look

Design in homefurnishings, like fashion design and the arts, evolves in uneven cycles. For years on end, it simmers gently, sedately, then pop, pop, pop, whirrrr, everybody gets new ideas at once and the pot is bubbling over.

Right this minute we are in the midst of a design explosion. Furniture designers, bypassing shapes they have stuck with for years, are turning to new forms, new constructions. Using new materials, too—or old materials in new ways. Experimenting with new finishes, new methods of marrying furniture to fabric. The traditionalists are exploring fresh sources of inspiration that seem brand new because so long neglected. Some of the more irreverent are even giving venerable designs the shock treatment—painting Chippendale chairs, for instance, fire engine red. Fabric designers have been playing with new scales—both larger and smaller—and with sizzling new color combinations. Interior designers are arranging furniture in new ways, putting together things we never thought would go together peaceably, discovering hidden rewards in such unexpected moves as painting the walls black or moving a stone table from the garden into the bedroom.

The net result is a heady abundance of ideas for you to pick and choose from, a profusion as exciting as the desert suddenly burst into bloom. And the most agreeable part of it all is the diversity. This is no New Style that you have to accept in toto or pass up. Some of the new designs are playful. Some are engagingly pretty. Some are elegant, some deeply, divinely comfortable.

What is your own taste? What do you hanker for? What kind of furniture and fabrics and rugs and wallcoverings and bibelots are you living with now? Whatever the answers, you will find in the boiling pot of current decorating ideas, one—or two or three—that can give your rooms an entirely new look—the bright fresh look of today. This issue of H&G is devoted to cluing you in on them.

The fresh bright look

A famous writer takes you on a tour of her Washington apartment

Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Porter's apartment in Washington, D. C., is the outcome of years of acquiring and discarding until nothing remains but the cream, and a beautiful amalgam of all the things that make today's decorating so exciting: the refreshing leafiness of the garden look; luxuriously squashy, soft-edge furniture; shiny lacquered walls; painted chairs and tables; flurries of black and white dashed with a single color; pattern piled on pattern; motifs from the animal kingdom. Mrs. Porter, better known as Kathleen Winsor, creator of the famed and delicious Amber, is both a hard-working writer (she spent seven years on the recent "Wanderers Eastward, Wanderers West") and a skilled explorer in the world of fine arts. She loves paintings, furniture, porcelain, silver, and bibelots—and collects them all. But she has never thought of herself as a decorator, so whenever she feels like a change of scene, she is quite happy to supply the "makings" and let someone else create the setting. For the Washington apartment, she gave carte blanche to interior designer James Tillis of Mallory-Tillis, Inc., asking only for fresh, bright rooms that would change in character as she moved from one to another—a meticulous blend of color, pattern, and inventive detail. The tour starts here, with Mrs. Porter herself the informative guide.

The library: luxurious soft-edge sofas

"This is our favorite room—the library. I work here, and we sit here at night, deep in those squashy sofas. The walls are black lacquer, an idea that scared me to death, but it has worked beautifully. Black is very soothing for someone who sits and stares into space, trying to think, and the pair of patterns—the tree of life on the fabric and the lattice on the rug—is gay enough to light up the room when you don't want to think. The desk was designed for me years ago. I like half-acre desks, and the marble top is nice and cool. The painting is Persian, not quite old enough for a museum, but good. And that's my favorite table, the yellow lacquered one. It came out of the Brighton Pavilion, Heaven knows how. I trust George the Fourth took tea at it. I do. The bookcases are brass with black lacquer shelves—more shine."

CONTEMPORARY TRENDS

Living-dining rooms:

a wealth of pattern

I'm a good cook [Mrs. Porter has a Cordon Bleu diploma] and an early riser [6:30 A.M.] so I always fix my husband's breakfast. When we dine alone, I do the dinner, but when we entertain, I have a wonderful French chef for the evening. The dining table on the other side of that Chinese screen [OPPOSITE PAGE] seats eight very comfortably, so we have eight, no more. The painted chairs are Adam—in spirit, at least; they're copies—and the credenza is Italian, quite old. That's a Tamayo hung above it, a fairly early one. The floor in both the dining room and living room was stained to look like malachite. The ship's figurehead in the foyer [RIGHT]—we often dine there—is a Yankee straight from Maine."

"I love anything vermeil—forks and spoons, boxes, animals. These are sea things: a shell, a sea urchin, and what used to be quite a handsome crab. I've washed him too often, poor thing, and his silver's showing."

Her bedroom: a flower garde

"This is my bedroom. I wante nice old-fashioned flower gard not so formal as the living roo The bed I've had forever, but canopy is new, so is the cover We sent it to Kentucky to be q because those mountain ladies the best quilters in the world. It's an old, old pattern called Egyptian Fan. The table was out of a garden ornament. I ha breakfast there and sniff the pomander balls in that opaline They smell divine. I make then myself. The lamp was once a angel in Germany, and the litt chair is papier-mâché, the kin Queen Mary used to collect. The two pictures I adore. The o on the right is a foil collage, and the other is painted on velv What a pity no one seems to work that way anymore."

"This is a mixed-up closet—summer jewelry on one side [Mrs. Porter arranges it as carefully as she would flowers], winter bags on the other. The wallpaper is a different pattern from the one in the bedroom, but still [illegible] enough to reflect one eye. I [illegible]

"I asked Mr. Tillis to design a new table for the dressing room and he did this beautiful lacquered palm-leafy thing. Then we found the crystal palm branch chandelier—straight from heaven. The chintz is shirred top and bottom on rods. The chair is Venetian, and the peacock feathers are a talisman. For me, curiously enough, they're good luck. For the bath [BELOW] we had towels and monograms made in Paris, and I designed the shadow boxes. They're butterflies, which I collect."

"Here is something every woman would love: fold-back closet doors mirrored on the outside. They can be pushed flat against the door jambs so you can look in one and see your back in the other—slip showing and all."

"Two more closets, one just for shoes, one for hats and fun jewelry [BELOW]. I used to have more hats than shoes, but now it's the other way around. I just gave some away—the heels were too high—and it hurt. They were like old friends."

"The caning wallpaper in my husband's bathroom came from France, and so did the terra-cotta sphinxes. There are two of them. One is Madame de Pompadour and the other is Marie Antoinette. Such a cozy pair. In the bar, [BELOW, an alcove off the library] we had wine closets built in, and use an old French baker's rack, for glasses and work space. The baskets are half to look at—I think they're handsome—and half to cache things I can't bear to throw away. Clippings, theatre programmes, letters—lovely, perfectly useless memorabilia."

black lacquer, steel and brass

"This is my husband's bedroom [OPPOSITE PAGE]. When Mr. Tillis started to plan it, I told him to make it as pretty as he could, but in a masculine way. No monk's cell. My husband is as much of a hedonist as I am. He's a lawyer, you know, and that's the sign of his old law firm on the door—before Abe Fortas was appointed to the Supreme Court. That steel and brass bed had to be specially made for my husband—he's 6 feet, 4 inches tall. The fur throw is black fox. It would make a good coat, wouldn't it? And the wallpaper on the screen and in his dressing room is one of those furry prints—supposed to be a Dalmatian, I think. When he brings work home, he uses the black lacquer desk, which came from Vienna, and the mahogany armchair, which was made in 1810 and is attributed to Thomas Hope. I hope he did make it. He was a marvelous craftsman."

"The towels in the powder room, black with yellow butterflies, were specially designed to go with the black marble counter."
"My husband's geegaws [BELOW] I arranged myself—an orrery, a horn cup, English, I think, a nice old silver owl, and a little mirror on an easel, his touch of vanity."

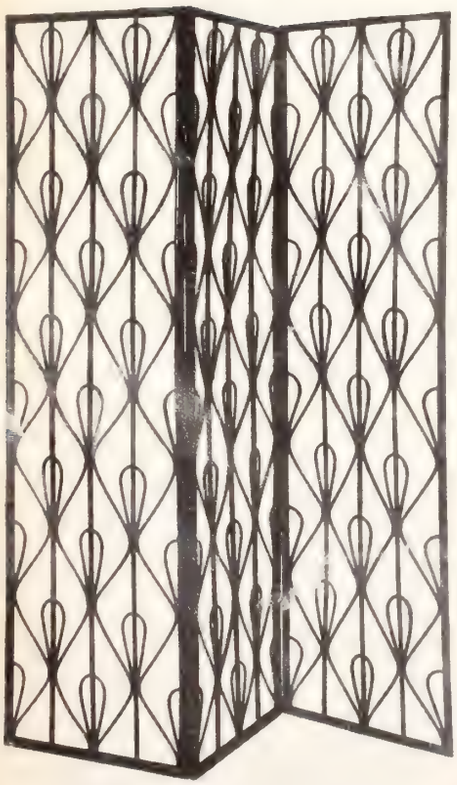
WHAT'S NEW FOR DECORATING

Six ways to keep your rooms from showing their age



The miracle of rejuvenation was never so easy to work as it is right now. For the current excitement in decorating is not a brand new style to be achieved only by starting fresh; rather it is the dizzying sum of new designs and new ways of using materials that have popped up in all the various elements of which a room is composed. From these have emerged several outstanding new looks, any one of which, or all, could be the theme of a whole room, as you will see in the next seven pages. But the real excitement starts when you see what one new chair, or one of the new fabrics, or a new lamp, or a fresh coat of lacquer can do to rejuvenate the things you already have. For the new designs are good mixers and in mixing they generate a sparkle that makes the whole room look like today.

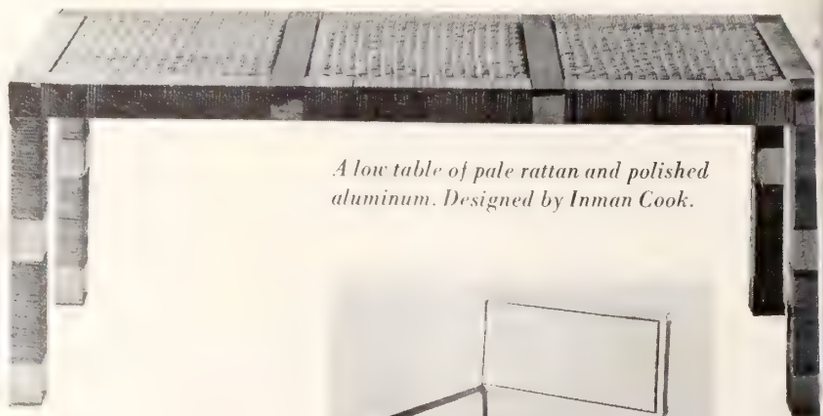
The garden look



A breezy mixture of wicker, rattan, bamboo, flowery fabrics, lattice-like patterns, wrought iron, outdoor lighting fixtures and plants, plants, plants—that is the sum of the garden look. Now it has spilled out of the garden room and is running rampant all over the house. (For the garden look in a bedroom, see page 198.) And individual components of the garden look have insinuated themselves into unexpected places—casual wicker into the company of sedate antiques; flowered fabric into swinging contemporary rooms. But the newest flowery prints have a swing of their own: naturalistic motifs, larger than life, in colors from never-never land.

Steel and glass

The gleam of steel and the shimmer of glass are at home almo anywhere today. The reflectiveness of chrome-finished steel or elegant cousin, brass, is a wonderful foil for the rich depths of fi woods. Combined, brass and steel have richness of their own (w ness the bed on page 201). Glass and its cousin, clear plastic, a another kind of sparkle plus the magic of transparency that giv objects the look of occupying no space at all. Now that the glass a steel table no longer costs a small fortune, it is fast becoming a classi entirely worthy of joining forces with the stateliest classics aroun

Glowing lacquer

Today's lacquered furniture has expanded far beyond the role of the demure painted accent piece that was introduced by H&G back in 1953. Although still important as a simple color accent, lacquered furniture is also being used several pieces at a time in one room, even to the point of becoming the whole show. The colors, too, are often bolder, clearer than the traditional lacquer finishes. Liveliest surprise of all are the new reproductions of Chippendale chairs jauntily finished in bold bright hues the originals never knew.

You don't have to ask whether the new up[h]stered furniture is comfortable. Its soft o[n] stuffed contours and fat squashy cushions [i]you so immediately. decorating strategies can wake up a room quite as rapidly as a end of mixed pattern—always providing the mixture is wisely l. To come off successfully, the patterns must have a unifying hey might all be in the same scale, preferably small. Or they be in the same two colors. Each might be a different version of the similar motifs—butterflies, or animal spots, or a single flower. Or ht all share the same mood—for instance, a potpourri of bookend antique hatbox patterns. And to patterned fabrics and wallpapers, , you can add patterned rugs, tiles, lamps to compound the effect.

To create a crisp, tailored background for the collection of vivid paintings, sculpture, and masks in their New York living room, Dr. and Mrs. Claude Bloch decided on a shell of white with sharp black accents. The floor is stained white, the slipcovers are off-white. Only the Bokhara rug and two small chairs are in color. But the single panels of black and white fabric at the windows are what give the room its real punch.

The punch of black and white

A great favorite of long standing, black and white has never been snappier than it is today. Like a chameleon it can take many forms, express many moods, be exciting or restful. Effective used with one bold color, it looks newest as the lively companion of quiet neutrals. Some of the new black-and-white patterns have the crisp tailored look of op art, some the flowing linear look of Aubrey Beardsley drawings—a look of delicacy rather than boldness. You can use black and white equally well as a background or for accent, in partnership or as individual accents, some black and some white.

OLD ROOMS WITH NEW LABELS

Planned for the way we live today

As the world around us changes, so do the rooms we live in. Gradually they change in character and acquire new names. The back parlor becomes the family room; the conservatory blossoms again as the garden room. For some months now H&G has been watching the dramatic ascendance of four new rooms designed to meet the special needs of today: the tandem bed-sitting room; the fun-and-games room; the quiet room; the round-the-clock room. All, of course, have discernible antecedents. And although each room is quite different, they have certain things in common: all include some provision for music, and all reflect a new approach to furniture arrangement. When you set out to furnish a room to serve specific functions, you tend to forget purely visual dicta such as balance and focal points or anchoring the furniture to the wall or the fireplace. But you do—often you must—take advantage of all available space. As a result of this kind of thinking, we are now witnessing the rediscovery of the center of the floor. In almost all of today's new rooms, for different reasons in each case, some of the furniture is moving to center stage, leaving the periphery free for additional groupings that make the room more useful. This idea, along with others you will see on the next seven pages, is by no means limited to rooms of the new genre. All are equally adaptable to the classic undiluted living room, dining room, and bedroom, and can give these rooms the lively look of now.

The tandem bed-sitting room

An outgrowth of the old bed-sitting room, this new tandem arrangement is two complete rooms in one. At one end, opposite page, is a self-contained bedroom. The other end of the room, left, is a full-scale sitting room complete with color TV and a stereo system. The two areas are each self-sufficient and as separate as if there were a wall between them, yet they are united by color—a subtle casual relationship—and by a similarity of materials. The one constant is the black cotton-suede covered wall, soothing for sleeping, spectacular as a background for paintings. The one bright accent—its brightness subdued by texture—appears in two rather unexpected places: the big deep-tufted soft-edge sofa and the faux marbre finish of the fireplace and window frames. Even more subtle—you have to look twice to discover it—is the repetition of reptile and animal hides: cobra skin covering every inch of the bedstead, a karakul coverlet on the bed, black water snake on the coffee table in front of the sofa. Interior design by Audré Fiber, the television and music system by RCA.

The fun-and -games room

A room to relax in, to party in, to play games in—when have we had a room precisely for that? You might call it a new version of the old rumpus room, but for all its finger-snapping mood, it is both more cushiony and more elegant. The emphasis is on gregariousness, which is one reason why all the furniture is pulled out from the walls to form a conversation center. And the low level of the sofas—only 12 inches from the floor—suggests lolling with the greatest of ease between dances around the bare-floor periphery to the music of the piano and any other instrument that happens along. This is a room where you can indulge an appetite for zingy colors and splashy patterns—the super-scale wave motif on the window shades, the free-form blob in two sizes on two sofa cushions, the polka dots on the vinyl covering the corner platform, the dizzy black-and-white vinyl that covers the little Parson's table, bottom of page. The quiet room

In this noisy, hectic age, it is only natural that we should take with alacrity to a room designed for tranquility and quiet. It might look offhand like a living room, but on second glance you can see it is not, for who would put a desk in the middle of the living room or banish sofas to an alcove? This room, however, is not for partying or entertaining except on mini scale. It has much in common with the old library, but the agenda includes more than reading and writing—for instance: serious listening to music; needlework; chatting with one close friend over a cup of tea; undistracted contemplation. The decoration is quiet but far from somnolent, with its emphasis on soft browns and yellows—the walnut tones of the furniture, walls of H&G's Nutmeg, sofas covered in Mushroom crushed-linen velvet, Pernod rugs—brightened only by the green lacquered chairs, the colors of the books, the painting. The desk stands in the center because that, as a rule, is quieter than next to a sound-conducting wall. The sitting corner has a quiet sense of containment, and, unobtrusively, a great deal of relevant storage. In the low commode, below, is a store of yarns and canvasses, while other paraphernalia is cached in the granite-topped drum tables. On a shelf in the bookcase stands a stereo tape player-recorder with speakers that swing out to direct the sound. "Folio VI" furniture designed by Ken Volz for Henredon; Wollensak stereo player-recorder; abstract painting by Robert Kabak from the Betty Parsons Gallery.

The round-the-clock room

The old studio room has come of age as a self-sufficient room that might be a one-room apartment or the domain of a post-teen-age son or daughter or a grandmother. Whoever lives here, the room functions around the clock, providing everything anyone needs for sleeping, dressing, dining, desk-work, conversation, games, listening to music. The bed is the key—a queen-size bed specifically designed to be placed in the middle of the room. (Here it floats on an island of ceramic tile laid to look like a rug.) In the daytime it serves as a sofa, broad and low, in the manner of today's popular Arabesque couch. And since it is low, the eye travels over it as if it were simply a patterned carpet. But the bed is for more than sleeping: in the base is a drop-front storage compartment for extra blankets, below right. The headboard incorporates at the front a three-compartment shelf for telephone, radio, et al., and at the back a full-scale chest of drawers, bottom left. The result of this concentration of comfort in the middle of the room is plenty of space along the walls. At one side of the room is a small dining area, and, nearby, a chest for silver. One corner is a conversation and games area. In another corner is a desk, top left, and in a third, an armchair plus a roll-around table, above, right, that houses a record player. Furniture designed by Roger Sprunger for Dunbar; paintings by Hans Hofmann and Theodoros Stamos from André Emmerich Gallery; African sculpture from the Carlebach Gallery.

DOES YOUR EYE LACK THE NERVE?

A crash in the desert is soundless unless it connects with a hearing ear. Just as the thing we see is only half the vision. The other half is the sensitive inner eye. It's the eye that lacks the nerve for change. Funny how most eyes never question the notion that a bed needs to hug a wall neurotically. In the eye's mind, wall and bed are glued together. "Which wall?" is the only question that comes up.

Loose that silver cord. PULL push TUG encourage a bed into the center of the room: a new planetary system is born. It is not a bed now but The bed. A sun. And the greatest thing it sends into orbit is a corner.

A corner is a Place. A wall has no intimacy but a desk in a corner is a private office. A chest that has just been thinging itself along a wall slides into a corner and a little dressing room begins to shape up. Piled into a corner, a few flowerpots that were hithering and thithering around look like a lot more. A table that has been all bedside manners and boring gets itself into a corner, finds a window and a new cover and a primrose plant, and everyone is more inclined to have morning coffee there than anywhere else in the house. The new space mathematics is a free-form room with four extra rooms for free.

Where did the Educated Inner Eye get its diploma? By mail or from the Institute of Advanced Studies? The Kindergarten eye and the Eighth grade eye explain themselves, but how do they grow up and graduate? Certainly not by joining the cult that goes for a thing just because it is The Thing. Or the self-righteous cult that talks against it for the same reason. The learning eye gets its lessons in a very human way. It has an honest dialogue with its own tongue and a wary one with the public.

I really hate those new fangled things. I can't stand them. I liked the other way better. Those puffed up sofas look too fat. The chairs look fatter. There are those fat things again I don't understand them. Oh well yes they look comfortable. They're important? Really? Actually I suppose they are comfortable.

And now in spite of itself the eye is starting to seek out the sofas and the chairs that are profoundly tufted. Outgoing. Unrepressed. Straight backs now begin to look a little too uncompromising. Flat surfaces rather a lost cause. The eye is getting somewhere. Giving change half a chance.

A. Lincoln had the right line on change. He said, "We must disenthrall ourselves." At some point the open eye begins its disenthrallment with the tight-lipped way a hard-edged sofa backs up against a wall. Uncharming a little rude even. The eye needs another kind of meeting between wall and sofa. Rippled, bubbling, entertaining. Now a white linen featherbed sofa pushed in with cerise mauve canary fawn sky-blue buttons seems entirely workable. A taffy lizard chair soft as silk is a pleasant surprise. A giant lemon soufflé is an armchair to spend a long lovely time in. Now the eye has found a black leather sofa like a big licorice marshmallow and eats it up. In the process of education this eye has passed through all the phases of hate tolerate accept like a little like a lot want need can live without. The eye asked why and got its answer.

Another why for the featherbed sofa and the soufflé chair is that steel and glass are using up all the straight lines in a room. Steel and glass for a small table, a high table, a nest of tables, a bookcase, a stand for china.

A glass table doesn't crowd the eye. Instead, it half fools the eye into believing in more space than there really is. An airy substantial table of steel and glass never topples over on purpose like some malevolent things. Never.

It just kills me. I want it, but I don't need it for anything, and it's so terribly expensive. Where will I put it? What will I use it for? A person named Corinna who is one of those people that seem to do everything in the world well, without effort and without making you hate her for it, says don't ask. Of course it's expensive. Have you ever liked anything that wasn't? If a thingamajig speaks to you, trust in it. You may never pass its way again. It will find its own reason for being and its own little place and even maybe some kind of vital purpose.

OR A CHANGE???

A non-decorator thinks out loud as she faces today's decorating scene

By Rebecca Warfield

was a toss-up which of these cheerless rooms was the most depressing, but stretching all the way between them were rooms of considerable charm that still took themselves pretty seriously. They were called living rooms, but were closer than their owners knew to the Victorian parlour where any activity more strenuous than lifting a glass wasn't banned, it wasn't even considered.

ne thing to be glad about is that you ldom see a sedate room any more. You rdly ever have to spend time now in one those nervous Sunday rooms where all e Best Pieces are gathered together in a nd of quarantine and out of which every-dy dives for the Den to start enjoying emselves. Another cause for rejoicing is e wane of self-righteous functionalism. ou remember that room where any bibelot the slightest value or interest had been iled to the top shelf behind closed doors, d the owner used to say with a superior r, "There's not a single thing in the place e children can't put their feet up on." It ow a radical thing seems to be happening. People have started to live in the living room. With the greatest amount of bravura. It has to do with that awful word MESSY. You can't do that in here it's too "messy" is being changed to doing it right in the living om. With the result that everything is somewhat less of a mess. For instance, a card table used to come out of a hall closet nightly, d the shoving back and pushing around of the rest of the furniture made the strangest, most ungainly situations. Ugly impromptu. ow the card table has come out to stay out. Not the same old dark brown one with the leg that knuckled under, but a splendid new e. Canary yellow. Four pink-seated bamboo chairs belong to it. And they all belong to the room.

s part of a feeling that lugging in anything—a jigsaw puzzle, the drums, the ork bench even—and lugging it out again is silly. Even worse is to have to do e puzzle in the bedroom or beat the drums in the basement or work, lonely as a oud, in a musty corner of the garage. All the things people do are getting equal portunity now in the living room. Along with all the things that generate charm, ey are moving into the composition. And the Meissen monkey with the shell its ear, the Louise Nevelson, the Battersea boxes take their chances out in e open with everything else. One talented designer says what it calls for is alf discipline, half let-go."

When the inner eye comes across a great explosion of pattern against pattern, or Scotch plaid exploding into stripes, and then some more pattern, and finds this appealing instead of appalling, you would like to know why. Why do some irrational combinations live together as cozily as cup and saucer and others not? It must have something to do with the little known bird of the inner eye. But the difference between a winner and a loser is technique.

hen Someone Who Knows juggles atterned walls and patterned fab-cs and a tiger rug, he confines the e to these main events by erasing l the minor distractions. He lets e wallcovering blot out doors and ut them almost out of sight. Those tle bits of undistinguished wood-ork on a chair, those arms and legs t hidden away, covered with the me material as the chair. He akes the same thing happen to a thing table or a desk or a book-se. Only the meaningful parts and e drama of pattern and pattern ab the eye. Everything you see, you e meant to see. Isn't that all oudini did?

Some people are busy trying to create the illusion of space. Others are moving straight ahead and finding space where it didn't seem to be. A staircase landing doesn't have to be merely boards to tread if it is just large enough to hold a little love seat and a table and a palm tree. This could be the very place to drink a soothing cup of Lapsang Souchong (the tea that tastes like Scotch) or for a small girl to read in while snow falls past the window. Or just a little getaway place that might someday save our sanity.

The eye is more direct than the tongue. It never has had the habit of lying. Not even socially. Searching out the truth of a room in a friend's house, in the White House, in a picture, in a window, it takes in first what it recognizes. Then what it allies with. Then newness. It is sentimental, in quick touch with the auld lang syne of its own childhood. THAT REMINDS me I REMEMBER I ALWAYS LOVED. It is a little self-depreciating: But I never could. Envious: I wish I had it. Curious: How did they do it? Reflective: I think I know. Daring: Do it I will.

New again: FRENCH COUNTRY FURNITURE

Color, comfort, and fine craftsmanship always seem new with each new guise they take, no matter how venerable their antecedents. Among the newest, freshest candidates for today's rooms are furniture designs that had their genesis a few centuries ago in the northern French province of Normandy. Purely regional or "country" furniture, it was made for manors and farmhouses, rather than châteaux, and some was brought across the Atlantic by early settlers in French Canada. Although quite different in flavor from the courtly ébénisterie of Louis XV and Louis XVI, each piece had its own opulence—a richness achieved by intricate carving, elegant brasses, and the painstaking working and finishing of the wood—walnut, oak, cherry, or ash. Yet many designs had the easy informality suggested by painted finishes (including today's popular white) and contrasting fabrics (the backs of chairs were often upholstered in a different pattern than the fronts). This fall a series of these comfortably opulent designs will be available in the new Normandy collection of furniture by Baker, with upholstery fabrics specially developed for them by Brunschwig & Fils in contemporary as well as traditional colorings. To prove their affinity with the mood of today, we have combined them here and on the next two pages with lively modern paintings from the Richard Feigen Gallery.

HOW TO TURN EVERYTHING INTO GOLD

The classic art of gilding

We are living in an age that seems precisely right for a revival of gold and silver furnishings. Shine is important in decorating today: tables of polished brass and aluminum, mirrors and mirrored bibelots, silvery lamps of mercury glass, metallic curios and sculpture. And now, amateur craftsmen can learn, perhaps for the first time ever, how to create metallic finishes alchemists failed at and goldsmiths of the past could not dream of affording for their own houses. The methods have been developed by Isabel O'Neil, the master craftsman who has shared her Fantasy Finish lessons with H&G readers and whose student-gilders' work gleams on these pages.

The classic art of gilding consists of overlaying a surface with a thin coat of true gold. You can also gild with paint containing gold-colored pigment or with pastes made of metallic powders and wax; but pretty and simple as these materials are, they have no intrinsic value and in time lose their luster. The enduring gilding method used on Renaissance, Baroque, Rococo, Directoire, Regency, and Empire furnishings (and still used by those rare master gilders of today who adorn capitol domes and church spires) is the classic method of applying to a sized, adhesive surface an overlay of gold or silver leaf first pressed and beaten until it is gossamer thin. If the metal is burnished (a technique that will be described in a future issue), it acquires a more sparkling glitter than the low gleam of matte leaf.

Mrs. O'Neil teaches the classic procedure, but she has also developed ways to simulate an antique patina and to achieve unusual contemporary effects through brushed-on color or chemically induced oxidation. To help novices acquire self-confidence she likes to start them with common metals such as aluminum leaf or Dutch metal, a copper alloy that resembles gold, but is one-fourth as costly. These give lavish and lasting effects, and combine beautifully with precious leaf, but are less demanding of patience and pocket than true gold and silver.

An exhibition of work by Mrs. O'Neil's students, including the examples on these pages, will be on view at her studio workshop, 210 East Fifty-second Street, New York City, from September 25 to 29. For sources of gilding supplies and for information on ordering complete step-by-step instructions, please turn to page 266.

Modern air conditioning h long since canceled the functional r son d'être of the Southwest's indi nous architecture—the Spanish s tlers' thick-walled adobe houses ope ing to interior patios, and the ea Texans' frame houses surrounded porches with low sloping roofs. But t shapes that emerged from these effo to escape the blazing, baking sun le themselves readily to modern adap tion, as architect Frank D. Welch h proved in the house he designed Dallas for Mr. and Mrs. John Fie and their three young sons. In t Texas tradition, it is essentially a on story house, built of brick rather tha wood, with porches front and ba rather than on all four sides. And a the main ground floor rooms and th one upstairs bedroom open to a spe tacular two-story space in the center the house—a garden room, windo less, but spanned by four 19-foot-lon skylights that flood it with light.

"We told our architect we wante all the light he could give us," say Mrs. Field. "We had lived in an ol fashioned house with small rooms an we wanted openness. Yet we neede wall space for the pictures and thing I'm always collecting." (Continued dining room and living room get light from all four sides

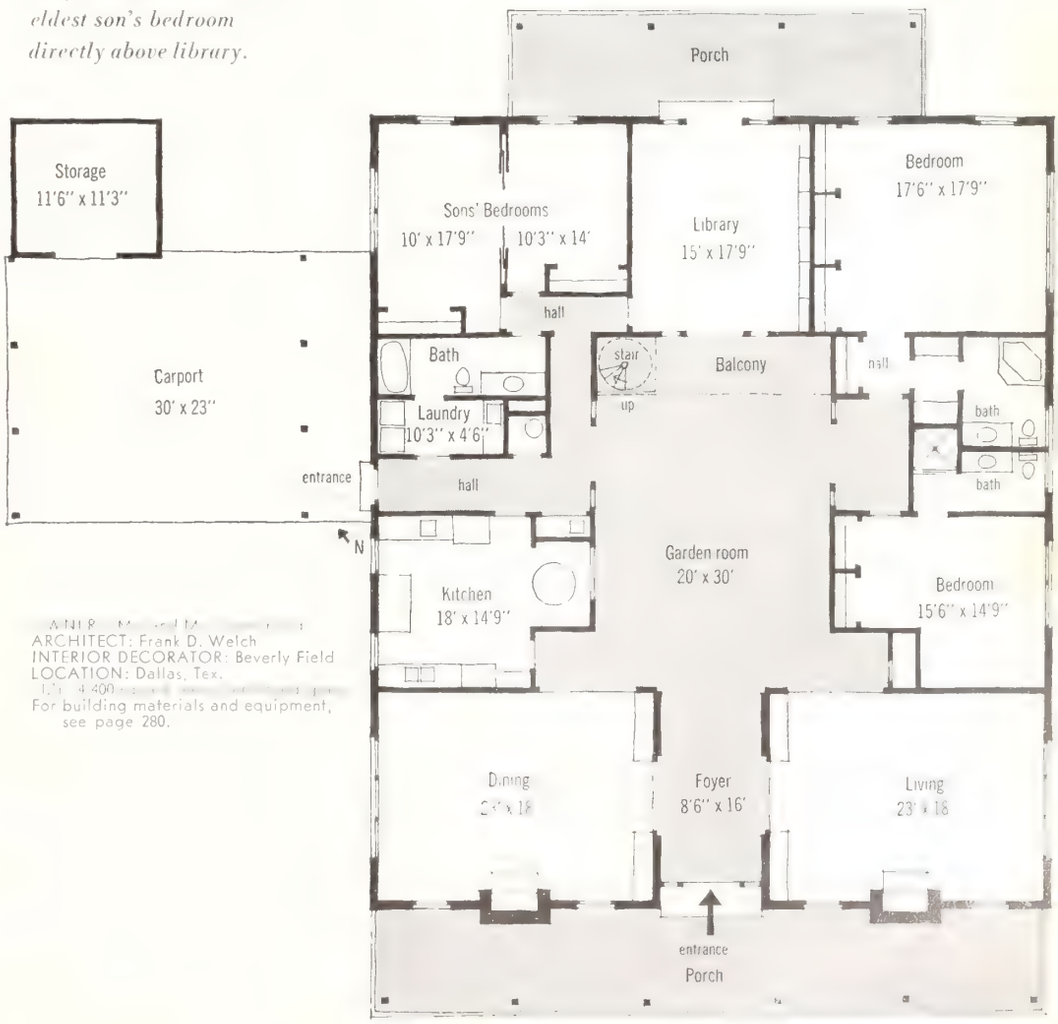
"Most of all I wanted a house that would feel summer-like all through the year, one where I would always be able to see greenery," says Beverly Field, who juggles her work as an interior designer around the busy schedules of her husband, a rancher and state legislator, and the boys, now seven, eight, and eleven. Since the family moves between the ranch, which is in Ponder, Tex., an apartment in Austin, and the house in Dallas, there is little time for such things as the careful nurturing of plants. "That is what has been so marvelous about the garden room," Mrs. Field explains; "we moved in full-grown trees and plants that gave us instant landscaping and there are no mosquitoes to battle nor weeding to do." Yet walking into the garden room feels like stepping outdoors, because all surfaces are covered with exterior materials—brick on the floor, vertical wood siding on the walls—which also make for easy upkeep.

In decorating the rooms, Mrs. Field continued her quest for light. The French doors that open to the front and back porches are curtained only part way up so that nearby trees are always in sight. There are no curtains at the floor-to-ceiling, double-hung windows—only louvered shutters to control the sunlight. Most of the walls are painted white for brightness and also to provide a neutral background for the vivid paintings, the gaily hued furnishings, and the forty flashing mirrors that Mrs. Field collects, along with armoires, candlesticks, and tôle tea canisters.

At night, the lighting is subdued. Recessed ceiling spotlights are placed strategically throughout the house, but whenever possible Mrs. Field prefers candlelight. "My favorite way to entertain," she says, "is by moonlight." When the moon is high, so much light comes through the skylights and is intensified by the white walls that clusters of candles in holders 2 to 6 feet tall are all the illumination needed for the tables for six she sets up in the garden room.



At the front of the house, soaring chimneys of putty colored brick like the walls balance broad slope of hip roof.

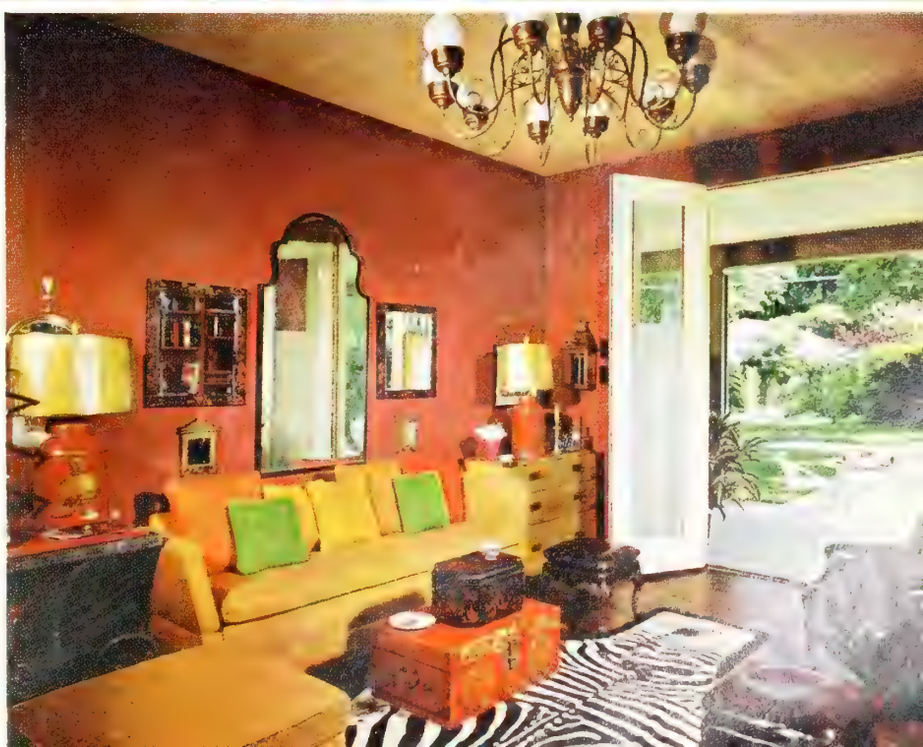
Mr. Field's bedroom is a mélange of patterns in black and white since he stipulated that he did not want "all that color that's in the rest of the house." Instead of polishing up the sleigh-like brass bed, Mrs. Field left it with its time acquired patina. One of her nine armoires serves here as a bookcase.

The twin bedrooms of the two youngest boys are separated by a high, wide, sliding door usually left open during the day to give them one large playroom. But it can always be closed for privacy during study time or sulks.



In Mrs. Field's bedroom bright green carpeting blends together a profusion of patterns, shapes, and styles. The mirrored armoire—her largest—she spied in a New York department store Christmas window. The brass and iron bed was a $35 junk store find.

What a good TREE can do for you

As a landscape ornament, a tree is unique. Sometimes, as in leafless winter or in the isolation of great age, a tree does as much for the human spirit—let alone the landscape—as a magnificent sculpture. But trees have utilitarian uses, too. They can inspire a charming setting for your house. They can screen you from passersby, or from neighboring houses. They can modify in many ways the purely structural aspects of your house and grounds. Trees, even one handsome tree, opposite page, can unify and bring into sharp focus an entire garden. And, being living organisms, trees can contribute the variety and fascination of seasonal change to their allotted tasks. In addition, the choice of habiliments in the species available for garden use is so extensive—bright flowers, colorful fruit and foliage, textured bark, and patterned winter twigs—that almost any decorative purpose possible to living plants can be satisfied. But when it comes to a specific use, some trees are more efficient or appropriate or durable than others. On these pages are a few examples of utilitarian purposes that can be well served by suitable species. Other uses, other species would form equally serviceable partnerships. It is necessary only to fit the tree to the use. (Continued on page 274)

ALICE BAILEY

To form a setting for your house, above, take advantage of existing trees where you can as background for the carefully chosen "garden" trees that can give the building an easy relationship to the site. The A. Ray Goldsbys, Chappaqua, N. Y., turned naturally to the matchless native dogwoods.

To achieve a sense of privacy, above left, without actually building a fence or blocking the view, plant a weeping willow. Such a friendly two-way screen obscures traffic from house, house from passersby. The O. Telfair Smiths of Oyster Bay, N. Y., added a small duck pond to mirror the swinging branches.

To soften structural lines, left, wherever they need modification or embellishment, place a tree strategically. Ben Blackburn, at "Willowood" in Gladstone, N. J., chose the feathery foliage of honey-locust to relieve the finely proportioned but plain board walls of his venerable barn.

To bring a whole garden into focus, opposite page, splurge on a single virtuoso performer such as the single-trunk birch in the Thompson Memorial Rock Garden of the N. Y. Botanical Garden. If you cannot afford a mature specimen (it may cost as much as a second automobile), wait for a smaller and less expensive one to grow up (it will grow at least as fast as your children). For other focal-point trees with different growth rates and different prices, see the list on page 274.

New party scene: the kitchen

Some of the best parties end up in the kitchen. Guests seem to gravitate naturally toward its friendly atmosphere for a serious chat, a late-late snack, or a last drink. So it seems just as natural to take advantage of the kitchen's welcoming air for a relaxed and wonderful party that also starts there. Kitchens have become as attractive as any room in the house, full of warmth and personality. Everybody loves to watch the cook, or to cook and help themselves, a situation that puts people at ease immediately. A kitchen party can be anything from a speedy snack to a sit-down dinner. It can be as posh as the black-tie supper party we attended at Amy Vanderbilt's New York apartment, below—or as simple as a well-organized raid on the refrigerator. But whether it is simple or elaborate, it takes good organization: an easy-to-serve menu, a buffet set up so there is only one way to progress, that is, smoothly. And to avoid chaos, on-the-spot cooking, self-serving, and eating should all be confined, by canny forethought, to a limited area. A kitchen party also requires imagination: whimsey, flowers, grace notes, loving details. It is the unexpected contrasts that delight. Your best crystal on a butcher-block table. A brilliant crimson centerpiece of radishes. A kitchen counter swathed in linen and candle-lit. A buffet arranged in the best party tradition on the kitchen stove.

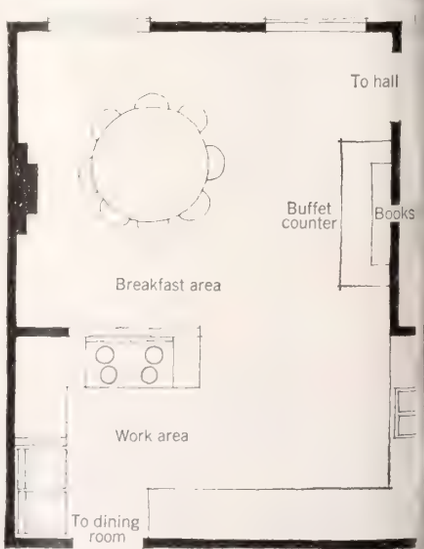
Black-tie supper



The breakfast area in Amy Vanderbilt's two-part kitchen, below right, was specially planned for the easy-going little dinner parties she loves to give. A homey place with white brick walls, a nineteenth-century chandelier, terra-cotta tile floors, and countertops of soft blue ceramic tile, the room makes a charming background for relaxed entertaining. Recently, for an after-theatre supper, she arranged the buffet, opposite page, on a kitchen counter under a shelf of cook books. She left the blue tiles bare, but borrowed a cat's portrait from the kitchen wall and china owls from the living room, used her grandmother's crystal cake stands to hold flowers, and added a Victorian silver and crystal cruet stand just because it was pretty. The first course, linguine al pesto, was served at the table, then guests helped themselves to galantine of capon, gnocchi, Lebanese salad, Old French Cake, brandied Edam, and a big platter of dried fruits and nuts from the buffet. Recipes for all but the galantine are in Amy Vanderbilt's Complete Cook Book. The kitchen was planned by designer Beverly Reitz.

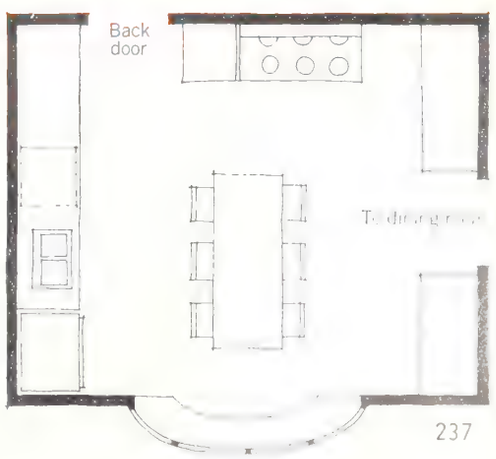
Ready-when-you-are breakfast

Whether house guests drift down to Sunday morning breakfast one at a time or descend en masse, they can take care of themselves in the kitchen, above, without a where-do-you-hide-it search for bowls, glasses, and such. On the round dining table brightly set with plaid cloth, plaid dishes, stands a mouth-watering centerpiece composed of a bowl of croissants on a tray ringed with brioches. A matching cloth covers the kitchen counter laden with a hearty help-yourself breakfast in full-dress trappings: coffee and tea in silver pots, chipped beef steaming in a handsome silver server, sausages on a Hotray, and a bowl of eggs for enterprising guests who want to cook their own.

Do-it-yourself sandwich supper

A Sunday night sandwich-making spree can be kept under happy control if everything to the last knife and corkscrew is prettily laid out in one corner of the kitchen. To give this one a festive air (and incidentally conserve counter space), part of the supper doubles as wall decoration: a basket bouquet of raw vegetables, another basket of napkins and silver, over half-a-dozen fascoes of wine. On the counter below is a toaster grill on which creative cooks can make croustades.

To serve the guests as a work center, a wheel-about butcher-block table is pulled out from its home under the counter (see plan, right) so that it will be accessible from both sides. Each guest loads his little tray-plate, then totes it off to the dining room.



Eat-and-run luncheon

A big restaurant-style range in a country kitchen, right, stands in for a hot table where guests can help themselves before they tear back to the auction. A giant casserole bubbles away (paradoxically) with a petite marmite. Apples baked in wine glaze in the salamander above, while the salad waits on one nearby counter and the coffee perks on another. To enjoy it all, the assembled company can sit down farmhouse-style at the kitchen table, above, covered for the occasion with a rough-textured handwoven cloth. In lieu of bread and butter plates, individual breadboards hold little loaves fresh from the oven, and each guest has his own cork-topped carafe of wine. The soup bowls are mini versions of the casserole on the stove.

H&G DESIGNS

THE LIVE-IN ROOM

Ever since the family room has become an attractive fact of American life, builders have been incorporating it in their built-for-sale houses. Too often, however, the space for it has been stolen from the kitchen, yet the family room itself has been far too small to serve all the purposes for which it was intended. H&G is convinced that a far better use of the space would be to open up the two rooms into one big flexible area that could become more livable, more satisfying than the sum of its parts. Accordingly we worked very closely with Scholz Homes, Inc., on the design of the Mark 67 model house in Toledo, Ohio, and they agreed to convert the space originally earmarked for kitchen and family room into one large tripart room. We call it the "live-in" room because it embraces all the lively activities for which the average family room is rarely adequate: informal entertaining; making and listening to music; watching slides; playing games; managing household affairs; working at crafts and collections. In no way a substitute for either living room or dining room, our live-in room includes all the facilities for cooking and cook watching, and lends itself to a variety of ways of serving food. The furniture is easy to rearrange to suit the needs of the moment, and each rearrangement looks as if the room has been planned that way. All the materials are designed for painless upkeep, and comfort and lack of care are further bolstered by such behind-the-scene equipment as year-round air-conditioning and a central vacuum-cleaning system. The Mark 67 house that includes the live-in room will be available nationally from Scholz builder-dealers.

Although the wide framing arch creates a pleasant psychological boundary between the kitchen and the rest of the room, the areas are closely related visually by the repetition of materials—the ceramic tiles, striped window shade, walnut-grained cabinets and Spanish-tile-patterned vinyl floor. DRINKS TO SERVE AFTER DINNER

By Philip S. Brown

After-dinner drinking divides itself naturally into two separate and distinct periods: right-after-dinner and long-after-dinner. For right-after-dinner, brandy of one sort or another is by far the most popular libation, with a wide variety of liqueurs contending for the second position. In times past, after the ladies had retired to the withdrawing room, the gentlemen of the party would consume prodigious quantities of Port or Madeira with their cigars. (The ladies, one suspects, had their cordials and liqueurs at this point, but such activities on their parts were seldom, if ever, mentioned.) Today, the sexes have their post-prandial drinks together, thank goodness, and Port and Madeira are still in excellent repute.

If you invest in an assortment of liqueurs and brandies—and that can mean a sizable outlay—you will find that several of them will find almost no takers, while others will have to be replaced fairly often. Cognac will probably prove to be your best seller, followed by Bénédictine, Drambuie, and a coffee-flavored liqueur. White fruit brandies such as Framboise, Fraises, Eau de Vie de Poire, and Mirabelle, have their own devotees, but such exotic items as Anisette, Crème de Cacao, Crème de Violette (also called Parfait Amour), Kümmel, Maraschino, and so on, will sit in the liquor cabinet year in and year out. It's a pity, for all of them, although little known, have merit. They may, however, be used to advantage in mixed drinks, and your reputation as a host will be greatly enhanced when you produce new types of after-dinner cocktails.

Remember that most people are in somewhat of a rut as far as after-dinner drinks go, and when given a choice, they will invariably choose whatever they are used to drinking. In order to widen their horizons, the thing to do is to present whatever drink you have chosen as though it were another course. Then, if some member of the party doesn't like your masterpiece, he can always name his choice. Chances are there will be no substitutions.

Coffees

As coffee is nearly always served at the end of the meal, it is easy to provide one of the various liquor-flavored varieties. The heat of the coffee brings out all the bouquet of the added spirit, and these drinks have an especially warming effect.

CAFÉ ROYAL

Place a teaspoon over a demitasse cup of hot strong coffee, put a lump of sugar in it, and fill with Cognac. Light it, and when the flames begin to die, pour the contents of the spoon into the coffee. You can omit the sugar, if you like, and simply light a spoonful of Cognac.

CAFÉ BRÛLOT

A little more of a production, but a spectacular one. In the blazer of a chafing dish, put 6 lumps of sugar, 6 jiggers of Cognac, 2 broken sticks of cinnamon, a twist of lemon peel, 2 twists of orange peel, and a dozen cloves. Heat gently, stirring. When well-warmed, light the Cognac and let it burn for about a minute. Slowly pour in 1½ cups of hot, strong coffee, then ladle into demitasse cups.

IRISH COFFEE

You need a good-sized wineglass or stemmed goblet for this. Rinse it out with very hot water, then put in a teaspoon of sugar, a jigger of Irish whiskey, and nearly fill with very hot, strong black coffee. Top with a spoonful of whipped cream or, if you prefer, float on heavy cream, unwhipped.

(These coffee drinks may also be made with almost any liquor or liqueur. Jamaica rum is excellent, as are Chartreuse, Kahlúa, Crème de Cacao, Strega, Bénédictine, and other liqueurs. The coffee must be very hot and very strong. The rest is up to you.)

Frappés

Frappés may be made of any liqueur (or liquor, for that matter), the most usual, perhaps, being Crème de Menthe. There are three

Chafing Dish Cook Book

By Ruth Conrad Bateman

Cooking in a chafing dish is a convivial way to entertain. Instead of spending your time dashing nervously from living room to kitchen to check on the progress of the meal, you can relax with your guests, and they in turn have the pleasure of watching and anticipating the food being prepared before their eyes. As the actual cooking gives every appearance of being a breeze, your guests may well marvel at the way you can manage to whip up a main course or dessert with just a few minutes work. The secret, of course, is before-the-party preparation and organization. All the messy, time-consuming details of peeling, chopping, marinating, measuring, and any necessary precooking have been done off-stage, and everything you need arranged in bowls and dishes.

Common sense will tell you what can and cannot be successfully prepared in a chafing dish. Reserve it for foods that cook quickly and need little fussing over—shellfish, small tender pieces of chicken, veal, beef, chicken livers, and liver, and those vegetables that, as the Chinese have proved, keep their flavor, color, and texture when swiftly sautéed over brisk heat—asparagus, green beans, celery, baby carrots, zucchini, and mushrooms. Previously cooked chicken, turkey, beef, ham, and game can make a second showing re-heated in a tasty sauce. Such culinary retreads tend to toughen if overcooked, but emerge from the gentle warmth of a chafing dish as fresh and as appetizing as the first time around. On the other hand, it is a sheer waste of fuel to try to cook stews or fricassees from scratch in a chafing dish, although an ideal way for keeping them warm for a large buffet party is in the blazer set over the water pan, which acts as a double boiler (this method is also recommended for any creamy foods or sauces). Undoubtedly, the most effective of all foods cooked in a chafing dish are the flamed desserts, which make a splendid, spectacular end to a dinner party.

THE CHAFING DISH AND ITS USES

There are several styles of chafing dishes on the market—the traditional copper (lined with silver or tin), silver, lustrous stainless steel, chrome, or aluminum. They vary in size, design, shape, and price, but all true chafing dishes (not simply casserole warmers) have these components in common: a blazer or inner cooking pan with lid; an outer or water pan (called a bain-marie) that the blazer rests in for longer, slower cooking; a stand in which these pans fit; and a burner. The heat may be supplied by one or more alcohol lamps, Sterno or canned alcohol in various sizes, or electricity. Liquid alcohol is available in drug, hardware, or paint stores, and Sterno in supermarkets everywhere. Since the size and shape of pans vary, as well as the amount of heat produced by different units, cooking times can only be given as approximate. Before using the chafing dish, read the manufacturer's instructions, and follow them. Then experiment with the chafing dish to get exact timing before you cook in front of guests.

In the following recipes, you will find units other than the two-pan chafing dish which are also included in chafing dish cookery. The deep earthenware soup unit or petite marmite can be used on the chafing dish base or its own burner. The shallow, wide suzette pan designed especially for flaming crêpes is suitable for many fruit desserts and other dishes such as tournedos flambés which need a broad surface for quick, fast sautéing or browning. The earthenware caquelot with burner created for Swiss fondue and the small metal pan for fondue Bourguignonne also adapt for similar party dishes in which the guests participate in the cooking.

Standard Procedures for Chafing Dish Cooking

Make sure that the wick (usually asbestos) of an alcohol burner is long and properly adjusted, or the cotton or fiber properly packed. Fill burner with enough alcohol to saturate wick or fiber (but never more than ⅔ full) and wipe up any outside spillage with a dry cloth. This amount of fuel should last several hours, but if more is needed, cool the burner before refilling. Check extra supplies of alcohol or Sterno beforehand so you won't run out in the middle of a party.

Learn by experimentation and practice how to adjust the size of the flame by moving the controls most units have.

Think through your recipe and organize the steps in your mind so the actual cooking can progress with no hitches. Prepare any foods or sauces that need precooking; have all chopping, peeling, and measuring done, and everything arranged within arm's reach.

When using the blazer pan for the actual cooking, preheat over full flame at first. Some manufacturers recommend that you preheat the empty blazer for 10 minutes, others suggest preheating it with the butter or fat used in the recipe.

To avoid nicks and scratches on the cooking surface of the dish, use wooden forks and spoons, a rubber spatula, or a small wire whisk to stir and blend in foods. Add the ingredients little by little, so as not to overpower the burner. Remember the heat is less intense than that of a kitchen range.

To keep finished foods warm or to reheat foods, place blazer in water pan filled with about 1 cup of hot water. Reduce flame to keep water simmering. Keep hot appetizers and snacks warm in the water pan of the chafing dish placed dry over a small flame.

To flame foods successfully, use a high-proof cognac, brandy, or rum. Warm it first in a small, long-handled pan, or deep ladle over very low heat. Be sure the food to be flamed is very hot. Pour warmed brandy on top and avert your face as you light it with a long fireplace match. Spoon the flaming liquor over the food until the flames die and the alcohol has burned away, leaving only the lingering flavor behind.

To keep your chafing dish in good condition, wash it with mild detergent or soap after each use and dry well. Keep wooden handles and knobs out of water. Avoid scouring with harsh abrasives which may damage the lining, cause foods to stick, and ruin the soft, lustrous finish. And, naturally, keep copper and all metal parts burnished and shining by frequent polishings with a good metal and copper cleaner.

APPETIZERS

Lion's Head Crab Balls

Pork, crab meat, and ginger are combined in an unforgettable adaptation of the famous old Chinese recipe, Lion's Head.

½ pound ground lean pork
½ pound cooked crab meat, minced
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 green onion, minced
1 tablespoon grated, peeled fresh ginger root
½ small clove garlic, crushed or minced
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ cup finely chopped fresh or canned water chestnuts
½ teaspoon salt
Flour
3-4 tablespoons peanut oil

Combine all ingredients except flour and oil. Mix thoroughly and shape into small walnut-size balls. Roll lightly in flour. Heat half the oil in blazer placed directly over alcohol burner until very hot. Add crab balls, a few at a time, leaving room to shake and turn. Cook gently until browned, shaking pan frequently to keep balls round. Use a wooden spoon to help turn them. This takes a little time, so don't rush it. Add and heat oil as needed. When all balls are browned, drain pan. Wipe blazer with paper towels and set it in hot water pan over heat. Return crab balls to dish and serve hot with cocktail picks. Makes about 2½ dozen balls.

Ginny Sausages

1 tablespoon butter
1 pound pork link sausages (part may be small smoked links)
3 tablespoons gin

Brush blazer with butter and place directly over burner. Prick sausages and place in pan. Add 2 tablespoons gin; cover and heat until sausages are plump, about 5 minutes. Remove cover and cook, turning often, until most of gin has been absorbed and sausages are browned. Pour rest of gin over sausages and flame. Serve when flames die.

To serve as appetizer, cut sausages into bite-size chunks. Spear with picks and keep hot in outer water pan placed dry over very low flame.

Mushrooms Bourguignon

¼ cup butter
1 clove garlic
2 minced shallots or green onions
1 pound medium-size (1") mushrooms
1 cup red Burgundy
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Generous dash ground mace
Salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste

Melt butter in blazer over direct heat. Crush or squash garlic and add to butter with shallots; let steep a few minutes. Trim mushrooms and wipe with damp paper towels. Add to butter and shake pan vigorously. Add wine, parsley, and mace; simmer until mushrooms are crisp-tender, 5-10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Serve from chafing dish as a hot appetizer with cocktail picks. Or, thicken sauce with 1 teaspoon arrowroot moistened with a little wine or water and serve with steaks or chops.

Half-shell Shrimp, Jalisco

Fresh shrimp marinated in lime juice and salt, then quickly sautéed is a popular dish in tropical Mexico. They make marvelous appetizers for informal parties and are delicious finger food, but messy, as they are picked up by the tail. So furnish lots of paper napkins.

1 pound raw jumbo shrimp (about 16)
5 limes
2 teaspoons salt (coarse Kosher or sea salt, if available)
2 tablespoons mild salad oil

Trim and split shrimp in half lengthwise through the shell with sharp knife, leaving a fan of tail on each half. Rinse out dark vein; blot shrimp dry. Sprinkle cut side generously with juice of 2-3 limes and salt. Cover and refrigerate for several hours. Remove and leave at room temperature for a little while to warm up before cooking. Heat oil in blazer of large chafing dish or in skillet placed directly over heat. Divide shrimp into 2 or 3 batches and put in just enough shrimp, cut-side down, to cover bottom of pan. Cook, stirring often, until shells are pink and shrimp flesh is white and tinged with brown, about 5-7 minutes. Serve hot on small plates with wedges of remaining limes.

Bagna Cauda

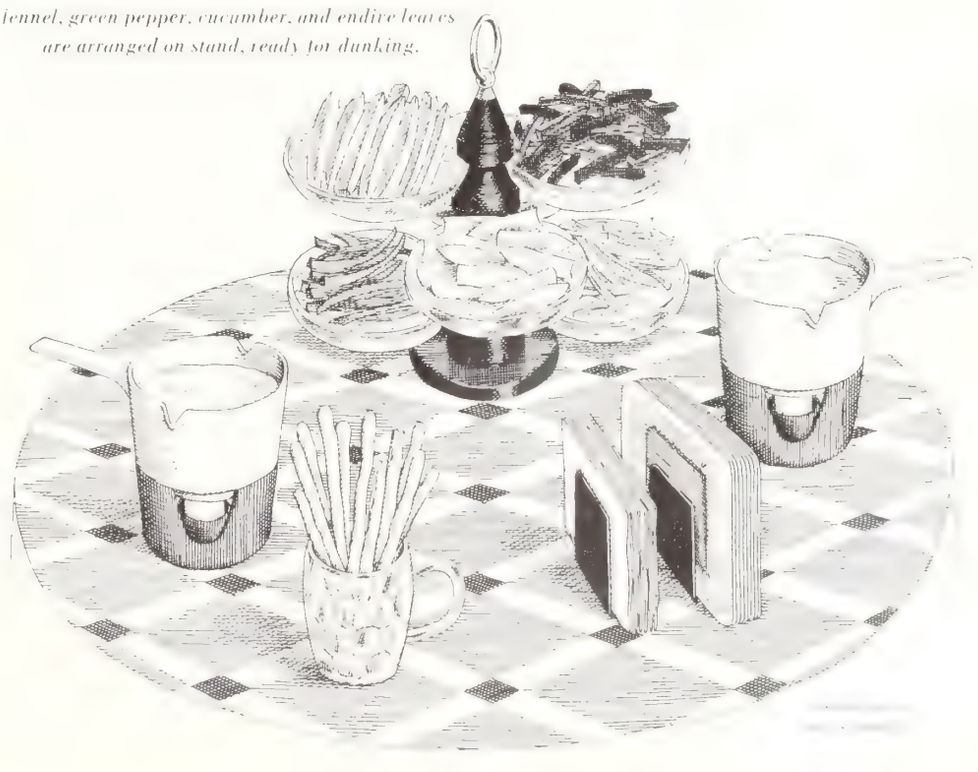
This hot bath for cold vegetables, highly redolent of garlic and anchovies, is gutsy in flavor and great with drinks.

¾ cup butter
½ cup olive oil
6 cloves garlic, pressed
2 (2-ounce) cans flat anchovy filets, minced
Salt, freshly ground pepper

Combine butter, oil, and garlic in a small chafing dish or fondue pan. Heat gently 10-15 minutes, [illegible] anchovies are completely blended into sauce. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground pepper. Keep hot and stir occasionally to keep sauce well blended.

Serve with a basket of thin bread sticks [illegible] and bowls of raw vegetables—celery hearts, seeded red pepper strips, carrot sticks, strips of fennel, peeled cucumber sticks, and separated endive leaves for dipping in the sauce. Supply small plates and plenty of paper cocktail napkins.

Curry Cocktail Almonds



Heat ¼ cup butter in blazer over direct heat. Add 2 cups blanched almonds and cook, stirring often with wooden spoon, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle liberally with curry powder and cook until nuts are a rich tawny gold, about 10 minutes longer. Fish out a hot almond and break or cut it to test if it is completely, but lightly, roasted all the way through. Drain on paper towels and sprinkle while hot with coarse salt (Kosher or sea salt if available). To serve in chafing dish, place salted almonds in the dry outer or water pan over a very low flame.

Note: Walnuts, almonds, pecans, or filberts may also be used with any of the following seasonings: chili powder, ginger, mustard, all-spice, Beau Monde.

Spicy Walnuts

Heat ¼ cup butter and 1 clove minced garlic in blazer over direct heat. Add 2 cups walnut halves and cook, stirring often with wooden spoon, until richly toasted, 15-20 minutes. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and a few dashes liquid hot pepper sauce. Stir well, then drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with coarse salt while hot. Serve at once in a bowl or in dry outer pan of chafing dish placed over a very low flame so the walnuts just keep warm.

For cocktail party sustenance, Bagna Cauda, a spicy anchovy dip, stays piping hot in enameled cast-iron sauce pots on candle-warmer bases. Slim bread sticks, pieces of carrot, fennel, green pepper, cucumber, and endive leaves are arranged on stand, ready for dunking.

PASTA, VEGETABLES, EGGS

Fettuccine alla Romana

A chafing dish is perfect for this impressive, yet simple, dish which demands last-minute cooking. For perfect flavor, use unsalted butter, freshly grated Parmesan cheese, and the best quality egg noodles (or better yet, make your own pasta dough). Serve either as a separate course, or as an accompaniment to a delicate chicken or veal dish, such as paupiettes of veal or chicken breasts Milanese.

1 pound box fettuccine (½" noodles)
½ pound unsalted butter
1½ cups freshly grated Parmesan cheese
¾ cup heavy cream
Grated Parmesan cheese, freshly ground white pepper (optional)

Drop noodles into a large pot of boiling salted water. Boil furiously until they are cooked al dente, or tender but still slightly firm to the bite. Meanwhile, melt butter in blazer over hot water. Drain noodles into colander and shake vigorously to remove water. Do not rinse. Pour noodles into hot butter and toss gently with a fork and spoon. Add cheese, lift and toss until noodles are coated. Add cream and toss again until cream is hot and blended through. Sprinkle with more grated Parmesan if you like and a little freshly ground white pepper. Serves 4.

Scrambled Eggs Escoffier

This Escoffier method of scrambling eggs may be varied by adding sautéed chicken livers or mushrooms, smoked salmon, ham or bacon bits, foie gras, anchovy paste, grated cheese, sour cream, or fresh chopped herbs.

6 tablespoons butter
6 eggs
½ cup heavy cream
Salt, freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon fines herbes (equal parts chopped parsley, chives, tarragon, or chervil)

Heat 3 tablespoons butter in blazer over direct flame. Beat eggs lightly, stir in cream, and season with salt, a few grindings of pepper, and the herbs. Pour into blazer and set over hot water pan. Cook, stirring occasionally with a wooden spoon in long strokes across the pan, not around and around, until the eggs are lightly cooked, but still soft and moist. Cut up the remaining 3 tablespoons butter and stir into the eggs. Serve with brioche or toast. Serves 4.

Potatoes Parmesan

¼ cup butter
1 clove garlic, split
1 pound potatoes, cooked in jackets
Salt, Lawry's seasoned pepper, nutmeg to taste
1 cup heavy cream
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Cooked bacon, crumbled (optional)

Heat butter with garlic in blazer over direct heat. Peel and cube potatoes while hot. Remove garlic and add potatoes to butter. Mix gently. Season with salt, seasoned pepper, and nutmeg. Pour in cream and sprinkle with cheese. Stir lightly. Place blazer over water pan. Cover and cook until most of the cream has been absorbed, stirring occasionally. Sprinkle the top with seasoned pepper and crisp bacon if you wish. Serves 4-6.

Bean-Walnut Sauté

This chafing dish version of the Chinese stir-fry method preserves the texture and flavor of quick-cooking vegetables.

½ cup walnut halves
1 tablespoon butter, melted
Salt, Chinese Five Spices
1 pound tender young green beans
2 tablespoons peanut or corn oil
½ cup hot chicken stock or water

Before serving time, put the walnuts in a pan with the melted butter and toast in a 325° oven until crisp and golden brown, about 15-20 minutes. Sprinkle with salt and Chinese Five Spices to taste. Trim and string the green beans. Slice on a deep slant into 1" pieces. Heat the oil in blazer over direct heat until sizzling. Add the beans. Cook and stir until they are a shiny deep green. Pour in the hot stock and season with about ½ teaspoon salt and a dash of the Chinese Five Spices. Cover and cook until beans are crisp-tender and most of the liquid absorbed. Top with walnuts. Serves 3-4.

Asparagus Sauté

Bias-cut asparagus and cook in the same way until crisp-tender, a little more than 5 minutes. Top with sliced toasted almonds or filberts.

FISH AND SHELLFISH

Fish Fondue Bourguignonne

Neither a fondue nor from Burgundy, this cook it yourself dish has become a party favorite. Shrimp and cubed swordfish with appropriate sauces make an interesting switch from the beef tenderloin used in the original recipe.

1 pound medium shrimp, peeled and deveined
1 pound swordfish steaks, cut into 1" cubes
Salad oil, butter
Sauce Rémoulade, Sashimi Sauce, Dill Sauce

Put the prepared shrimp and swordfish on a large serving platter with sprays of watercress and parsley as garnish. When you are ready to cook, arrange on the buffet table a heatproof tray holding the fondue Bourguignonne set or chafing dish, the fish platter, and another tray with the sauces and fondue forks. Measure out enough oil and butter, in equal proportions, to fill the fondue pan to 1½" depth. Heat oil and butter in a saucepan over gas or electric burner until sizzling hot. Pour mixture into fondue pan and set over alcohol burner. Each guest spears a shrimp or cube of swordfish with a long fondue fork or metal skewer and cooks it in the hot fat until done. This only takes a minute or so. The cooked food is then transferred from the hot fondue fork to a plate, speared with an ordinary fork, dipped into the desired sauce, and eaten.

During the cooking, the heat under the fondue pan should be kept high. If the oil cools down, reheat it briefly on the kitchen range. This Fish Fondue Bourguignonne, served with crusty hunks of French bread and a hearty salad Niçoise, is perfect for a cocktail buffet or supper.

Sauce Rémoulade

Mix together 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 chopped hard-cooked egg, 2 tablespoons hot prepared mustard or 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 minced clove garlic, 1 teaspoon dried tarragon, 1 teaspoon anchovy paste, and 1 teaspoon capers.

Sashimi Sauce

Mix together 1 cup shoyu sauce, ½ teaspoon dry mustard blended with 1 tablespoon salad oil, and 1 tablespoon grated, peeled fresh ginger root.

Dill Sauce

Blend together 1 cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and 1 teaspoon chopped chives, 1 teaspoon grated onion, and chopped fresh or dried dill to taste.

Crab or Lobster Newburg

2 cups cooked crab or lobster meat
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup Madeira or dry sherry
1½ cups cream
3 egg yolks
Salt, nutmeg, cayenne pepper to taste

Cut shellfish into bite-size chunks. Heat butter in blazer over direct heat. Sauté shellfish lightly, sprinkle with lemon juice and wine. Heat about 2 minutes. Set blazer in the hot water pan over heat again. Add cream. Heat just to simmering; do not boil. Beat egg yolks lightly and mix with a few spoonfuls of the hot cream. Stir into cream in chafing dish and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens (it should be a light sauce, not thick and heavy). Season with salt, nutmeg, and cayenne. Serve in crisp croustades or patty shells. (Frozen patty shells are now available in many markets.) Serves 4.

Quick Seafood Bisque

The classic French bisque starts with raw seafood and uses the ground-up shells to intensify the flavor and color. For this quick chafing dish soup, the flavor comes from cooked shellfish steeped in milk and cream.

5 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons each: minced parsley, onion, carrot, celery
½ pound cooked crab or lobster meat, coarsely chopped
½ pound cooked shrimp, coarsely chopped
7½-ounce can minced clams
1 cup light cream
3 cups milk (or use part fish stock from cooked seafood)
¼ cup dry white wine
½ teaspoon thyme
¼ cup flour
Salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste
Lemon juice

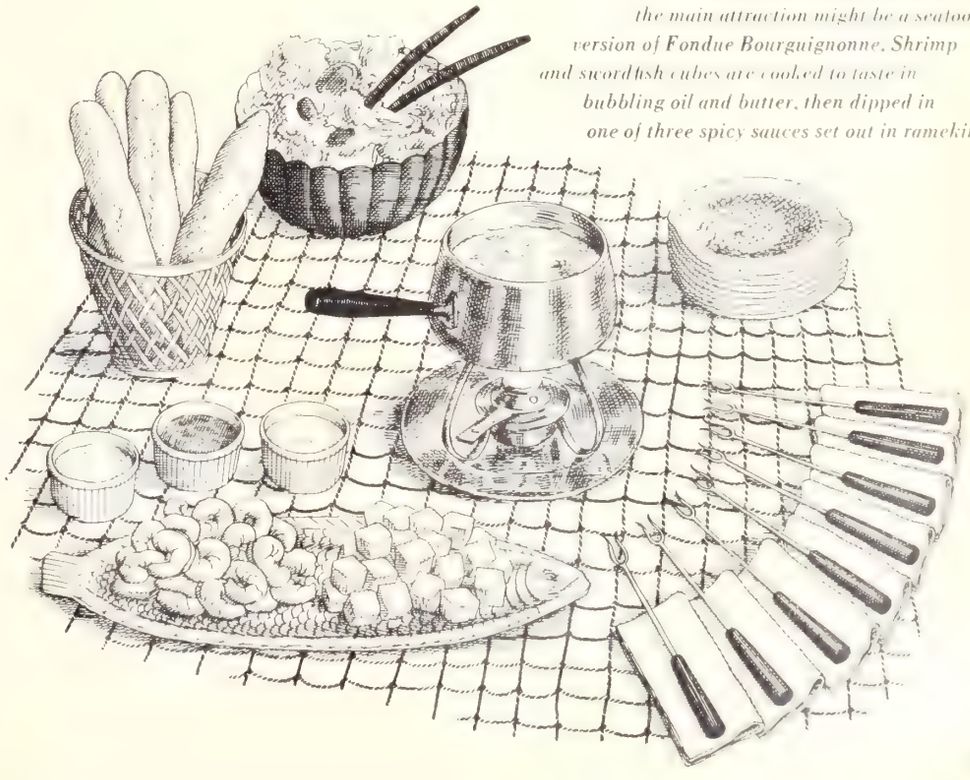
Before making the bisque, heat 2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan and add the minced vegetables. Cook until soft and shiny, but not brown. Add crab, shrimp, clams and clam liquid, cream, milk, wine, and thyme. Steep gently about 5 minutes, but do not boil.

Heat remaining 3 tablespoons butter in chafing dish blazer over direct heat. Blend in flour with wire whisk. Drain milk and cream mixture from seafood into pan, stirring vigorously with whisk. Set blazer in water pan over heat. Cook until sauce is thickened, stirring frequently. Season with salt, freshly ground pepper, and a few grains nutmeg. Purée about half the seafood in a blender for a few seconds (you may purée all of it, but the texture of the soup is more interesting if there are some chunky bits left). Stir purée into soup with remaining seafood. Heat until bubbling. Add a light dash of lemon juice and taste for seasoning. Serve in warm bowls. Serves 6.

Champagne Oysters

Oysters puffed up with butter and champagne are a delicious brunch or supper dish.

1½ pints oysters
16 French rolls
Butter
Salt, freshly ground pepper
Minced parsley
⅓ cup champagne (or dry white wine)



Drain oysters very well in strainer or colander. Cut tops off French rolls; hollow slightly and spread inside with butter. (Butter soft side of tops also, for mopping up the oyster juices.) Heat rolls briefly in 400° oven, or toast lightly under the broiler. Heat ¼ cup butter in blazer over direct heat. Add oysters and baste well with butter. Season with salt and a few grindings of pepper. Add parsley and champagne. Cover and heat until oysters become plump and edges curl, just a few minutes. Pile hot into French rolls; spoon pan juices on top. Serve at once, with champagne, of course. Serves 4-6.

Scallops Sauté Sec

These delicate shellfish need gentle, quick cooking and the simplest of seasonings, or they will be tough and shrunken.

1 pound fresh bay scallops, or frozen, defrosted scallops
Flour
¼ cup butter
Salt, Lawry's seasoned pepper to taste
3-4 tablespoons dry white wine
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Lemon juice
Lemon wedges

Clean scallops and dry well on paper towels. Dust lightly with flour. Heat butter in blazer over direct flame. Add scallops, a few at a time, and cook only until lightly browned on each side, just a few minutes. Sprinkle with salt, seasoned pepper, the white wine, and parsley. Stir with wooden spoon until scallops are well coated and heated through. Add a few drops of lemon juice. Serve immediately with lemon wedges. Serves 3.

For a party at which the guests participate, the main attraction might be a seafood version of Fondue Bourguignonne. Shrimp and swordfish cubes are cooked to taste in bubbling oil and butter, then dipped in one of three spicy sauces set out in ramekins.

Lobster Coconut Curry

To get the true flavor of this tropical curry, it is best to use coconut milk made from fresh grated coconut. Packaged coconut can be substituted, but the flavor will be sweeter.

4 tablespoons butter
2 onions, chopped
1 large clove garlic, minced or crushed
1 tablespoon curry powder, or to taste
¼ cup flour
2½ cups chicken stock
1 cup Coconut Milk
1 teaspoon grated, peeled fresh ginger root, or generous pinch cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon salt, or to taste
Lemon juice
1 pound cooked lobster meat
Boiled rice
Accompaniments: chopped green onion; crumbled crisp bacon; chopped salted peanuts; mango chutney; plumped raisins; spears of fresh pineapple or small whole bananas.

Heat the butter in blazer over direct heat. Add the onion and garlic and cook until soft. Sprinkle with the curry powder and flour. Stir and cook 1-2 minutes. Blend in the stock and coconut milk. Add ginger or cayenne. Cook, stirring often, until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add salt and lemon juice to taste. Cook about 10 minutes. Add lobster and cook another 5 minutes. Set blazer over hot water pan to keep warm. Serve with rice and accompaniments in small bowls. Serves 4-6.

Coconut Milk

Grate 2 cups fresh coconut and pour 1 cup boiling water over it. Let stand 20 minutes. Strain through double thickness of cheesecloth, pressing to obtain as much creamy pulp as possible. For packaged, grated coconut, combine 1 cup coconut with 1 cup milk and simmer over low heat until mixture foams, about 2 minutes. Cool slightly and strain through double thickness of cheesecloth, as for fresh coconut. Refrigerate. Makes 1 cup coconut milk.

Lobster Cantonese

For this dish, the lobster should be cooked in the shell. You may use shelled lobster meat if you wish, but the flavor will not be as rich.

2-pound live lobster or rock lobster tails
3 tablespoons peanut or corn oil
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 teaspoons grated, peeled fresh ginger root
½ pound lean pork, diced
1 cup chicken stock
½ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup chopped green onions and tops

If you are using a live lobster, kill it by plunging a heavy knife through the shell where the head and body meet. Remove and crack claws. Cut lobster crosswise into 2" pieces, removing inedible sac behind eyes and intestinal vein in tail. For lobster tails, cut away thin undershell first, then cut crosswise into sections. Heat oil in blazer over direct heat until sizzling. Add garlic, ginger, and pork. Cook, stirring, until pork turns grayish. Add lobster; cook until shells begin to color. Pour in stock, sugar, and soy sauce. Set pan in hot water pan over heat. Cover and cook about 10 minutes. Moisten cornstarch in a little cold water, then stir into sauce. Cook and stir until sauce is clear and slightly thickened. Sprinkle with chopped green onions. Serve with rice. If you can buy them locally, a handful of the brilliant green Chinese pea pods added during the last 5 minutes of cooking makes a nice contrast with the lobster shells. Serves 4.

MEAT AND POULTRY

Julienne of Veal Madeira

For a dinner party of 4, this can be made at table from start to finish. If the recipe is to be doubled or tripled, first sauté the veal and mushrooms in a skillet, then add to the sauce in the chafing dish.

6 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion, minced
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups rich beef stock
3 tablespoons tomato purée
Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
1½ pounds thinly sliced veal round, cut into strips ¼" wide
1 chicken liver, quartered
1 cup cleaned sliced mushrooms
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup Madeira wine
2 tablespoons minced parsley

First, make a brown sauce: heat 2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan and lightly brown the onion, stirring frequently. Blend in flour and cook to a rich brown. Mix in stock and tomato purée. Cook, stirring, until sauce thickens. Lower heat and simmer until reduced to 1 cup. Season with salt and pepper.

Heat 2 tablespoons butter in blazer over direct heat. Add the veal and chicken liver, a few pieces at a time, and brown lightly. Season with salt and freshly ground pepper. Remove to a plate. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons butter, add the mushrooms and stir until shiny. Add lemon juice and cook 2-3 minutes. Mash chicken liver and add to prepared brown sauce. Mix veal and sauce with mushrooms in pan. Set over hot water and cover. Heat until veal is tender, about 10 minutes. Stir in Madeira, and heat about 5 minutes longer. Taste for seasoning, and sprinkle with parsley. Serves 4.

Tournedos Flambés

This is best cooked in a wide suzette pan or large copper skillet placed over the alcohol burner. The sauce is a change from the richer Béarnaise usually served with tournedos.

4 tournedos, cut about 1" thick
2 shallots or green onions, minced
½ cup Madeira wine
2 tablespoons chopped fresh tarragon or 1 teaspoon dried tarragon
4 slices firm white bread
4 tablespoons butter
Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons cognac or brandy, warmed
3 tablespoons Brown Sauce (see Julienne of Veal Madeira) or canned beef gravy
Lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Before cooking, bring the beef to room temperature and combine the shallots, Madeira, and tarragon in a small saucepan and simmer until reduced by half.

Trim crusts from bread and cut into round shapes the same size as the tournedos. Heat suzette pan or skillet over flame and sauté the bread lightly in 1 tablespoon butter. Remove sautéed bread to a warm plate. Add 2 tablespoons butter to pan. When very hot, but not brown, add tournedos and sauté briefly on each side. Keep them rare. Season with salt and a generous grinding of pepper. Sprinkle with warmed cognac and flame. When flames die, add reduced Madeira mixture and brown sauce. Stir with a wooden spoon to incorporate brown glaze from bottom of pan. Add remaining tablespoon butter. Reduce flame and heat sauce through for a few minutes, spooning it over steaks. Add a few drops lemon juice and the parsley. Put tournedos on sautéed bread, top with sauce. Serves 4.

Chafing dish cookery gives the hostess a chance to show off her expertise before her guests. Delectable but simple Tournedos Flambés are cooked in a new rectangular version of the classic shallow crêpes suzette pan. Two alcohol burners give concentrated heat for cooking. Madeira sauce for steaks is kept hot until needed in its own heated saucepan.

Beef Stroganoff

In the classic recipe, the sour cream sauce has no thickening, but it is smoother and less apt to curdle when made with a light roux.

2 pounds beef filet, cut into strips 2" long by ½" wide by ¼" thick.
Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
1 cup sour cream
¼ cup butter
1 onion, quartered and thinly sliced
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup hot beef bouillon
Pinch dry mustard
Chopped fresh dill to taste, or ½ teaspoon dried dill

About 2 hours ahead, cut beef into strips and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Do not refrigerate. Let sour cream come to room temperature.

At cooking time, heat butter in blazer of large chafing dish over direct heat. Brown steak strips lightly, a few at a time, removing browned strips to warm bowl. Add onion to pan; cook until soft. Sprinkle with flour, stir in hot bouillon and cook until sauce bubbles and thickens. Add mustard, dill, browned meat, and sour cream and mix. Season with salt and pepper, if needed. Cover and place blazer in hot water pan. Heat gently about 15 minutes, but do not allow sauce to boil. It should be light, smooth, and a deep golden amber. Serve with rice. Serves 6.

Liver in Port

1 pound calves' liver, sliced ¾" thick
Flour
3 tablespoons butter
2 shallots or green onions, minced
Salt, pepper to taste
Dried or fresh chopped chervil to taste
⅓ cup Port wine
⅓ cup consommé or bouillon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons sour cream
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Cut liver slices into strips about 3" by 1". Blot dry with paper towels and dust with flour. Heat butter in blazer over heat; add shallots and cook until soft, about 5 minutes. Push to side of pan. Add liver strips, a few at a time, and cook gently until browned, but still moist and pink inside. If pan gets crowded, remove strips to warm bowl or stack at side. Season with salt, a few grindings of pepper, and chervil to taste. Pour in Port and consommé and stir to lift the brown glaze from the bottom. Add lemon juice, cover, and place over hot water. Stir in sour cream and parsley just before serving. Serves 4.

Chipped Beef Coco Palms

¼ cup butter
¼ pound dried beef, chipped or shredded
¼ cup flour
2 cups half-and-half (milk and cream)
Freshly ground pepper to taste
⅓ cup coarsely chopped water chestnuts
½ soft avocado, peeled and diced
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Hot toast or toasted English muffins

Melt butter in blazer over direct heat. Add beef and sauté lightly. Stir in flour until well blended, then gradually whisk in half-and-half. Stir continuously until sauce boils and thickens. Set over hot water and add a few grindings of pepper, the water chestnuts, and avocado. Add lemon juice and a little salt, if needed. Serve hot over toast or English muffins, split and toasted. Serves 4-5.

Réchauffé of Beef, Bordelaise

Leftover roast meat or game becomes a party specialty when combined with this famous Bordeaux sauce.

3 tablespoons butter
½ cup minced onion
½ cup red Bordeaux or California Cabernet Sauvignon
½ cup Brown Sauce (see Julienne of Veal Madeira) or canned beef gravy
Pinch each: thyme, mace
2 cups cubed, cooked roast beef
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Salt, pepper to taste
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Heat 2 tablespoons butter in blazer over flame. Add onion, cover, and cook until soft and golden. Stir in wine, brown sauce or gravy, thyme, and mace. Heat until flavors blend, at least 5 minutes. Add beef and lemon juice. Season with salt and pepper if needed. When heated through, blend in remaining butter, bit by bit. Stir in parsley. Serve with French bread or crusty browned potatoes. Serves 4.

Veal Piccata

1½ pounds veal round, sliced thin as for scaloppine
Salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste
Flour
6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons light salad oil
¼ cup dry white wine
Juice of ½ lemon
Lemon wedges

Cut veal into pieces about 2" by 3". Sprinkle with salt and pepper. With side of mallet, pound veal very thin (⅛") between two sheets of waxed paper. Dust lightly with flour. Heat part of butter and oil in blazer over direct heat. Add veal scallops, a few at a time, and cook gently until light brown on each side. Don't try to hurry this; it will take about 5 minutes per side. Add more butter and oil as needed until all veal is cooked. Pour off fat and return veal to pan. Sprinkle with wine and lemon juice. Stir and scrape up brown glaze from bottom of pan. Set pan in hot water pan over heat; heat gently 3-5 minutes. Garnish with lemon wedges, and serve with risotto or fettuccine. Serves 4.

Brandied Chicken Livers

This is a quick and easy dish for an after-theatre party.

¼ pound fresh mushrooms, trimmed
5 tablespoons butter
1 minced shallot or 2 chopped green onions
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Salt, freshly ground pepper, nutmeg to taste
1 pound chicken livers
Flour
3 tablespoons brandy
1 cup cream
Pinch thyme
Minced parsley
4 slices crisp hot toast or toasted English muffins

Wipe mushrooms with damp paper towels and slice lengthwise. Heat 1½ tablespoons butter in blazer over direct heat. Add shallot and mushrooms. Cook, shaking pan occasionally, 2-3 minutes. Season with lemon juice, salt, a few grindings of pepper, and a dash of nutmeg. Remove to a small bowl. Quarter livers; blot with paper towels, and dust lightly with flour. Heat rest of butter in blazer and sauté livers until richly browned, but still moist inside. (If your chafing dish is small, brown in several batches or you will have too much moisture in pan for good browning and flaming.) Warm brandy and pour over livers. Light, and spoon pan juices over livers until flames die. Set blazer in hot water pan and add mushrooms and cream. Season with salt, pepper, a little more nutmeg, and the thyme. Heat, stirring occasionally, until sauce is rich-colored and slightly thickened. Add the parsley. Serve over crisp hot toast or toasted English muffins. Serves 4.

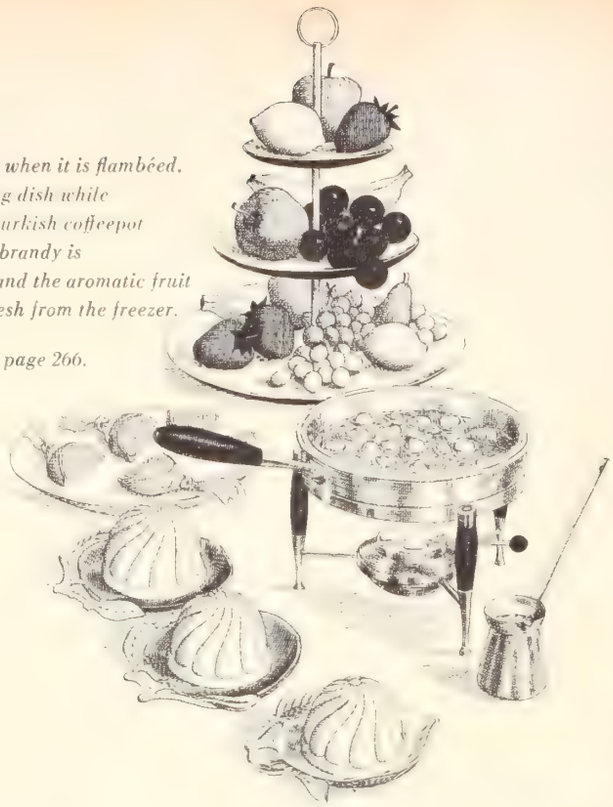
Chicken and Scallops Victoria

2 tablespoons butter
½ cup sliced mushrooms
½ pound bay or sea scallops
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup light cream
1½ cups cooked chicken in bite-size pieces
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly grated nutmeg, cayenne pepper to taste
2 tablespoons sherry
2 egg yolks
½ teaspoon lemon juice
Toast Cups

Heat butter in blazer directly over heat. Add mushrooms and cook a few minutes. Blot scallops dry on paper towels. If sea scallops are used, halve them. Bay scallops should be left whole. Add scallops to pan and toss to coat with butter. Sprinkle in flour, stirring continuously, then gradually blend in cream. Add chicken and season with salt, nutmeg, cayenne, and sherry. Set blazer in hot water pan. Cover and heat about 10 minutes. Beat egg yolks lightly; stir in a few spoonfuls of the hot sauce, then stir back into dish. Add lemon juice. Cover and heat about 5 minutes longer. Do not allow to boil. Serve in toast cups. Serves 4-5.

Toast Cups

Trim crusts from thinly sliced white bread. Spread both sides with soft butter and press into muffin cups. Bake in a 300° oven until crisp.



Poulet San Francisco

2 whole breasts, 2 thighs, 2 drumsticks of broiler-fryer chicken
Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
Flour
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped shallots or green onions
1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup sliced mushrooms
8 cooked artichoke hearts
½ cup dry white wine
Minced parsley

Divide chicken breasts in two lengthwise. Rub chicken pieces with salt and pepper and dust lightly with flour. Heat butter in blazer of large chafing dish over direct heat (or use a sauté pan on a large alcohol burner). Cook chicken in butter, a few pieces at a time, until browned on all sides, turning frequently. Remove browned pieces to warm plate as they are done. This takes about 15 minutes. Add shallots, garlic, and mushrooms to pan and cook until soft, about 5 minutes. Return chicken to pan and add artichoke hearts. Pour in wine and stir up rich brown glaze from bottom with wooden spoon. Cover pan and cook until chicken is tender, about 20 minutes, basting occasionally with pan juices. Top with minced parsley. Serve with tiny new potatoes and a salad of Bibb lettuce with herb dressing. Serves 4.

A simple dessert takes on more pizzaz when it is flambéed. Bananas Hanalei Plantation cook in a chafing dish while warmed brandy waits in a long-handled Turkish coffeepot (safer for flaming). At the last minute, brandy is flamed, poured over the bananas, and the aromatic fruit ladled over individual molds of ice cream, fresh from the freezer.

For shopping information, see page 266.

Tie citrus-fruit quarter in cheesecloth to prevent pips popping out or juice squirting when it is squeezed.

DESSERTS

Bananas Hanalei Plantation

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ unpeeled lemon or large lime
¼ unpeeled orange
4 large, firm, ripe bananas
¼ cup orange Curaçao
2 jiggers brandy or rum
Coffee ice cream or pineapple sherbet

Heat butter in blazer directly over heat. Mix in brown sugar. Hold lemon or lime quarter and orange quarter over pan and squeeze out juice, pressing to extract a little of the aromatic oil from the peels. Peel bananas and slice in bite-size pieces into butter mixture. Add Curaçao. Heat until sauce is bubbly and hot and bananas have absorbed flavor of sauce. Warm brandy or rum, pour on top, and flame. Spoon flaming sauce over fruit for 1 minute. Spoon hot over individual servings of ice cream or sherbet. Serves 4.

Caramel Pears

4 firm ripe pears, halved, pared, and cored
Lemon juice
¼ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon nutmeg
Dash cinnamon
1 tablespoon bourbon
1 cup sour cream

Sprinkle pears with a few drops of lemon juice. Heat butter in blazer directly over flame. Add pears, cut-side down. Turn and baste until well coated. Sprinkle with brown sugar and spices. Cover and cook, basting often, 15-20 minutes. The pears should be glazed and the sauce rich and syrupy. Pour bourbon into center of pan, heat, and blend into sauce. Baste pears. Serve pears at once with sauce poured around them and a big dollop of very cold sour cream on top. Serves 4-8.

Hot Fruit Compote

1-pound, 14-ounce-can whole apricots
10-ounce package frozen sweet cherries
1 cup Port
¼ cup honey
1 stick cinnamon, broken
½ teaspoon anise seeds
Grated peel of ½ lemon
Grated peel of 1 orange
2 navel oranges, peeled, halved, and sliced

Before cooking, drain apricots and set aside ½ cup of the syrup. Thaw cherries by placing pouch in lukewarm water for 9 minutes. Combine in saucepan, cherry juice, reserved apricot syrup, Port, honey, cinnamon, anise, and peels. Heat to boiling, then simmer 5 minutes.

Pour flavored syrup into blazer of chafing dish and add fruits. Cover and heat over direct flame for about 20 minutes. Set over hot water to keep warm for serving. Serves 6.

Crêpes Suzette

Of all the recipes for flamed crêpes, this is the most famous and spectacular. If you make the crêpes and the orange-butter sauce ahead, all you have to do at party time is to heat the crêpes in the sauce and flame them.

¾ cup all-purpose flour
Salt
¾ cup and 1 tablespoon sugar
3 eggs
1 cup milk
Grated lemon peel
Sweet butter
Zest of 1 large orange
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons Grand Marnier
3 tablespoons orange Curaçao
⅓ cup brandy, warmed

Sift together the flour, a dash of salt, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Beat the eggs until light. Stir into the flour with the milk, ½ cup water, a little grated lemon peel, and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Blend until smooth with a whisk. Refrigerate 2 hours. Heat a 5" or 6" crêpe pan or skillet until very hot. Brush with butter. Pour in 1½ tablespoons batter, quickly tilting and rotating pan to spread it evenly over the bottom. Cook about 1 minute, or until light brown on underside. Flip over and cook second side. Repeat procedure until all batter is used. You should have 18-24 crêpes, depending upon size of pan. Cool on paper towels, flat, not stacked. Keep covered until ready to use.

Cut the orange zest into small pieces and put in blender with orange and lemon juices. Blend 1 full minute. Add ¾ cup sugar, blend 1 minute longer. When ready to cook, put ½ cup sweet butter and orange-sugar mixture in suzette pan directly over heat. Heat until syrupy and bubbly. Add Grand Marnier and Curaçao. Dip crêpes one at a time into hot sauce, fold in quarters, and push to side of pan until all are dipped. Sprinkle with a little sugar and the warmed brandy. Light, and spoon flaming sauce over crêpes until flames die. Allow about 3 crêpes and a spoonful of sauce per serving. Serves 6.

Crêpes with Cherry Sauce

If you have two chafing dishes, use one for the filled crêpes, and the other for the flaming cherry sauce. Otherwise, heat crêpes in the oven.

3-ounce package cream cheese
1 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
18 crêpes (see previous recipe)
3 tablespoons sweet butter
1-pound, 14-ounce-can Bing cherries or 2 10-ounce-packages frozen sweet cherries
¼ cup red currant jelly
1 teaspoon arrowroot
¼ cup crème de cassis or kirsch
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons dark rum or brandy, warmed

Blend cream cheese, sour cream, brown sugar, and 1 tablespoon lemon peel. Spread a generous dab on each crêpe; roll up and place seam-side down on a deepish, heatproof platter. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sweet butter, melted. Cover with foil. At serving time, heat briefly (about 5 minutes) in a 400° oven. Or melt butter in second chafing dish, add filled crêpes and heat while you make the cherry sauce. Drain and pit the canned cherries, saving syrup. Or defrost frozen cherries according to package directions. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons sweet butter in blazer directly over heat. Add remaining lemon peel, currant jelly, and 1 cup cherry liquid blended with the arrowroot. Heat and stir gently until sauce bubbles and thickens slightly. Stir in cherries, crème de cassis or kirsch, and lemon juice. When heated through, pour on warmed rum or brandy, light, and spoon flaming sauce over cherries. Ladle at once over heated crêpes. Serves 6.

ays of making them. All versions e good, all are drunk very cold, nd all should be served with short raws (regular straws cut in alf).

The method most commonly sed today is to heap a cocktail ass with shaved ice and pour the queur slowly over it until the ass is full.

Another way is to put shaved e and the liqueur into a blender, lend quickly, and pour unstrained nto a cocktail glass. Half a cup of e to a jigger of the liqueur is a ood proportion.

The third way is to fill a cock- il shaker about half full with haved ice, add a jigger of liqueur, hake quickly and strenuously, nen strain into the glass. The re- ult will be somewhat more granu- ar than the blender method.

Mists

Mists are almost identical with rappés made by the shaved ice nethod, except that an Old-fash- oned glass is used, and a twist of emon peel added as a final touch. While customarily made with Scotch or Bourbon, they are excel- ent with Cognac or any liqueur. Those concocted with whiskey fit better into the long-after-dinner ategory, unless your liquor is of ery special quality.

Floats

Pretty to look at and smooth to sip, floats may be made with any kind of liqueur. Fill a small liqueur glass to within ¼ inch of the top with the liqueur of your choice, then carefully pour on cream so that it floats on top. While especially recommended for coffee or chocolate-flavored liqueurs, floats are eminently satisfactory with any liqueur you like. Probably the best known float is the King Alphonse (or Alfonso) which uses Crème de Cacao.

The traditional brandy float, however, is another matter. For this, a couple of ice cubes are put into an Old-fashioned glass and it is nearly filled with chilled charged water. The brandy is then floated on by laying the bowl of a dessert spoon just on the surface and pouring in the brandy carefully so that it flows over the top, but does not mix. The quantity is up to you.

Pousse-cafés

In a class by themselves, pousse-cafés require imagination, a steady hand, and a slight knowledge of the specific gravities of various liqueurs, cordials, and syrups. (For the best table of specific gravities of liqueurs, see Grossman's Guide to Wines, Spirits, and Beers.) Generally speaking, the higher the proof, the lighter the liqueur, although sugar content also has an effect. For instance, 84-proof Cognac will float on 110-proof Green Chartreuse, while 96-proof Kirschwasser will top them both. Practice makes perfect in the art of making pousse-cafés, so start with simple three- or four-deckers and eventually you may work up to a spectacular like the fifteen-story Loïe Fuller. One cautionary note: when your friends learn of your accomplishments, you'll be deluged by requests, so if you don't want all the bother of making pousse-cafés, don't serve the first one.

ANGEL'S WINGS

This is one of the simplest of pousse-cafés. Into a narrow straight-sided liqueur glass (there's a special glass made for the purpose) pour ⅓ Crème de Violette, ⅓ Maraschino, and ⅓ Cherry Liqueur. If you tip the glass slightly and let the liqueur trickle down the side, it will flow over the one below it. They must be poured in the order listed, otherwise they will mix.

ANGEL'S KISS

Here we have four layers of equal thickness: Crème de Violette, Crème de Cacao, Prunelle, and heavy cream. The cream, of course, floats because of its fat content.

RAINBOW

We now progress to six different strata, again of equal depth. Start with Grenadine, a non-alcoholic syrup (red), then Crème de Violette (violet), Maraschino (white), Green Crème de Menthe (green), Yellow Chartreuse (yellow), and brandy (brown). Spectacular, this, and bound to win rounds of applause.

LOÏE FULLER

This turn-of-the-century specialty was named for a popular dancer, whose Serpentine Dance involved colored lights playing on scarves which she manipulated with wands. You'll need a somewhat taller glass if you embark on the project of making it. Here are the contents, to be added in the order given: Grenadine, Crème de Cassis, Maraschino, Curaçao, Mandarine, Green Crème de Menthe, White Crème de Menthe, Anisette, Fraises, Yellow Chartreuse, Kümmel, Cherry Liqueur, Prunelle, Green Chartreuse, and Kirschwasser. If nobody wants to destroy your masterpiece, put it on the bar with a light behind it.

Other liqueur-based drinks

Every bartender with any imagination, it would seem, has invented one or more drinks by combining liqueurs with other liqueurs, spirits, fruit juices, or whatever was at hand. Most of these have had very short careers, but the best have survived through the years. Here are some which have stood the test of time.

ALEXANDER
Equal parts of Crème de Cacao, Cognac, and sweet cream are shaken vigorously with ice and strained into a cocktail glass. An Alexander made with gin instead of Cognac is properly called a Princess Mary, and if made with gin and Crème de Menthe, it's Alexander's Sister. In Mexico a drink called Alejandra is made with Kahlúa, Cognac, and cream in equal parts.

AFTER DINNER
Shake well with ice 1 jigger each of Apricot Brandy and Curaçao, and the juice of a lime. Strain into a cocktail glass, and decorate with a twist of lime peel. In an After Supper cocktail, lemon juice (about a teaspoon) is substituted for the lime juice.

B & B
So popular is this drink that the canny monks of Fécamp, who make Bénédictine, started bottling their own B & B some years ago. It is simply a mixture of equal parts of Brandy (Cognac) and Bénédictine, the virtue of which lies in the fact that the dryness of the Cognac cuts the sweetness of the liqueur. It may also be served over ice, as a frappé.

GRASSHOPPER
Shake well 1 ounce of Green Crème de Menthe, 1 ounce of White Crème de Cacao, and 1 ounce of light cream with cracked ice. Strain into a saucer champagne glass. The pale pastel green of the drink and the shape of the glass make this festive indeed.

DIANA
Pack a small wineglass with shaved ice, and pour in 2 ounces of white Crème de Menthe. Carefully add ½ ounce of Cognac so that it floats on top.

GREEN DRAGON
Put plenty of ice in a bar glass, add 1 ounce of Green Chartreuse and 1 ounce of Cognac, stir briskly, and strain into a cocktail glass. Turn this into a Praying Mantis by adding an ounce of cream and shaking well instead of stirring.

STINGER
Put equal parts of white Crème de Menthe and Cognac into a shaker, add plenty of shaved ice, shake vigorously, and strain into a cocktail glass. Many people like Stingers before dinner, but I find them a trifle on the sweet side. For cocktail-hour drinking, it's a good idea to use more Cognac and less Crème de Menthe. Substitute Jamaica Rum for the Cognac and you have a Rum Stinger.

LOLLYPOP
Shake well ½ jigger (¾ ounce) each of Cointreau, Green Chartreuse, and Kirsch, and a dash of Maraschino with ice. Strain into a cocktail glass.

Long after dinner

When the feast of reason and flow of soul at the table has finally slackened, and it is time for the party to move to other surroundings, it is then the time for those long-after-dinner drinks. Some of the guests will want to stick to their liqueurs, brandies, and liqueur mixtures; others will find it time for a change. If they are serious drinkers, it is likely that highballs (or lowballs) will be the order of the evening, which is easy on the host. A growing number of people these days call for beer at such a time, which is also simplicity itself. It's a nice gesture to have an assortment of beers to offer—Danish, German, and Mexican among others—and to have Pilsner glasses to drink from. For those who have had Cognac after dinner, try brandy highballs or mists—fine à l'eau, as the French have it. Iced champagne is good at this hour also; serve Extra Dry rather than Brut, and don't be afraid to drop an ice cube into the glass. For those who want something very light and refreshing, have a chilled bottle of Rhine, Moselle, or Alsatian wine on hand, and make spritzers with equal parts of chilled charged water.

THE KNIFE FOR THE JOB

THE VERSATILE SCALLOPED-EDGE KNIFE

Fast gaining in popularity with practiced cooks are the new breed of knives with scalloped edges. Originally designed for slicing crumbly breads and cakes, this type of knife is now made in many sizes and shapes which are used not only for slicing foods with hard, slippery, or soft skins, but also for general paring, cutting, and even carving. Although a scalloped edge stays sharp much longer than a straight one, the teeth that project beyond the cutting edge do wear down, and the knife requires an occasional toning with a butcher's steel on the flat side of blade, and eventual regrinding.

Slicing knife of high-carbon stainless steel has a concave-ground, scalloped-edge blade 9½ inches long, excellent for cutting cold or hot meats and cheeses into thin slices. $5.50. By W. R. Case Cutlery Co.*

MIEHLMANN

Bread knife of high-carbon stainless steel with scalloped edge will slice a loaf wafer-thin for sandwiches better than a serrated-edge blade which tears rather than cuts. $5. From Hammacher Schlemmer.

lines in rugs made in others areas.

Some types of Persian city rugs may be found in both small and large sizes: others are available only as small-to-medium area rugs. You will find some designs woven in both deep colors and in pastel shades, and others in only a limited color range.

Since Oriental rugs, being handmade, never come in standard sizes, be sure to look for the approximate measurements marked on the tag affixed to each rug along with the government-required notation of the country of origin. Some types are more expensive than others, but as a rule each type has its own consistent price range. Within that range each rug is judged individually for quality—i.e., the fineness of the wool, the color, and the workmanship—and individually priced.

Here is a brief guide to the rugs available today from the weaving centers of Northwest Iran where the story of the Persian city rug began.

HAMADAN. This large city is the market center for a number of widely varied types of rugs woven in the smaller cities, towns, and villages within a 50-mile radius—as well as for those made in Hamadan itself. In American stores, you will find the rugs from this district sometimes labeled simply "Hamadan," and sometimes by their own local names among the best known are Ingelas, Borchalou, Dergazine, Bibicabad, Kaputrang, Genjtepeh, and Mehriban. But the types differ radically from each other.

Characteristics Ingelas—small, finely woven rugs, small repeated herati or "fish" motifs; often all-over center designs. Borchalou—small, finely woven rugs, large curvilinear floral patterns. Dergazines—heavier rugs in small sizes and runners only, floral center designs. Bibicabads—heavier rugs in sizes up to 12 by 20 feet; herati motifs; bright cheerful colorings (clear blues, greens, hot pinks, rose, ivory, reds): about half with grounds of red or wine, the others with grounds of ivory. Kaputrangs—same weight, sizes, and colors as Bibicabads, but with small center pendants surrounded by geometric floral sprays. Hamadans from the city of Hamadan—sizes of 4½ by 7 feet or less; bold geometric center medallions, roughly diamond or lozenge shaped; fields of solid color or covered by small motifs or fine horizontal lines. (Occasionally you may find one with a background in wool dyed to match the real camel's hair of the antique rugs.)

KAZVIN. These are also made in the city of Hamadan, but they are entirely different from any other types from that area. Finely woven, deep-piled rugs, Kazvins are comparable in structure to modern Sarouks, but in design quite distinct, since they are greatly influenced today by modern Kermans.

Characteristics Sizes: both small rugs and room sizes. Designs: center medallions, open fields, elaborate floral and scrolled borders. Colors: an unmistakable palette consisting of turquoise and sky blue, light-to-dark shades of hot pink sometimes accented with deep rosy red, interspersed with golds and greens. Grounds: formerly, as a rule, red; today, a high percentage in ivory.

TABRIZ. This historic city close to the Turkish border lies at the convergence of ancient caravan routes. It was the early capital of Persia. Besides its own highly distinctive rugs, it has always been the marketing center for those made in surrounding towns and cities. Today's Tabriz carpets are fine and tightly woven, have a low smooth pile, and will be found among Persian rugs in the more expensive price ranges.

Characteristics Sizes: small rugs of approximately 4½ by 6½ feet; room-size rugs of 7 by 10 feet, 9 by 12 feet, and sometimes larger. Designs: delicate and precisely defined; some rugs with center medallions and corner designs, others with floral and scroll all-over centers. Colors: accents of strong Bristol blue, flecks of bright green, shades of gold, rust, terra cotta; grounds of ivory, dark blue, or deep red.

HEREZ. Also marketed in Tabriz are the rugs made in the city of Herez, about 50 miles to the east, and nearby towns and villages (Gorevan, Mehreban, Ahar). Their bold colorful geometric designs are in striking contrast to the precise and sophisticated patterns of the finely woven Tabrizes. Herezes are thick, heavy rugs, rather coarsely woven and, in the better qualities, immensely durable. Although there is a wide price differential between the top and bottom qualities, Herezes, in general, are comparatively inexpensive.

Characteristics Sizes: small rugs, runners, and room sizes up to 9 by 14 feet and 11 by 22 feet. Designs: angular, bold in scale; large geometric center medallions; fields covered with angular floral or other motifs; borders decorated lavishly with serrated leaf, turtle, and rosette motifs. Colors: motifs in blue, pink, green, brown, yellow, plum, lightened by Elegant new Centura Rim-Line. After you've used it a few times you'll discover it's more than just elegant.

You know how it is. Family or friends drop in and while they're oo-ing and ah-ing over your beautiful dinnerware, somebody's little one knocks over a plate.

And later, when your sister-in-law finally decides to help you clear the table, oops! There goes a cup and suddenly your service for 8 is now service for 7.

We know how it is, too. That's why we created Centura Tableware, the first fine ceramic dinnerware without a breakage worry. The new Centura Rim-Line is elegant, lovely and sophisticated, yet tough enough for everyday use because it's made from Corning's unique Pyroceram® brand material.

Centura Rim-Line has the classic shape: a graceful rim that surrounds your plates and bowls with an edging of pure elegance.

The patterns are classic, too: White, Gold Edge, and Platinum Edge. Even the cup is destined to be a classic. It's tall, straight-sided and especially created to accent and highlight the Centura Rim-Line look.

But Centura Rim Line is more than just beautiful. Despite its delicate look, it's remarkably strong and completely dishwasher-proof, even if that dishwasher is your husband.

In fact, Centura Tableware resists those bound-to-happen bumps and bruises so well, if any piece breaks, chips, or cracks within three years, we'll replace it. Free.*

Yet a five-piece place setting in White is just $9.00. Companion cook-and-serve pieces and beverage makers are equally affordable. And you can buy Centura Rim-Line any way you want—you pay no extra for a piece, whether you buy it singly, in a place setting, or as part of a complete set.

You'll find Centura Rim-Line wherever fine china is sold. Just ask for the dinnerware that's more than just elegant.

Centura® Tableware by Corning

*Corning promises to replace any piece of CENTURA Tableware if it breaks, chips, cracks, crazes, or its decoration wears off in three years of normal household use. Pieces bearing ✳ will be replaced if ever broken from temperature extremes. Just return the pieces to a CENTURA Tableware Dealer. Corning Glass Works, Corning, N.Y.

What does a soft baby washed in hard water grow up to be?

Not the soft woman she could be, if she had been washed in soft water.

So, why be hard on your family or yourself? You deserve a water softener.

Soft water opens up a bright new world. A soft world that helps you keep the baby-soft skin you were born with—and keeps towels, blankets and diapers soft. Clothes will keep their new, bright colors—whites will stay white. Your soap, your shampoo will burst into rich, thick lather. What about the old ring around the tub? It's down the drain.

Now—when you get a water softener appliance, to keep it running as softly as possible, it needs Morton Pellets salt. (Or, Morton Pellens salt, if rusty water is also a problem.) Pellets come with the highest recommendation of leading water softener appliance manufacturers.

Baby yourself. Lead the soft life of soft water on tap.

When they pour—water is as soft and clear as rain.

uches of ivory or ivory corners; ounds of rosy red, brick red, or st; borders usually dark blue. araja rugs, which are included in e Herez groups, come only in nall sizes—up to 4 or 5 by 6 or ½ feet—and their colors are usuly brighter and gayer, including nsiderable green.

ARDEBIL. Like Herezes, rugs ade in Ardebil are marketed in ıbriz. But they are Caucasian in sign and made by weavers who igrated a generation ago over the .S.S.R. border, 20 miles to the rth. Since these people contin-d to make the designs they knew, ost Ardebils you will see in the ores today are in the old Shirvan, aghestan, Kuba, or Cabistan degns, or sometimes in an old Ka-ık design. The rugs are similar in ickness, weave, and quality to ıe old Caucasian rugs and fall ıto the medium price bracket of ersian rugs.

Characteristics Sizes: small ıgs and area rugs up to 8½ y 11 feet (the most common is ½ by 7 feet). Designs: bold, simle geometrics. Colors: the rusty ds, oranges, greens, yellows, and ıedium blues of the traditional aucasian palette; reddish rounds usually, but some in ivory. ince the yarns are new, the colrs look bright in comparison to ıose of the antique Caucasians —the only true Caucasians you e in the U. S. today—so Ardeils are often given a wash to tone ıem down.

SAROUK. Probably no name ı Oriental rugs is more familiar ı this country than Sarouk. Beween the turn of the century and ıe beginning of World War II, hese luxurious, deep-piled, tightly oven carpets made in and around ıe small town of Sarouk near the ity of Sultanbad (today called ırak) were the most fashionable nd prestigious—as well as the ıost expensive—type of Oriental ug sold in America.

Before 1900, the only rugs ıade in the village of Sarouk were mall, very finely woven, and with ı thin, clipped pile. Usually they ıad intricate center medallions, ınd the colors were the typical eds and dark blues. Later the veavers of Sarouk started to make ıeavier, higher pile rugs, in large ıs well as small sizes. During the arly twentieth century, the great lemand was for Sarouks with allover floral centers on backgrounds anging from rosy red to deep wine, usually with borders of dark blue with contrasting floral motifs. These typical Sarouk colorings beame so familiar, that many people hink of them as "Oriental rug colors." Yet Sarouks were also made then, and still are, with dark blue or ivory backgrounds.

In the 1920's, it became customary to give Sarouks a "luster wash" to impart to the reds the deep winy tones that were so fashionable at that time. Some Sarouks are still so treated today, but many receive only a plain wash or a Persian wash—that is, the washing all rugs are given in the streams and rivers of Iran. Sarouks are also being made today with open grounds and center medallions, and in other classical designs borrowed from Tabriz and from nearby Saraband.

SARABAND. This district, about 25 miles southwest of Sultanbad, has given its name to a design which you will find in several types of Persian rugs: an over-all pattern consisting of rows and rows of small stylized "pears" or "pine cone" motifs with the stems in one row turned in one direction and the stems in the next row turned in the opposite. From rug to rug, the pears vary in size; some are as long as a couple of inches or so. The rugs with very tiny pears, hardly more than half-an-inch, are called Mir-Sarabands, after the village of Mirabad where the design originated. Some very fine Sarouks (as well as other types) in the typical Saraband design are available today in sizes up to 9 by 12 feet, and are designated as Saraband-Sarouks.

For various reasons we have omitted several familiar types of rugs made in the cities of Northwest Persia. For instance, two of the great names in antique and semi-antique Persian rug collections are Bijar and Senneh—both very fine, thin, tightly woven Kurdish rugs— but hardly any of these are being woven today. One of the famous rugs among antiques and semi-antiques from the Arak area is the Feraghan, but these rugs have become collector's items as long as half-a-century ago. Tehran, the capital of Iran, once a weaving city, is now a large modern metropolis where you will find an abundance of Persian rugs for sale in the bazaars, but none are made there commercially. You will also come upon additional names derived from the various villages of each of the great weaving areas. One authority claims that a hundred pictures would not be enough to illustrate all the many variations of types and designs from the Hamadan district alone.

This is probably the most difficult advertisement we have ever prepared for the fine readers of

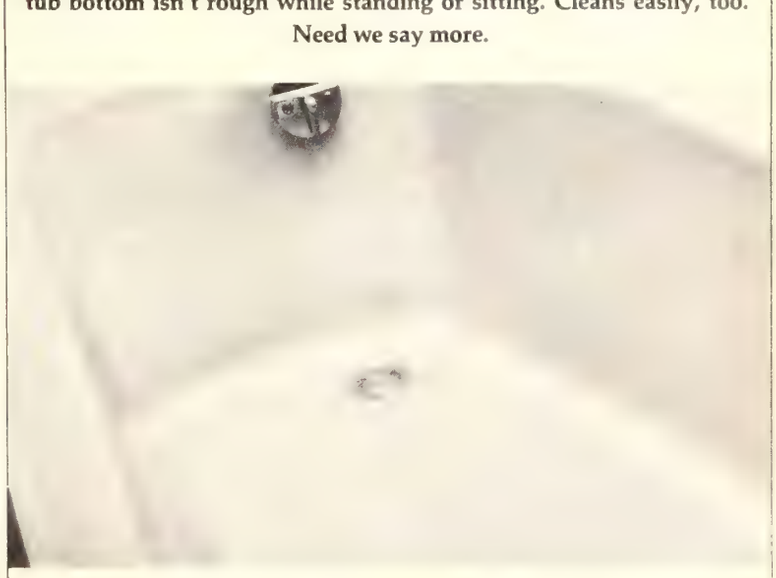
Once in a while a product comes along that is simply good for people.

Such a product is Vent-Away*



It is a unique part of several American-Standard toilet models. Its function is to automatically expel unpleasant odors which may occur during toilet use. The principle is simple. Any offensiveness is drawn away by a vacuum Vent-Away creates. Down the drain it goes. Never into the room.

Interestingly, Vent-Away operates by water pressure alone. It's built in at the factory, has no moving parts, nothing to cause a service problem. You lift the handle to start Vent-Away—press down to flush and stop action.

Our Compact/Vent-Away model is modestly priced and is an easy replacement. It can probably be installed in about an hour. The installed cost will most likely be less than $150 (colors slightly higher).

A small cost, indeed, for a most considerate product.

Another American-Standard product that is good for people is Stan-Sure*, the new, built-in slip-resistant surface for better bathtubs. The tasteful "Polka Dot" design provides a surefootedness never before possible. (Four times safer than ordinary bathtubs.) Yet the tub bottom isn't rough while standing or sitting. Cleans easily, too. Need we say more.

VENT-AWAY and STAN-SURE...
Exclusively from the leadership people in plumbing, heating and air conditioning.

AMERICAN STANDARD

STEEL AND GLASS ELEGANCE AT EASY PRICES

The story behind the versatile tables and benches in H&G's live-in room (Pages 238-241)

Steel-framed furniture, once such a luxury (read its pedigree on page 204), is now both affordable and available via System Abstracta, a new flexible modular system of steel tubes and connectors designed by Danish architect Poul Cadovius. With no other aid than a mallet, you can assemble the frame components yourself—much as you would a child's toy—to be topped with glass cut by your local glazier or, if you like, wood, marble, or plastic laminate from your lumberyard. You have a choice of two kinds of frame: square 1-inch tubing with a brushed-satin finish (this type takes a track for sliding glass doors), or round, ½-inch chrome-finished tubing, which is considerably lower in price. Whatever the frame, the cubes are enormously versatile and can be stacked to form an étagère, lined up for a dining table, topped with cushions for benches, scattered about for buffet dining, or tiered to make a book wall.

Crux of the system: tubing—in this instance, chrome finished and round—joined by forced-fit connectors. Clip-supports straddle tubing at corners to hold glass or whatever shelving you may add.

Enclosed étagère, ABOVE LEFT, in lounging corner of H&G's live-in room (see page 240), consists of square-tubing frame plus glass sides and sliding doors. Frame, to order, about $300. Open étagère, ABOVE RIGHT, of round tubing requires only glass shelves. Frame, $85.

Chrome-finished lamp with a 30-inch stem can be attached to any Abstracta unit, or be set into a base to become a floor lamp. Lamp, $140; cube frame, $21.

Cube frames of round tubing come in two sizes, can be used to make stools, cigarette tables, or individual buffet tables. 21-inch frame, $25; 16-inch frame, $21.

ABOVE, traditional table base of square tubing is made with conventional legs and a cross-support for whatever kind of top you want to add. Base, 32 by 32 by 16 inches high, $45.
RIGHT, contemporary sleigh base of the same tubing gives the table a more modern, geometric look. Base, 24 by 24 by 16 inches high, $50.

Rectangular frame of round tubing could serve as a table base set on either its side or end. Or you could add thongs of ribbon, leather, or needlepoint to make a magazine rack. Base, 11 by 21 by 16 inches high, $21.

GARDENER'S MONTH

HOW TO PLANT A GOOD TREE

A good tree can serve many purposes, both utilitarian and decorative, if it is placed properly and planted w care at the proper season for its species. The sugar maple (Acer saccharum), above, has the obvious functi of modifying the outline and softening the approach angle of Mr. George F. Ewald, Jr.'s remodeled fa house at South Kent, Conn. The tree has the further purpose, even at considerably less than its mature size, casting a pleasant shadow on the grass. And being a sugar maple in sugar maple country (the foothills of t Berkshires), it puts on an autumnal show of golden foliage that is not produced by any other tree, nor as b liantly, in any other part of the U.S. (It should be added that this species is one of the few large maples bene which a decent stand of turf can be maintained.) This particular tree, one of many that are among Mr. Ewal great joys and the region's great glories, was planted in late October, 1965. Now a good 5 inches "d.b.h." (dia eter at breast height), it was purchased at an excellent nursery in the region for $350, planted. It had been d after leaf-fall and the root ball carefully wrapped in burlap and a tight rope sling. The steps involved in setti the tree, opposite page, make it clear why moving any shade tree bigger than sapling size is a job for exper not just for people with strong backs, and how an experienced crew sees to the details that alone can ensu such a happy result a couple of seasons later. If there is a moral to this tale, it is that the purchase of a t already big enough to serve its purpose (or purposes) from the outset is likely to be justified on all counts. a corollary, any tree that has real strategic value in the landscape scheme should be planted carefully enough ensure healthy survival for its normal life expectancy (a sugar maple is good for a century at least). A guara tee of replacement by the seller is not enough—not when two or more important years can be lost in the me fulfillment of a warranty. A nursery jealous of its reputation will do a good job in the first place, set the t if you will agree, and stand behind the performance. And between a tree dug with an earth ball and one du when dormant, with bare roots, pick the former every time, except for the smallest saplings. Between spring a fall planting, for any bare-root tree, choose spring. For leafless trees with a ball, choose spring if you can, a tumn if the nurseryman guarantees the job for that season. With most evergreens and certain other trees (dc wood, pin oak, sweet gum) opt for spring, if only because the law of averages always favors spring plantir Mind the rules for after-care. Demonstrable neglect will void any guarantee and also could kill your tr

MOVING DAY FOR A MAPLE

Planting hole for any tree (here a sugar maple waiting to be planted) should be dug wider and deeper than the root ball, enriched at bottom.

Moving a sizable tree requires not only a tight root ball but a stout skid, rollers, and a gangplank reaching from truck to hole. Tree should be levered into place.

Once in the hole, left, on a reasonably firm bed of good soil, tree must be set so final surface of ground will not be more than an inch or two below original soil level around trunk. Trunk must be perfectly upright, since old trunks will never straighten if set at an angle; only new growth will respond to universal laws of gravity and grow upright.

Lashings that hold roots firm, left, are loosened, and soil back-filled, only after tree is plumb and faced in the proper direction (if any). Then only is burlap removed.

ck filling of hole, right, is an important p in planting procedure. One workman ks ball, without loosening it; another vels earth beneath to make base.

Filling of hole, above, with enriched earth continues, without tamping, until hole is level full around earth ball. Tamping while filling is unnecessary if watering is thorough.

rst watering (with buckets, above, if ater supply is limited, slow running se if it is not) settles around roots.

Staking for guy wires, above, is essential at least one full year, no matter what kind of tree is being planted. Stakes must go deep in frost country.

Three soft iron guys are run through protecting sleeves of old hose, left; will easily last for the necessary season or two.

A unique property of a tree, too often overlooked, is that it comes in many sizes and a great range of prices. The small economy model may, in five years or ten, grow to a peak of beauty and value—at about the same time as your living room sofa, say, is ready to be reupholstered. To be sure, a small tree will not, unaided, do the same job that a mature one will do. And patience alone is often not enough to make up for sheer physical inadequacy. But careful planning, and resort to well-placed interim plants (trees among them), can compensate for a host of budgetary strictures.

Here are some of the trees particularly well suited to fulfilling various requirements of home landscapes. All are hardy in north temperate climates. All are widely available—although not all species at any one nursery, not even a very good one. The prices, of course, are indicative only.

For landscape focus:

BEECH, green or purple: 50 feet, $2,000 up; 6 feet, $50 up. Slow.

BIRCH, white or gray: 30 feet, $500 up; 10 feet, $20. Fairly rapid.

CEDAR, BLUE ATLAS: 50 feet, $2,500 up; 8 feet, $75. Medium.

DOGWOOD, kousa species: 20 feet, $250 up; 10 feet, $75. Fairly fast.

MAPLE, JAPANESE, colored leaves: 10-foot spread, $300 up; 2-foot spread, $35 up. Slow.

MAPLE, SUGAR: 50 to 60 feet, $1,500 up; 15 feet, $100 up. Fairly fast.

For modifying structural lines:

HONEY-LOCUST, thornless: 35 feet, $250 up; 8 feet, $10-$15. Fairly fast.

OXYDENDRUM, white summer flowers: 30 feet, $500 up; 8 feet, $25 up. Fairly fast.

SWEET GUM, no pests or diseases: 30 feet, $500; 8 feet, $25. Fast.

WILLOW OAK: 30 feet, $500 up; 10 feet, $35 up. Fairly fast.

For screening:

HEMLOCK, Canadian evergreen: 25 feet, $500 up; 6 feet, $30 up. Fairly fast.

LOMBARDY POPLAR: 40 feet or more at maturity, slender; practical size to buy, 8-10 feet, $4-$5. Very fast.

PINE, BLACK, weatherproof: 20 feet, $200; 6 feet, $35. Fairly fast.

WEEPING WILLOW: 30 feet, $150; 6 feet, $5. Very fast.

For landscape setting:

FLOWERING ELEY CRAB: 10 feet, $75; 6 feet, $20. Fairly fast.

FLOWERING DOGWOOD, May bloom, red fall foliage and fruit: 20 feet, $500 up; 10 feet, $100. Fairly slow.

FRANKLINIA, white or pink flowers in late summer, bronze foliage: 20-25 feet at maturity; 6 to 8 feet, $50 up. Fairly slow.

SHADBUSH, earliest white flowers: 15 feet, $45; 8 feet, $20. Fairly fast.

STYRAX, white bell-flowers in June: 20 feet at maturity; 6-8 feet, $15. Fairly fast.

WASHINGTON THORN, white flowers, red fruit: 15 feet, $100 up; 6 feet, $10. Fairly fast.

For shade, for accent in big landscapes, or for their own intrinsic beauty:

GINKGO, male tree preferable: 40 feet, $500 up; 10 feet, $35. Fairly fast.

KATSURA TREE (cercidiphyllum): 35 feet, $250 to $500; 15 feet, $20. Fairly fast.

PIN OAK: 50 feet, $1,000 up; 15 feet, $100 up. Fairly fast.

PINE, CHINESE LACE-BARK, multi-trunk, exfoliating bark, evergreen: 35 feet, $2,500 up; 10 to 12 feet, $250. Fairly slow.

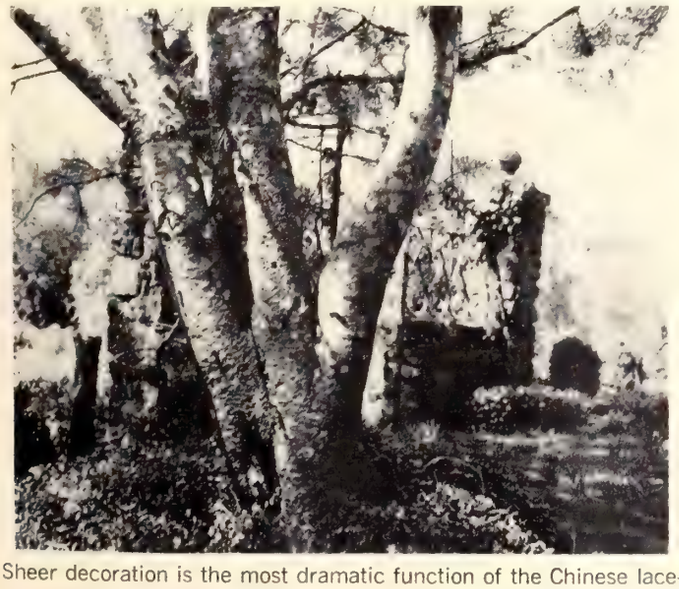
PINE, WHITE, evergreen: 50 feet, $2,000 up; 6 to 8 feet, $50 up. Fairly fast.

SCHOLAR-TREE, sophora: 35 feet, $500; 10 feet, $25. Fairly fast.

YELLOW-WOOD, cladrastis: 30 feet, $250 up; 8 feet, $15 up. Fairly fast.

Also birch, beech, blue Atlas cedar, oxydendrum, sugar maple, and sweet gum, all listed in previous categories.

Multipurpose trees such as the dogwoods serve as single specimens to bring a garden scheme into focus, as decorative objects in their own right (kousa dogwood's starry flowers brighten June), or as accents.



Statuesque note is struck by the great white ash tree that stands at one side of the Jean Cattier pool, Oyster Bay, L. I., N. Y. Such big trees are fortuitous accidents by which good garden planners benefit.

Landscape accent is the first and best use for the sugar maple in New England gardens. A multiple seedling variant of the single-trunk form graces the headmaster's lawn at Cambridge School, Weston, Mass.

RALPH BAILEY

Sheer decoration is the most dramatic function of the Chinese lace-bark pine at Dr. Ben Blackburn's "Willowwood," Gladstone, N. J. The exfoliating bark of the tree's trunks are a varying shimmer of pastels.

Notes for October gardeners

Short autumn thoughts on seed sowing, bulb planting, tree staking, and mulch moving

First week

Seed breather. It is no news even to inexperienced gardeners that some seeds are slower to germinate than others, or, for that matter, that some seeds will not sprout at all the season they are planted. A casual consideration of nature's own way with seeds will explain why this is so. To ensure a safe winter's passage for slow seeds (many tree and shrub seeds included) there are three precautions you should take. The first point to remember is that spring-germinating seeds of trees native to frost country usually need freezing to trigger germination: so you must not protect the seeds from freezing. The second point to remember is that most seeds, falling naturally, land in a miscellaneous litter of old seed pods, husks, dead leaves, and twigs beneath the parent plants. Therefore, you should try to approximate a similarly disordered and porous seed bed. Third, remember that frozen open ground, under a natural mulch of organic litter, is relatively stable, whereas the same material in a small container (pot or flat) will be subject to considerable heaving and thawing during and after cold spells. So provide as thermally stable a medium as you can, which brings us to the following suggestion:

Sow your hibernating seeds, in rows, in a raised seed bed where winter winds will not scour, but where winter cold can reach them. Wall the bed with boards, say 1-by-6's, that form a simple frame sunk 3 or 4 inches in the ground. This raised surface (the frame should be filled with earth and litter) may slope very slightly, to shed excess water and prevent undue ice formation. Unbroken contact with the earth below will minimize that isolated freezing and heaving that would occur in a free-standing container. Cover the whole business with dry leaves or salt marsh hay or pine needles after your last seeds have been planted. Do not open until spring.

Reading notice. In the lulls between periods of child rearing—say between your own children and your children's children—you may tend to forget with what infinite grace and wonder the young regard the growth and unfolding of flowers. Doris Orgel, in her newest children's book, Cindy's Snowdrops (Knopf, $3.25) remembers and recaptures the aching joy of a little girl's discovery of her private spring. Ati Forberg's enchanting drawings are essential and exactly right.

Second week

Masses or teasers. In the past, we have recommended using spring-flowering bulbs (especially the big new tulip hybrids) as scattered accents in the springtime border. We have also recommended the splashing of many bulbs of a single variety or species in large numbers. Now we recommend both for the same garden. In one part of the grounds, use such tulips as the incomparable 'Gudoshnik' (the Holland originators say the accent is on the first syllable) for twinkling headliners, set 2 to 5 feet apart among almost any kind of vegetation. In another part of the landscape, splash a thousand grape-hyacinths (say Muscari armeniacum) 4 or 5 inches apart. Their flowering times will either coincide or overlap, and the effect will be as wildly dramatic as any you are likely to achieve in your spring garden. Only one caveat: watch your flowering times. Earliest tulips, however brilliant they may be, will normally be dull and tattered before the later muscari reach their peak. In most seasons, varieties scheduled to flower in mid-May will form the most satisfactory partnerships.

ook note. James Rose, one of top-flight practitioners of the of landscape planning, has pro-led inspiration and written the ptions for a handsome new book out his work and thought. The ok is called, starkly and ac-rately, Modern American Gar-ns by James Rose (Reinhold, 6.50). Marc Snow's text is lucid d informative, especially about r. Rose and a few of his con-nporaries, some of whom were e young Turks of landscape de-gn in the thirties and are now e deans of the profession. But it Mr. Rose's book, and a fascinat-g one, exemplifying some of the undest and most stimulating ndscape-shaping in America.

Third week

ligh stakes. Some reminders ill bear repeating as long as you ve: wear your rubbers, take a lean handkerchief, stake new ees when you plant them. Espec-ılly the latter, since you can cure cold and borrow a Kleenex, but ften can only replace a favored ee at the cost of bitter pain and nguish. Fall-planted trees are ıore in need of immediate sup-ort than spring-planted trees. he loosening effect produced by all wind may prevent reestablish-ıent of root contact with sur-ounding ground during the slow-rowth autumn days. The kind of upport required will vary with he kind and size of the plant. A all bare-root tree will need stouter upport than a low balled-and-bur-apped evergreen. In the former ase, triple guy wires (soft-iron wires, run through loops of old garden hose, staked at the outer nds: see page 273) are the best nswer. A reasonable alternative, ne less demanding of space and herefore favored by park depart-nents, consists of a pair of strong, stiff stakes, driven deep in the planting hole on each side of the trunk with a figure-8 loop of old hose or inner tube nailed to the stake tops. For lower or small plants, a single stake will some-times serve, provided such a stake can be driven firmly close to the trunk without damage to roots. The main thing is to prevent any weav-ing of the trunk or main mass of the plant for at least the first year.

Fourth week

Mulches on and off. Mulches are basically thermal in their effect: they retard the passage of heat (also moisture). Although there is a score of materials that can serve as mulches, the number of purposes for which you apply them is limited. Sometimes you apply a mulch in summer to ward off extremes of temperature and moisture loss (not to mention the corollary purpose of preventing weed development). Sometimes you apply one in autumn to ameliorate the onset of freezing temperatures or winter cold. Sometimes you apply a mulch after the ground is frozen to prevent alternation of freezing and thawing—to keep the ground frozen, and thus to prevent heaving and tearing of roots and crowns. Sometimes you apply a mulch only in late winter to prevent too rapid thawing of the ground or early awakening growth in plants.

You can often use the same mulches for all these purposes that you would for any one of them. This means that in many instances you can transfer a mulch whose usefulness is over for the year directly from one location to another where its presence will be welcome. This constitutes one of those minor triumphs of planning that is of almost no significance at all, but that is capable of making the gardener feel as though he had done something important.

To be sure, some mulches are intended to be permanent: stone chips, redwood, or pine bark chunks. Others (including the bark) can be left in place for several seasons, or lifted and discarded, or placed elsewhere (only a few can, with impunity, be turned into the soil and left to compost themselves). The mulches that are now to be removed for one reason or another can be directly transported and applied where they will presently be useful: off the perennial border (where, for example, the mulch has been doing weed and moisture duty) and on the new bulb plantings (where, for example, a mulch may remain until spring to enhance underground thermal stability). Make one trip do the work of two.

INCORPORATING LIVING FOR YOUNG HOMEMAKERS

On the cover: Facing the front door of the Harcourt Amory, Jr. [illegible] barn in New York's Westchester hills is an old English oak table bearing a constantly renewed welcome to all who enter. Arranged with as much care as a still life or a party centerpiece, an old tôle tray offers a harvest of polished Macs and a hoard of nuts, a few of which preoccupy some little iron fellows from Mrs. Amory's extensive and varied collection of animals. Completing this nibbler's buffet is an assortment of old-fashioned treats—apothecary jars of gumdrops, pretzels, peppermint balls, et al., and an old confectioner's scale laden with corn candy and candy raspberries. The door at the right, taken from an old jailhouse, was installed here years ago during one of the 150-year-old barn's several remodelings. For a long look at the rest of the house, please turn to page 212.

No more apologies.

Last year we ran an ad that said, "The Renault for people who swore they would never buy another one."

Take our word for it, you will never see an ad like that from us again. Ever.

We've got nothing to be apologetic about anymore. And the biggest reason for that is the Renault 10.

The Renault 10 has been in the hands of American drivers for over a year now, and it's holding up like the tough little car it is.

Naturally, we knew it was a rugged machine before we introduced it. It had to be. Our comeback depended on it. Only now, we're not alone in that opinion.

The word about the Renault 10 is getting around. And for us, there's a kind of justice in that.

Back when things weren't so hunky-dory, the talking almost killed us. Now the talking is giving us a whole new life.

This past year, for instance, we sold 85% more cars than the year before. And there's no end in sight.

Frankly, we have no one to thank for all this but ourselves. We have gone at it with a vengeance.

We made sure the Renault 10 would deliver an honest 35 miles a gallon.

We made sure it would have seats as comfortable as cars costing $5,000.

We made sure that 4 doors, 4 disc brakes, undercoating, and a lot of other things would be standard. Not optional.

We made sure every dealer in the country could get virtually any part within 48 hours.

We made sure the automobile would just plain stand up.

RENAULT

In short, we made sure that we would never have anything to apologize for again.

And, so help us, we never will.

After we make the finest bone china possible, then we really get to work.

It's hard enough being perfectionists about our fine English bone china. But on top of that we've got 150 patterns to be finicky about.

So: to get the look of a hand-painted pattern, we paint it by hand.

Whenever we put gold on Wedgwood, it's pure gold. Burnished by hand. (It's even purer gold than your wedding ring.)

All gold rims are brushed on by hand

For that matter, each and every pattern is applied by hand. Not just the intricate ones like these Florentines. We get just as involved with simple things.

The only man at Wedgwood who has an easy time of it is Mr. Meredith. His job is smashing. He throws Wedgwood rejects into a barrel to break them. So they can't ever end up in your home.

Now, that's easy. Especially since the rest of us work so hard, we don't have many rejects.

Pamela was born with an Oneida spoon in her mouth.

Now she's about to save $107 with Oneida's Sterling Dividend Plan.

There was sterling by Oneida in Pamela's house before there was Pamela.

So when she planned her wedding, Pamela planned on Heirloom® Sterling by Oneida. Her choice: "First Frost." (That's it, above; 4-pc. place setting, $36.50.)

Pamela's buying her sterling with the Sterling Dividend Plan. She selected service for 12, and will receive six free serving pieces (butter knife, sugar spoon, cold meat fork, gravy ladle and two tablespoons). Plus a handsome $25 chest (shown at right). She'll save $107.

If she'd chosen a service for 8, she'd have received four serving pieces (butter knife, sugar spoon and two tablespoons). Plus the chest. Total savings: $73.

On a service for 4, she'd still have received the two tablespoons. A $30 savings.

When you register for your Heirloom Sterling, be sure to ask your dealer about the Sterling Dividend Plan.

Have you ever had your skin analyze

Revlon Invents

Don't feel guilty when we tell you your skin is showing symptoms of an underprivileged past. It's not your fault. You may have lavished it with attention. Slathered it with creams. Given it everything money could buy. Except the one thing it's been crying for. Moisture.

Before you go off in a huff, muttering about all the moisturizers you have used (including our own), you should know this: moisture is meaningless unless it can get right down among those slack, drying-of-thirst cells where it can help replenish. Like plumping new life into your skin. So that, on the surface, all is sleek and serene.

Another fact to face: even the best moisture agents in the world (incl ing our own) can't work on a one-shot basis. You must keep moisture constant supply. Non-stop. 24 hours a day.

We've licked both these problems. Actually, we've come up with whole new approach to skin care. We call it 'group therapy'. We' developed deep-absorption moisturizers and put them into preparatio for every step of skin care. So that everything you use, from cleanse on, becomes a moisturizing specialist. Your skin literally lives in a ben cent moisturizing climate. Every waking (and sleeping) hour.

lo? Well, lie down, we want to talk to you.

Group Therapy
(for skin)

t's more, we've created a separate 'group plan' to penetrate the ems of each separate skintype. Dry. Oily. Or on-the-fence. Even if skin hasn't responded to moisture lotions before, it can't help react- these. (Even if you're the oily-skinned type who's made a fetish of ding moisture, you'll take to these 'specialists' like a thirsty plant.) you know what your skin's been deprived of all these years. So just lie there. Do something.

The complete 'Moon Drops' moisturizing collection by Revlon includes: Cleansing Creams, Cleansing Lotions, Toning Lotions, Firming Facials, Undermakeup Moisture Film, Night Creams, Eye Balm and Eye Makeup Remover. Available individually, or grouped for your particular skintype, at your Revlon counter now.

THOUGH IT'S FASHIONABLE TO BE THIN, WE MAKE SURE OUR CARPETS ARE FAT!

THE MAGEE CARPET COMPANY, BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Elva and Margaret run a watch-your-weight club for carpets.

This club works exactly the opposite from the way you watch your weight. It loves fat. Fat bouncy carpets. Fat carpets last longer. Fat carpets look richer.

Fat carpets look the same from one end of the room to the other. No difference in texture. No difference in tone.

Making carpet and nothing else for 75 years has taught us how to get them that way.

If it hasn't gone to our club, take it from the girls and don't buy it.

You see, we never send out a lightweight to do a carpet's job!

SECOND EMPIRE ESCRITOIRE

This inlaid and porcelain escritoire belonged to my grandmother. I have been told that the porcelain plaques are Sèvres. The bottom drawer has a velvet-covered tray, which pushes back to reveal a hidden drawer, and double locks. Can you tell me anything further about it? N.J.M.—Malvern, Pa.

Your writing table, designed for a lady's use, is in the French Second Empire style (1852-1870). Like most nineteenth-century design after 1815, this was an imitative style—the chief inspiration for your desk being eighteenth-century Louis XVI. If your plaques are true Sèvres, they will have a manufacturer's mark.

BELLEEK DISH

My mother received this Belleek dish as a wedding present in 1892. Was there more than one factory making Belleek in America? Is Belleek a rarity? J.K.P.—Bloomington, Ind.

Belleek with its pearly, lustrous glaze was produced at a number of American factories around 1880-1900. Perhaps the finest was Lotus Ware by Knowles, Taylor & Knowles, East Liverpool, Ohio. Examples of Belleek-ware are now collectors' items.

Will you kindly tell me the age of this chair? With the exception of the round stretchers, it is made of walnut and is rather heavy. D.I.—Fayetteville, Ark.

Your chair with its elongated S-shaped uprights and saber legs is in the American Directoire style that flourished from around 1805 to 1820. However, the round stretchers indicate that it was made later, probably around 1850—unless, of course, the stretchers, which you say are not walnut, are not the original ones.

FRENCH OIL LAMP

Can you tell us something about our oil lamps? We bought a pair of them some years ago from a New England estate. H.J.G.—Parkersburg, W. Va.

The gilt bronze tripod stand that holds the bowl of your oil lamp was adapted from an eighteenth-century, Louis XVI-style Brûle Parfum, a kind of incense burner. Your lamps are probably French, dating perhaps from the Second Empire, 1852-1870. Made in pairs, these burners were costly, and lamps made from them considered elegant accessories.

GERMAN WATCH

The watch I sketched was brought from France after World War II. It is handmade, ornately engraved, has no jewels in the movement, and is wound and set with a key. It has a double back, and the marks appear on the outer back. Can you tell me its age?
M.E.H.—Wenatchee, Wash.

The marks indicate that your watchcase is silver and was made in Germany some time after 1884 when Reich stamps for silver were instituted.

I recently moved into a house in which there was some furniture left by the former owner. Among the pieces was a cabinet with a label on the back containing writing in German. Can you give me any information about this piece?
N.S. Seattle, Wash.

The prototype of your secretary was introduced in France around 1750, and remained popular for about 100 years. As in the original, your secretary has a fall front which, when let down, serves as a writing board, and was probably made in Germany around 1850.

GERMAN SECRETARY

VICTORIAN SHELF CLOCK

I recently purchased this clock. Printed on its face is the name, E. Ingraham Co., Bristol, Conn. Could you tell me its approximate age?
S.K.—New Rochelle, N.Y.

The style of the wooden case would indicate that your clock was made by the Ingraham company between 1885 and 1895.

Notes for the Hostess

BY MARY MOON HEMINGWAY

This is the time of the year for family feasts which usually means a gathering together of divergent age groups. The more promptly the food is served, the lower the ratio of impatience and the higher the chances for unanimous enjoyment. In our family we have found that one way to facilitate the feasting is to eliminate long drawn-out carving and cutting. Kitchen-sliced or quickly carved meat, individual tarts rather than large pies, small cakes—anything that makes for instant serving saves time and young tempers.

For serving a magnificent bird or superior roast in the manner of the great restaurants, Soupçon of New York offers a truly professional serving cart. The oval top is a butcher-block-thick carving table. A chrome rack around the back holds all kinds of serving utensils, is removable if or when the occasion is too formal for tools to be in evidence. But if the host-chef wants to serve with a minimum of ceremony, the rack remains in place for easy access to the tools. There's also room below for other dishes. Would make a great addition for movable feasts.

When the guests at a buffet dinner are to eat at small snack tables, the whole arrangement will be more comfortable and attractive if trays set with silver, napkins, and glasses are ready to be placed on the tables at the last moment. Gives the hostess a chance to compose pretty place settings with individual flower arrangements, perhaps, or flower-ringed candles and a variety of color combinations—all the pretty touches that have to be skipped when the plates are placed right on the tables. Also makes clearing a lot simpler.

Temperature turnabouts—hot versions of dishes usually served cold, or vice versa—can add variety and verve to party menus. For instance: avocado halves stuffed with creamed mushrooms, cooked crab meat, peas, and bacon, and baked 20 to 25 minutes. Or hot vichyssoise, garnished with crumbled tinned French-fried onions. Or baked halved peaches, fresh or canned, with brandy sauce.

Felicitous for bird lovers, lovely for anyone who cherishes beautiful china: "Les Oiseaux" by Ceralene Limoges. Stark white ground, jewel bright birds, bees, and butterflies in bold contrast. A reproduction of an old Meissen pattern, it would be doubly dramatic used with a deep-colored cloth, perhaps an old damask one dyed ruby red or amethyst. With this, a flower arrangement of red and purple anemones in a white porcelain container would be pluperfect.

Elegant service is as essential to haute cuisine as masterful preparation. In fact, the serving dishes play a great part in the enticement. A case in point is a superb serving board for smoked or cold poached salmon or any cold fish to be served in large quantity such as red snapper masked with green sauce or kippered sturgeon. Shaped like a fish, the serving body is of solid walnut, the head and tail finished with silver or plated with 24-karat gold. And the size—35 inches long—is enough to accommodate a fish of luxurious length. An inland purveyor is Hall's of Kansas City.

"Please take care of my sister..."

TAICHUNG, FORMOSA—Two-year-old Su Ying, her parents dead, waits for her brother who will never return.

Little Su Ying was abandoned in the alley behind our Babies' Home in Formosa. She was frightened, cold and hungry.

But as you can see in the picture, someone had tried to make her look pretty. Her hair was combed and her dress, even though torn, was clean.

In her hand she clutched a note written by her brother:

"Please take care of my sister. Our parents are dead for many weeks. I am twelve and can no longer find food for this small sister. To my ears came news of your House, so I bring Su Ying to you."

Will you help us give Su Ying —and youngsters equally as needy —a chance to grow up in an atmosphere of love?

For only $12 a month you can sponsor such a child and receive his or her photograph, personal history, and the opportunity to write letters.

Your child will know who you are and will answer your letters. Correspondence is translated at our overseas offices.

(And if you want your child to have a special gift—a pair of shoes, a warm jacket, a fuzzy bear —you can send your check to our office, and the entire amount will be forwarded, along with your instructions.)

Since 1938, thousands of American sponsors have found this to be an intimate, person-to-person way of sharing their blessings with youngsters around the world.

And your help is desperately needed. Overseas, our staff reports boys and girls still search garbage dumps for food . . . babies abandoned in the streets . . . blind children locked in cellars . . .

Little Su Ying and children like her need your love. Won't you help? Today? Thank you.

Sponsors urgently needed this month for children in Korea, Taiwan, India, Brazil. (Or let us select a child for you from our emergency list.)

GOING PLACES, FINDING THINGS ON ELBA

Italy's once-and-future island which played host to Napoleon now lures vacationing visitors with a taste for solitude, seafood, and dolce far niente

BY LOUIS J. GARTNER

Portoferraio, Elba's capital, juts out into the Tyrrhenian Sea.

EDITOR'S NOTE: H&G's Creative Crafts Editor, Louis Gartner, an avid mineral collector, prefers to prospect places off the regular travel beat in his search for unusual, indigenous materials. His find on Elba: pyrite crystals, a beach full of malachite pebbles.

Islands have always intrigued me. Isolated by the sheltering arms of the sea, each has a chance to pursue and develop its own individuality and idiosyncrasies in a way few mainland regions can. Even occasional invasions, warlike or peaceable, seem to impinge little on their existence, and to the visitor willing to stroll and seek, to understand and appreciate, they slowly and sweetly reveal their unique character. Among the most individual are the islands of the Mediterranean countries, stretched along the great, early trade routes and now largely bypassed by the world of commerce. Some are gradually becoming engulfed in the rising tide of tourism, but others have so far escaped and remain virtually undiscovered. One of the least known of all these islands is Elba, possibly because the name conjures up little more than hazy schoolroom memories of a thwarted emperor in exile, marooned on a remote outcrop somewhere between France and Italy.

On a recent visit to Italy, I decided to investigate Elba and found it far from what I had expected, and utterly enchanting. In modern terms, it can hardly be described as remote, lying as it does about seven miles off the Tyrrhenian coast, midway between Florence and Rome, and easily reached by a daily service of fast hydrofoils or slower steamers (the hydrofoils carry only people, the steamers transport cars also). The hydrofoil trip takes a mere thirty minutes, the steamer about three times as long. Both leave for the island city of Portoferraio from the mainland port of Piombino, which can be reached by driving or, taking the mainline railroad, as I did, to Campiglia Marittima and transferring to a taxi.

Approached from the sea, Elba at first appears rugged, mountainous, slightly forbidding, but this impression changes the minute you enter the harbor of Portoferraio, one of those almost unbelievably paintable Italian waterfront cities with wall-to-wall terra-cotta-roofed houses in soft, sun-bleached shades of yellow and beige piled pyramid-fashion up a steep hillside, and a bay sparkling with fishing boats and sleek, spanking-white yachts. (Portoferraio, I was told, is one of the finest berths for pleasure craft in the Mediterranean.)

Unspoiled is an overworked and fairly inaccurate word these days, but it is true of Elba—at least when I was there in mid-September. Although my comfortable, balconied, sea-gazing hotel, the Darsena, was fully occupied and right on the waterfront, there was a noticeable absence of camera-carrying tourists and that exquisite Italian torture, the motor scooter. So far, it seems, only the indefatigable, bargain-seeking British, a few property-owning Europeans, and the Italians themselves are onto Elba.

With a population of only 11,000, Portoferraio is small, compact, and easily explored on foot. You can walk to the Villa dei Mulini, one of Napoleon's two island homes, where he spent the winter. It is a small house, not at all impressive, but personal and charming. There are only a few furnishings left (mainly some of Napoleon's letters, books, and other belongings) and frescoes on the walls, but the melancholy essence of lost majesty still pervades the rooms. Here it is possible to visualize Napoleon as a sad, lonely, disillusioned man, rather than a grandiloquent historic figure. The house partially encloses an equally tiny garden and from a walk overlooking the sea you have a panoramic view of Elba's rocky, magnificent coastline and scenery, mountains plunging steeply into iridescent blue-green water, with empty, crystalline beaches curling at their feet, tortuous roads snaking along the clifftops.

The roads (85 miles of them along the coastline alone) are excellent and with a car and a knowledgeable driver, a combination that can be hired for about $25 a day, it is possible to cover the whole island in a few days, with side trips to the mountains.

Elba is only 16 miles long and about 10 miles wide, but the changes in terrain and vegetation are extraordinary. The island is like a giant patchwork of mountains, ravines, wooded valleys, meadows, cliffs, and beaches, and as you drive up the climbing roads, the masses of semi-tropical succulents, oleanders, and olive groves give way to forests of chestnut trees carpeted with the fresh green of ferns.

About four miles from Portoferraio is San Martino, the site of Napoleon's hillside summer palace. Palace turns out to be a misnomer, for this is a tiny, elegant little (Continued on page 48)

HOW TO BUY A PIANO

Some of the things you should know—or decide for yourself—before you visit a dealer

BY RONALD GIBSON

If you are thinking about buying a piano, you have picked a good time to do it, for you will get more piano for your money today than you would have ten years ago, or for that matter, than ever before. But this doesn't mean that you can make your choice blindfolded or ear-stopped. A piano showroom can be an intimidating, sometimes treacherous, place for the uninitiated buyer. There is a good deal you ought to know before you walk in the door, and several questions you should be quite sure of the answers to.

Would it be smart to buy a used piano?

Some people will tell you that an old instrument is not only cheaper but better. Don't believe them. Unlike violins, pianos do not improve with age. In fact, they wear out faster than you might imagine. Inside the case is an enormously complex piece of machinery—some 12,000 parts are incorporated into the elaborate assembly of a concert grand—and it cannot remain in tip-top order forever. To the usual factors of friction and wear, add 35,000 pounds of string pressure and the adverse cumulative effects of climatic flux. Then you will begin to understand why the life of a piano seldom extends beyond two generations. Often a used piano will cause more heartache—emotional and financial—than the bargain price can override. Play it safe with a brand new instrument—one without a past!

What type of piano do you want?

If you have ample room and are relatively free of monetary worries, you might give serious thought to a grand. Not necessarily a 7½- or 9-foot concert grand (although if you can swing it, why not?), but a good, high-quality 5½- to 6-foot instrument that won't pre-empt all available space in your living room. Its great size, allowing for longer strings and a larger sounding board, puts the grand in a class by itself. No vertical piano can match it for carrying power and tonal range. Yet there are many good pianos among the non-grands, and one of these less space-and-money-consuming models could give you great satisfaction.

What is the difference between the big and small verticals?

Basically, there are three types of verticals. All three, like the concert grand, have a full eighty-eight-note keyboard. (Virtually every American piano built today is identical in this respect; a few European models—very expensive, of course—contain a few extra notes in the bass.) The largest vertical is the upright, or studio. A typical upright stands about 48 inches high, which allows for ample string length and correspondingly good tone. (Long, thin strings vibrate more easily than short, fat ones.)

The junior members of the vertical family are the console, about 42 inches high, and the spinet, a little over 36 inches. These smaller types come in a larger variety of styles and finishes than either grands or uprights, and are designed as much for visual reasons as for musical ones. The shorter strings employed limit the profundity of the bass notes, but improvements in technology continue to close the gap between these and larger pianos. At this stage in the game, however, the upright still has a clear edge over its smaller siblings.

How much will you have to spend?

In general, piano prices break down as follows:
Spinets: $400 to $1,200
Consoles: $600 to $2,000
Uprights: $600 to $1,800
Grands: $1,800 to $7,500

Do good pianos come in attractive designs?

Bear in mind that a piano is first and foremost a musical instrument, not simply furniture. Be wary of extreme or way-out designs: there are many small pianos whose beauty goes only skin deep. But you will find that today all the major piano companies offer a wide variety of good-looking designs—classic, French provincial,

The Tough Tub

Inside every KitchenAid dishwasher you'll find a tough tub. A wash chamber coated with a brand-new exclusive porcelain enamel finish called TriDura™.

You see, a wash chamber has to put up with a lot. Hot water. Strong detergents. Food acids. Stains. Scratches. Corrosion.

And TriDura can stand up to them all. For TriDura is completely different. Three coats of the highest premium grade of porcelain enamel. Three—not just one or two.

And the third coat makes a big difference. It's protective, like the overglaze on fine china. So TriDura can withstand hard wear day after day, year after year. And never show it.

It's a lot of special features like the tough tub that make KitchenAid dishwashers work better and last longer. So, any way you look at it, a KitchenAid is tough to beat.

Where is the best place to buy a piano?

First, head for a dealer who is well established in your community, preferably one who is in constant touch with local musical life. Then be sure that his store is laid out in such a way as to permit easy access to every piano. Many a department store music room is so arranged that it is almost impossible to sit comfortably at one piano without interference from an adjacent instrument. It's pretty hard to try out a piano while running the risk of bumping your head or your elbows against another one close-by.

The dealer's reputation is not only vital with regard to the initial purchase, it will be especially important during the long period that the piano is to reside in your home. A piano's warranty is only as good as the dealer's integrity. Warranty or no warranty, you are not about to have your half-ton instrument shipped off to the main factory some 1,500 miles away because the dealer has no reliable service program to help you maintain it in good shape.

How do you judge a piano's tone?

Your eyes can tell you if a piano is nicely finished, but only your ears can judge its tonal characteristics. You don't have to be an Artur Rubinstein to tell good sound from bad. Play a few notes in the bass, then in the treble. Strike a few chords in the keyboard area around Middle C. Do the same on several different pianos and compare the results. It is important to remember that no two pianos will sound exactly alike—even identical models by the same manufacturer. Like a fine jewel, each instrument is unique and you should have the one that sounds best to you. A good point to bear in mind is that most stores have bright acoustics because of large glass windows and hard surfaced floors. A mellow-sounding instrument in the store will probably sound a bit dull in a carpeted and curtained living room. In general, it is safer to opt for a brighter sounding piano.

Theoretically it is possible to change the tone of a piano from bright to mellow (or vice versa) through an operation called voicing. This is a job for a real specialist, however; not even a good tuner necessarily has the skill since it involves some very delicate tampering with the felt-covered hammers and requires the removal of a good chunk of the piano's innards. Almost no dealer is going to throw in this job as part of the tab, so if you're not happy with a piano's tone, forget it. Move over to another bench.

If you feel somewhat leery about making on-the-spot pronouncements about piano A's superiority vis-à-vis piano B—and this is certainly something to be considered—bring along a piano-playing friend to demonstrate. His performance will be less calculated than the salesman's to emphasize the assets of the various instruments and you will be able to concentrate on the sound with less self-consciousness.

How do you judge the touch?

In addition to sight and hearing, another sense that comes to the fore in selecting a piano is that of touch. How well the keys respond to your fingers is of prime importance. In general, it is preferable to choose a piano with a fairly "hard" action, for otherwise it will be difficult, if not impossible, for you or your children to develop strength and control in the fingers. A "soft" action requiring little pressure on the keys will become a barrier to well-disciplined technique. Even more important is all-around evenness. Every one of those eighty-eight keys, black or white, should require exactly the same amount of pressure to produce a note of similar volume. If the response of the piano you are sampling varies from note to note, no matter how nice you find its tone, try another model. The importance of this factor cannot be overstressed; a piano that has uneven action will hinder, if not completely prevent, the development of a well-controlled and even touch. The action can be regulated, but, like voicing, it is a painstaking and costly procedure, one that few dealers or manufacturers indulge in readily.

What materials should you inquire about?

Be sure that the sounding board of any piano you are considering is made of spruce. Discount any boastful sales talk about a laminated sounding board. In the piano business "laminated" is a euphemism for plywood, and plywood—

This slack suit took just 320 minutes to make on a Pfaff.

nd it was so easy—almost as easy as hild's play! Just a few dials to turn—lever or two to lift—that's practically ll you have to know to operate a new 'faff Sewing Machine.

You think we're exaggerating? Not bit! All sewing is far easier—far aster—on a Pfaff, because Pfaff gives ou so many time and work saving eatures—built right in.

'faff even threads your needle for ou. No more hunting and pecking or the eye of the needle. The threader inds the eye and slips the thread hrough. Presto—you're ready to sew.

No more fighting with fabrics when you finish a seam either. Just a flip of a finger clears the fabric for removal or your next sewing step. Your Pfaff has raised the needle with the presser foot and locked it—up out of the way. This feature—exclusive with Pfaff—saves you time and work at every turn.

And why stop sewing to wind a bobbin like you have to with other machines? On a Pfaff you put your bobbin on separately from your sewing and it winds away as you sew. No waiting. No removing your fabric while you wind through the needle.

Another feature you'll love is Pfaff's remarkable device for preventing variations and imperfections in your sewing. The bobbin remains stationary. The hook rotates forward with a steady motion releasing just the right amount of thread at just the right moment. The result is better sewing, quieter sewing and more precise sewing.

Easier, faster, better sewing is also yours because of Pfaff features like Pfaff's design selector, Pfaff's built-in embroidery unit, Pfaff's straight needle, Pfaff's extra power, Pfaff's self-regulating tension control, Pfaff's sleeve arm for mending and darning, Pfaff's glare-free finish, Pfaff's accommodation for three needles and Pfaff's famous built-in dial for selecting the stitch of your choice—to mention a few.

And just look at all the things a Pfaff does without extra cams, discs or attachments:

- straight stitch
- zig-zag stitch
- over-cast stitch
- hemstitching
- embroidery
- applique
- darning
- blind stitch
- sews on buttons
- rolled hems
- satin stitch
- button holes
- 1, 2 & 3 needle sewing
- scallop stitch
- cording
- machine painting
- braiding
- monograms
- faggoting
- mending
- forward and reverse
- basting stitch—better than the chain stitch—as your tailor does it—long, firm stitches that pull out easily—but not until you want them to.

In addition, you can simply dial more than 1,800 other decorative designs and stitch variations.

So you can see how the slack suit in the picture was made so quickly and easily and came out looking so professional. Which brings us around to the point of this ad—you must try a Pfaff. We'll show you in a brief demonstration why no other machine can make sewing as easy—as fast—and as efficient as a Pfaff. Then we're sure you'll want to rush home and start stitching up blouses, dresses, skirts—anything you want to sew—to make yourself and your family smart and fashionable.

Just don't be hoodwinked into thinking a Pfaff goes by any other name. Every genuine Pfaff has the name Pfaff right on the machine.

So get a Pfaff and get sewing—you'll love it.

Pfaff Sewing Machines are sold and serviced by Pfaff dealers throughout the United States and Canada.

WHAT'S NEW for living

Tranquilizer. The hostess whose kitchen boasts the new combination warming oven and range hood from Westinghouse can handle a delayed dinner with aplomb and a smile. The hood, which can be ductless or ducted, draws off kitchen heat and odors. The warming oven above it has removable sliding black glass doors and will keep food at a sizzling serving temperature or warm up breads and plates set under its two infrared heating lamps. Meanwhile the kitchen—and the cook—remain cool.

Baths of glory. Americans are supposed to have the most advanced bathrooms in the world, but we don't seem to have caught up yet with Europe's latest innovation—see-through bathtubs. In Paris, Michel de Lacour is making tubs of crystal and marble that sell for $9,317, which price includes exterior corners of gilded sculptured bronze, and gilded bronze taps studded with eyes of real ruby. The Shah of Iran was so taken by the sight, he recently ordered a pair—His decked out with amethysts, Hers with jade, both with diffuse lighting from below. In Italy, a young princess is having one made—locally and more frugally—in ruby red plastic.

Soap in all colors and flavors. After 215 years, New York's venerable pharmacy, Caswell-Massey, is making its celebrated soaps available to stores throughout the country. Among these luxurious latherers are: a green oval brimming with the fragrance of cucumbers; a plump red tomato made, of course, with tomato juice; a lettuce juice soap that has been a favorite in France since Louis XVIII; and a 3-pound slab of olive oil castile you cut off in hunks as needed. The firm will also color match soap to your bathroom. Simply tell them the color, or send a paint or wallpaper sample.

Plastique practique. Who says plastic can't be elegant? New from Dennison, the party decorations people, are disposable, hollow-stemmed champagne goblets. At less than $1 for six, these sparkly plastic glasses would lend great style to a picnic and could be left behind in the litter basket without a qualm. One drawback, however, is that they don't shatter when hurled to the floor à la Russe.

Cordless curtain closer. Electromagnetic power, slated someday to speed cars, trains, and subways silently along at 500 miles per hour, is in household use right now. It is the principle behind the Kirsch Company's "Electrac," an entirely new kind of traverse rod that opens and closes curtains at the touch of a switch. There are no cords or pulleys, no moving parts to malfunction, and the operation is as silent as a falling snowflake. Less expensive than cumbersome motorized rods, the new electromagnetic traverse operates on regular 110-volt house current and can be plugged in like any small appliance, or built into the wiring system of a new house. The remote control switch can be mounted wherever convenient—for instance, within reach of your bed so you can check the weather outdoors while still snuggled warmly under the covers.

Squeeze play. A stick-on-the-bathroom-wall fitting for toothpaste tubes solves the problems of lost tops and obviates battles between those who squeeze from the bottom of the tube and those who attack it from the middle. You screw the tube into the automatic dispenser, push the button, and the required amount oozes out.

THE KNIFE  FOR THE JOB

THE CHEF'S KNIFE

There is one knife that no true cook could exist without —the trusty, triangular-bladed carbon-steel chef's knife. Here, Julia Child, television's French Chef, demonstrates the expertise with which she wields this French knife (dubbed by her a "hacker-chopper"). For general chopping purposes, Mrs. Child prefers the knife with a 10-inch blade (blade sizes range from 7 inches to a monster 14), since the bigger the knife, the larger the area covered and the quicker the progress of the chopping or mincing.

Julia Child keeps her battery of knives sharp by frequent honing on a steel.

TO SHARPEN KNIFE

Press knife edge against steel at a 20-degree angle. Draw it across from handle of knife and top of steel to tip, several times. Repeat on other side.

TO JULIENNE OR DICE CARROTS

Lay peeled carrot on board. Cut strip from round outer edge so carrot lies flat.

Halve carrot crosswise. Lay a piece flat-side down; cut into thin strips.

Tummy muscles s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-d?

If you are "over 30"... chances are the natural girdle that holds-in your tummy, waistline, hips and thighs has s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-d a bit. Those lax unexercised muscles just DON'T seem to hold you in ENOUGH any more ... right? Yet – you really don't have the time or energy for "hard work" exercises.

Take heart.
NOW – there's a simply luxurious way to do your beauty exercises. Doesn't require a whit of effort. Relax-A-cizor firms up those muscles while you REST . . . at home! Puts the shape back in that muscular girdle.

Not weight loss! Relax-A-cizor is different. Reduces SIZE of hips, waistline, tummy and thighs.

Here's why it works!
Many women lack good muscle tone because they don't get enough exercise. Relax-A-cizor gives effortless, concentrated exercise to such figure areas as hips, waistline, abdomen and thighs. Regular use causes these areas to reduce in size measurably to the extent these muscles lack tone because of insufficient exercise. And the less the muscle tone the greater the degree of size reduction.

FREE! – Find out what effortless exercise can do for YOU. Send for your free copy of "How to Reduce Size of Selected Figure Areas." No cost. No obligation.

For julienne, line up strips, two by two, and cut them lengthwise into matchsticks.

To dice, line up a handful of julienne matchsticks and cut crosswise into fine dice. When chopping or slicing, always keep fingers bent so knuckles are against blade, fingertips tucked in.

SLICING AND MINCING MUSHROOMS

To slice caps, first remove stems by bending them back away from the cap. Then lay mushrooms inner-side down on board, and slice downward through crown.

To mince, first gather whole mushrooms together and chop roughly with knife.

Make heap of mushrooms. Grip back of knife blade near handle with one hand, tip with other. Chop with short, rapid, up-and-down strokes, occasionally pushing mushrooms back into heap with knife.

DICING AN ONION

Lay peeled onion on chopping board and cut in half vertically through root end.

Why Carvel Hall refuses to make an electric knife.

You don't carve with an electric knife. You saw.

Swiftly, yes. Effortlessly. Without difficulty. And without art.

Which depresses us. Because we still believe there's something grand about carving. It takes a simple chore like divvying up a roast and turns it into a small but gala performance. It is, indeed, a man's only chance to shine during a meal. And, though carving requires a certain skill, it's one you begin to learn the minute you hold a great knife in your hand. A Carvel Hall knife.

True, it's machine made. About one-third. Then proud hands take over. They hone the blade to a terrifying sharpness. Finish the handle with a series of vigorous rubdowns that go far beyond the merely essential. When a Carvel Hall knife is ready to be sold, it is perfect.

It will glide through meat. Even if you [illegible] with a stringy roast beef. And poultry. Even an overcooked turkey that [illegible] to crumble.

The blade will remain sharp year after [illegible] after your [illegible], it will [illegible] guests stop their conversation to [illegible] you carve, it will be to admire you. Not because they can't talk over the whir of an electric buzz saw.

Someday, perhaps, everyone will have switched to electric knives. And butane candles. And centerpieces made of plastic flowers.

If, in that far off and, we hope, unlikely future you suddenly long for some of the glitter and warmth that were once part of a great meal, just remember our address:

Lay one half flat-side down, root end way from you. Slice vertically, but not all the way through root end; slices should remain attached or they will fall apart.

Grip top of onion firmly with fingers of left hand and make horizontal slices from top to bottom, still leaving the slices attached at root end.

Make downward cuts with knife and the onion will fall into neat, even dice.

doll house, with perfectly restored frescoes on just about every square inch of wall and ceiling—even the minute bedrooms are frescoed, with subjects scaled down to fit. Napoleon is said to have supervised the painting himself and his influence is much in evidence—the main room is an Egyptian fantasy, all sphinxes and tropical trees, boldly painted and surprisingly contemporary. Below the house is a Napoleonic museum, with some rather inferior paintings by some well-known artists, a timid Canova of Napoleon's sister Pauline, and more letters and memorabilia.

Across the island from Portoferraio, the little port of Marina di Campo draws artists (there are some interesting small galleries), visiting yachtsmen, and people who want to get away from it all. Marina di Campo has the best sand beach, the most swinging restaurant, the Kon Tiki, and the most expensive hotel, the Iselba, a one-story structure of huge, rough blocks of native stone that sprawls in a pine grove. Rooms stretch out on either side of the main building toward the sea, each with a separate entrance and view, like a small apartment.

Every coastal town is a small gem—Biodola, a fishing village with pink houses and sand as fine as spun sugar; Procchio, with another great beach, a superb sea view and two modern hotels, the Del Golfo and the Desirée; Marciana Marina, with a tree-lined drive along the water's edge, a Saracen watchtower and two good restaurants, Sauro and Marinella.

A typical village street—cobblestoned and narrow—a millennium from the bustle of modern life.

Then there are the hilltop towns like Poggio, Marciana, and Capoliveri, where the Elbans fled from pirate invasions. Not quite walled, but planned for defense and safety, the towns are a maze of houses piled on top of each other with stairways connecting the different levels—like a miniature Casbah. Every level has its own

'18TH CENTURY CREWEL' BY Fieldcrest

tree-lined piazza, fragrant with magnolias and musical with the plash of a fountain; every doorstep and window is bursting with blooming house plants; and the people are friendly, hospitable, curious, quick to offer you a glass of wine and a chair to rest on. The streets, blessedly free of cars (these must be left outside the entrance to the town), are given over to ambling mules, dogs, and townspeople. On the warm September day I was in Marciana, the streets were full of women gossiping and knitting while the men pressed grapes in the stone sheds. I can understand why couturier Pierre Balmain has built himself a modern villa in the chestnut forests near the town, for you have a sense of harmony with nature there, an utter contrast to the world's restless capital cities.

The food, the wines, the shops

Like most other Mediterranean islands, Elba makes its own wines, the most famous being a rather heavy, red dessert wine called Aleatico. More to my taste was the grapy white Moscato, which should be drunk with one of the local fish dishes. Elba has incomparable seafood, fresh from the sea, and I much preferred it to the meat imported from the mainland. One of my favorite morning pursuits was to wander around the market at Portoferraio, a big exposition-type building filled with piles of fruits, vegetables, fish, the huge sea turtles the Elban chefs excel in cooking, and other strange-looking sea creatures I couldn't begin to identify. Here I sampled raw mussels with a squeeze of fresh lemon, sold at stalls to keep up the shoppers' strength and spirits. With my appetite whetted, I lunched at a small restaurant called Ben Asi (I can't remember the exact address, but it is across the street from the cement works and everyone in town knows where that is) where the seafood is displayed for you to pick and choose, then cooked to order. As I found it impossible to make up my mind, I decided to try a little of everything that was on the menu—the large red-headed capone, rather like a snapper; galinella, a long skinny fish cooked

THE ARCHITECTURE OF ELBA RUNS THE GAMUT OF DESIGN

The Villa dei Mulini in Portoferraio was Napoleon's winter home when he was living on the island of Elba, from 1814 to 1815.

A converted farmhouse, left, with characteristic Tuscan outdoor stairway leading to the upper floors. In the house, a corner of the music room, right, with eighteenth-century French tapestries.

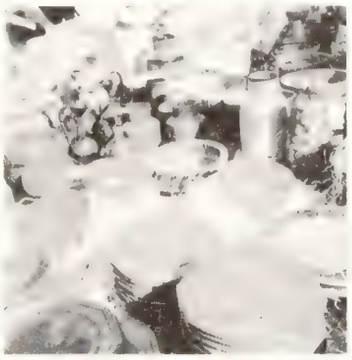
WURL

CAUTION: A Wurlitzer organ tends to attract crowds of laughing, singing people.

It's magic! Start playing a Wurlitzer organ . . . and suddenly you're surrounded by people having the time of their lives!

That's what's wonderful about a Wurlitzer. You can enjoy it by yourself (a great relaxer) or you can share the fun with others. And Wurlitzer Total Tone gives you a lot to share! With the flick of a finger you can create practically any musical sound—from clarinet to calliope, from mandolin to marimba. Chimes, harp, harpsichord, the appealing sweep of Hawaiian guitar, the plunk-plunk-plunk of the banjo, the big beat of a bass drum, the swinging sound of a sizzle cymbal, the deep-throated beat of native tom-toms—all these and many, many more are yours to enjoy.



Sound difficult? Far from it! With the exclusive Wurlitzer Hobby Lesson Course anyone can learn to play in no time. Send for a free sample lesson and see. Better yet, give it a try at your Wurlitzer dealer. That's where the real fun begins.

o a delectably crisp crunchiness; otani, a small squid, roasted whole; and the baby striped clam called arselle, stewed in its own uices and served over pasta with reshly chopped basil (I found all he Elban pasta dishes wonderful, ight, tasty, delicately sauced with omatoes and fresh herbs).

The shops in Portoferraio have a slim selection of things to buy apart from postcards, Napoleonic charms for bracelets, and some rather pretty glassware, which didn't appear to be local. But on a Friday, the day the weekend outdoor market takes over the main piazza behind the Darsena hotel, I spotted amidst the piles of dresses, sandals, and leather bags some crude but colorful pottery in vivid reds and blues and bought some of the octagonal plates.

While investigating the shops throughout the island, I frequently noticed all kinds of rocks and minerals—hunks of crystal and sculptured-looking chunks of pyrite, the glittering, gold-veined iron ore. It had never occurred to me that there might be mines on Elba but, after inquiring, I found that surface mining, the ancient basis of the island's economy, is still going full blast, as it has ever since the days of the Etruscans. Elba was, in fact, the beginning of the Iron Road to Rome (Portoferraio translates as Iron Port) and the mining wealth attracted the attention of pirates and other invaders.

The mines are not generally open to the public (although the tourist office at Portoferraio can usually arrange for a tour), but a visit to the offices of the mining company netted me a trip to two of them, Rio Nell'Elba and Calamita, where 70 per cent of Italy's iron ore is mined. At Rio Nell'Elba I picked up a sackful of nice golden pyrite nuggets than I could carry, and had regretfully to jettison most of them. But I found the beach at Calamita even more rewarding and thrilling, for here malachite, azurite, and chrysocolla pebbles are washed up from subterranean mineral deposits, thousands upon thousands of them, all there for the gathering.

My last day on the island was spent making a leisurely circuit of some of Elba's other small towns, remote and not reachable on the main roads. I carried away an unforgettable picture of the last one I saw, Fetovaia, a tiny place clinging to a hillside, sloping down to the sea. With its piled-up perspective of houses in the most glorious colors of stone imaginable, built over open stalls for mules and chickens, it looked like the original model for every Neapolitan crèche ever made. This, to me, summed up the peaceful pastoral charm of an island which is still more residential than tourist. Like every other blissful spot left on earth, Elba is probably due for a travel boom, but it could absorb a lot of people without losing its essential spirit. I am glad I saw it in time, while it is still Napoleon's island and mine.

If you would like more information about Elba where to stay, what to see, please fill in this coupon and mail to House & Garden Reader's Service, 420 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y., 10017.

Polycrest.® The carpet fiber tested in Persia.

Magee's "Color Flair" carpet is 100% Polycrest olefin fiber.

Magee's "Color Flair" photographed at the Colbeh in Teheran.

"Dancing on this carpet is like dancing on a cloud," said Sonia.

The Persians have been making fine carpets for 3,000 years, but when they saw Polycrest olefin, they were impressed.

Sonia had never seen a carpet with such deep, springy pile. "I could have danced all night," she said.

The Persians were quite surprised to learn that this soft, luxurious carpet was made with the most stain- and wear-resistant carpet fiber in the world.

"I have seen America's miraculous fibers before," said one rug merchant, "but nothing so lovely as this."

Nobody knows more about fine carpets than the Persians.

They were impressed.

You will be, too.

This Woman ...s Slimming ...Her Waistline-

By Blowing Out the Candles On An Imaginary Cake!

100,000 COPIES ALREADY SOLD!

Why such run-away sales? BECAUSE IT WORKS. Read the astounding details on this page. It's a miracle book!

She will perform this ingenious EFFORTLESS EXERCISE for e minute— no longer—and from that moment on she will stand raighter, and look slimmer and younger than she had in years.

The difference in her appearance will be al-ost exactly as if she had gone on a strict diet r one to two weeks—but she will have accom-ished the same slim waistline in seconds.

And then she will go on, to attack the pre-ature wrinkles that make her look years older an her calendar age—by concentrating this ne, not on her face but her feet.

She will learn how to float the upper part of r body in air—so that it actually feels weight-s—so that she can work or play all day with ly half the energy requirement (and only half e tiredness) that she felt before.

And then she will loosen and strengthen the al lower area of her back—and for the first ne in her life "iron out" those ridgy washboard ner thighs that no other exercise could ever ach—all by doing nothing more than perform-one simple gesture for one additional minute ITH HER ANKLE.

Perhaps the Easiest Exercises Ever evised, They Will Give You a New Face and a New Figure If You Give Them Five Triumphant Minutes Every Day!

To repeat again, in five minutes this woman ill have given herself a beauty treatment far ore effective than the most expensive beauty alon in the world. And it will have cost her othing.

And no external treatment ever invented could er give her the thrilling new energy and day-ng resistance to weariness and fatigue that she ill gain in these five minutes.

How can it be done? As simply as this:

This woman is a pupil in perhaps the most fas-nating look-younger, feel-better program ever onducted. Over twenty classes teach this pro-am in the city of Chicago alone. Over 100,000 eople have already bought this program, in book rm, to use in the privacy of their own homes.

Dozens of doctors have already recommended is program to their own patients for the health nefits alone: to give these people desperately-eeded sleep without tranquilizers or drugs...to elp strengthen torturous backs...to bring back e natural energy drive and vigor that these men id women may have thought they had lost rever.

The name of this wonder-working program is ODY DYNAMICS. In essence, it is a series of ief EFFORTLESS EXERCISES—designed to lock the natural strength and beauty of both ur face and figure.

It is now available to every woman who is will-g to gamble a five-cent stamp—no more—and a ngle weekend of her time to prove its incredible sults in her own home.

Here is what the first weekend alone will give you. It starts with the most vital beauty-restorer of all—sleep.

The Way Most Women Sleep Ruins Their Faces By Age Thirty. Here's How a Simple Shift in Your Sleeping Posture Will Take Years Off The Appearance Of Your Face and Neck.

The book starts by reminding you of an inescapable fact:

Most women's beauty is destroyed—not as much by age or dirt or exposure to weather—but by the way their face and neck are squeezed up into a wrinkled ball when they fight themselves to sleep every night.

Yes, for seven or eight hours every night, the way you sleep presses wrinkles into your face—makes you seem years older than you have any need to look, once you have been taught the RIGHT way to sleep.

Therefore, the very first thing this amazing BODY DYNAMICS program does for you is this: It teaches you a simple three-minute ritual that transforms sleep from a beauty-destroyer to a beauty treatment.

This ritual is composed of two steps. The first step shows you how to send automatic "Sleep Signals" to your mind, your back and your heart—so that you simply turn off disturbing tensions, and let your body get ready to float effortlessly into deep sleep.

The second step arranges the parts of your body a new way in your bed. So that your body sinks so deeply into your mattress that sleep must come. So that the small of your back is completely unburdened at last. So that there is not a single pressure on any nerve center in your entire body.

And—most important of all—so that now your head is perfectly aligned on your pillow—with the neck muscles relaxed and yet strengthened...the chin completely uplifted...every inch of the skin of your face smoothed and glowing and toned. ...The entire face, neck and chin being given an eight-hour beauty treatment.

You will learn this simple ritual the very first evening you pick up this book. You will wake up the next morning more refreshed than you have known in years. And you may gasp in joy at the new youth you see in your face in the mirror that very same morning.

But this is only the first gift you receive from this amazing book. Here are just a few of the others:

Your Own Breath is the Best Streamliner—If You Use it This Way

On page 62, for example, you're shown an Effortless Exercise that causes you to breathe a new way—and that forces those protruding hips and abdomen of yours to draw themselves in, automatically.

On page 45, another Effortless Exercise teaches you to walk like a queen, instantly. Use this technique to draw admiring glances to yourself, from the very first moment you walk into a new room.

Page 54 is sheer gold. Because it gives you another Effortless Exercise that takes the continual ache out of your lower spine from the very first day you try it. You'll be astounded at the thrilling new freedom for working, playing, bowling, golfing, dancing, living that this simple "unlocking" motion gives you.

And page 57 puts to work your Built-In Posture-Corrector to help you get rid of this sway-back, hollow-chest, slumped over shoulders that have plagued you for years. And, at exactly the same time...

Your Body's Built-in Relaxers and Strengtheners Are Now Put to Work for You for the First Time

For example—

On page 33 you discover a six-second motion with your mouth, that instantly relaxes the overtense muscles of your chest, heart and solar plexus—and drains hyper-tension out of your body like water running from a sieve.

On page 69 you discover how to turn the everyday movements of life into complete exercises by themselves. So that every time you sit, or stand, or reach out to pick up an object, you are effortlessly exercising and streamlining your body—keeping yourself in top condition without even realizing it.

On page 113 you use, for the first time, your body's own built-in vibrator—that has you bursting with energy every morning in seconds...that calms you down after a full day's work—in two or three thrilling minutes—and gives you a new spurt of vitality for the evening's fun.

A Final Word of Warning

All these, and much more, are contained in Gertrude Enclow's revolutionary new Body Dynamics—yours to read from cover to cover without risking a penny.

Two words of caution must be added, however:

1) It is a short book. It has only 128 pages in all. If you are a fast reader, you can finish it in a single weekend. Do not, therefore, expect a huge weighty tome, full of useless theory. Every page of this book is packed with practical, step-by-step direction, that you can use immediately to give you the strength and health and beauty that are locked up inside your body today.

2) And most important of all—do not be misled by the ease and simplicity of the movement given you in this book! Since most of them can be performed sitting down or lying in bed...since most of them have been mastered by men and women as much as ninety years of age...since none of them even cause you to "work up a sweat"—you may think for the first day or two that they can not really be doing you that much good.

Amana gives you a set of decorator panels free when you buy an Amana decorator model refrigerator-freezer for Christmas.

It's our way of saying Merry Christmas! Just because you decided to buy an Amana.

Choosing your Amana refrigerator-freezer will be easy, compared to picking out the decorator panels. That's because there are 329 different designs and several wood panels to choose from.

If it takes you six months to make up your mind, that's OK. The decorator panel gift certificate your Amana dealer will give you is good for six months on any Amana decorator model purchased between now and December 31, 1967.

The panels are simple to install. They slide easily onto the door of the unit. If you want to go back to white or coppertone, take them off. Or if you change your kitchen, you can match your new decor with your Amana decorator panels.

Of course, decorator panels are only part of our story. The Amana 22 decorator model shown holds 22.3 cubic feet of food but is only $35\frac{3}{4}$" wide. And it's loaded with exclusive Amana features like a meat keeper with its own cold control, adjustable cantilevered shelves on recessed tracks* and independent cold controls for both refrigerator and freezer. You can set one without affecting the other.

Or maybe you'd prefer an Amana decorator freezer-at-the-bottom model with all the useable storage space and attention to quality Amana is famous for. And both models are covered by Amana's exclusive 5-Year Total Appliance Warranty.

Visit your Amana dealer today and decide on one of these decorator model refrigerator-freezers. Never before has Amana had an offer as generous as this one.

Your Amana dealer is handing out the presents right now. Be sure you're in line—to tell him which one you want.

Poor Harry. He tries so hard to be helpful.

But the inevitable always seems to happen. All over the Four Seasons carpeting.

Harry's wife doesn't worry, though. Four Seasons by General Felt Industries was meant to take abuse.

After all, it's indoor-outdoor carpeting made with face of 100% Marvess® olefin, a Phillips 66 fiber.

Four Seasons is practically impossible to stain. Spots and spills wipe right off. It resists rot, mildew, stretching, shrinking and fading, too. All of which makes it ideal for basements, family rooms, kitchens, poolsides, patios—any number of areas you never dared carpet before.

Whether there's a Harry in your house or not, you'll appreciate Four Seasons carpeting. Look for it in handsome colors at your floor covering dealer

THE TRUE OLD-STYLE KENTUCKY BOURBON

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKY ... PROOF EARLY TIMES DISTILLERY COMPANY LOUISVILLE KENTUCKY ©1960

The Skinny Blanket. You don't have to hide it under a bedspread.

We'd like you to meet the blankets that are kicking spreads off of the beds.

Chatham's new Heritage Collection. Each is a Skinny Blanket with a crisp, handsome print that looks like a coverlet. And for that very reason, each has a delicate fringe around it.

The one shown here is New England Heritage. It contrasts the simplicity of sturdy saltboxes with hearty revolutionary themes recalling the birth of a great nation.

Western Heritage combines quaint Spanish haciendas with rolling stage coaches and rugged covered wagons to relive the days of America's spirited move west.

Southern Heritage takes us back to gracious antebellum plantations with pretty belles surrounded by garlands of cotton blossoms and sweet magnolia.

Federal Heritage blends stirring American eagles and Federal shields to tell of a vigorous, young country starting to grow.

Their bold colors and detailed patterns come from the unique way Chatham make the Skinny Blanket. It's the Fiberwoven® proces It makes the Skinny Blanket warm and snug, bu not fat and fluffy. Since there no fluff, theres nothing to clou the print. And nothing to shed c pill all over the place. You won have to watch it go to pieces i little balls or fluff under your bed

Another thing about th Fiberwoven process. It mean the Skinny Blanket only shrink slightly, even if you wash it 5 times. Because we take all th rest of the shrinkage out of i long before it reaches you. (If i were an ordinary blanket, tha would be about 10%.) The Skinny Blanket can be washed and washed. It will still fit the bed and keep the rich, clear print it starts out with.

So not only will you not want to cover it up when it's new, you won't have to when it's old.

The Heritage Skinny Blanket, both a blanket and a coverlet from $14.98*. Other Skinny Blankets start at $8.98*. And they all carry the Good Housekeeping Seal.

Chatham. We're the only ones who make the Fiberwoven Skinny Blanket.

ERE ARE 70 COATS OF ARMS LISTED HERE...

THERE ARE OVER 500,000 MORE COATS OF ARMS IN THE ARCHIVES OF SANSON INSTITUTE

O HOW THE SANSON INSTITUTE HAS PRESERVED RECORDS FROM OVER 20 EUROPEAN COUNTRIES

60, Mr. William Hubert Seddon of Sheffield, England began a library of coats This collection of books, written in the mediaeval language of the "Heralds", ght to the United States and from this collection the archives of the Sanson of Heraldry in Boston was begun. Representatives of the Sanson Institute antly searching for still older sources and additional reference volumes in revive interest in the art of heraldry and its meanings. A trip to Holland, a d in Brittany, a visit to a small village library in southern Italy . . . all have ed to the compilation of what is recognized as one of the most complete libraries in existence. The Sanson Institute research staff has been trained to carefully and correctly the mediaeval heraldic language and to interpret ally the meanings and descriptions of these Coats of Arms. Modern techno- dvances were called upon to execute the monumental task of attaining the ability to research, draw, and catalogue over 500,000 names and Coats of Arms, as well as their interpretations and reference sources. Many of our reference books are centuries old (some dating back as far as the 1600's). The Sanson Institute, through its knowledge of heraldic practices can determine by accepted formulae a coat of arms applicable to a surname exactly the same as yours or an older form of that surname from which your present name may have emerged. Utilizing their highly skilled and specialized personnel to give meaning to the knowledge which has come down from the Middle Ages, the Sanson Institute can now offer you a most decorative and colorful coat of arms which was earlier granted to a distinguished person whose surname was the same as, or an earlier form of, your family name . . . a replica of an antique that will be a welcome addition and conversation piece in every home.

It's just that we skimped on this one. . .on purpose. We wanted to make an uncomplicated floor lamp that could stand by quietly in any living room. One that would blend with any decor. A lamp that's there but isn't. The 57" stem is chrome or brass. The base is black metal. The 14" shade is also black. It takes a 50-200-250 watt 3-way bulb. There's a lot to this not-much lamp.

Dr. Joseph Murphy, Minister of the Church of Divine Science Shows You—

THIS OFFER MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENT OF YOUR ENTIRE LIFETIME! . . . AND YOU GET IT FOR 10 FULL DAYS FREE!

In this book you'll discover how to pray and grow rich — "and I promise you immediate results," says Dr. Joseph Murphy. "Yes," Dr. Murphy promises, "you can ask for direction and guidance — and receive it." And when you do he says, "you positively, definitely and absolutely will find the external riches of nature!"

And Dr. Murphy promises you results not in a year — not in a month — not in a week — but immediately. Yes, says Dr. Murphy, "my prayer techniques will bring you immediate results!"

"ALL WHO USED THESE TECHNIQUES BECAME RICH— WITHOUT FAIL!"

Here, in Dr. Murphy's own words (which you'll read on page 60), are the results of these prayer techniques—

"All of the case histories presented in my book are of men and women who became rich by using the mental and spiritual laws described in it, and, to my personal knowledge, these people belong to all religious denominations. Moreover, they come from every income bracket and from every social level. All of these people have amassed great wealth!"

HOW TO EXPERIENCE THE JOY OF AN ANSWERED PRAYER

Have you ever felt the thrilling response of an "answered prayer"? Those who have are lucky to experience such a wonderful blessing once in an entire lifetime! But now, Dr. Murphy can show you how to make this thrilling experience come true for you—and he promises you "immediate results." As soon as you receive your copy of this amazing book, turn right to page 166. There Dr. Murphy shows you "How To Experience The Joy Of The Answered Prayer!"

On page 25 is a perfect example of what this joy is like:

It's the amazing true story of an elderly woman to whom Dr. Murphy had given a special prayer. Up until he did, she and her husband were receiving a very small monthly pension and could merely make ends meet. You'll see how she was soon able to exclaim in joy "it was a miracle," when, after affirming the prayer for two weeks—she was given $10,000 "out of the blue!"

ASTONISHING RESULTS WITH PRAYER TECHNIQUES

You say this is too much for you to believe . . . that it's too good to be true? Well then, can you explain the astonishing things that happened after people used Dr. Murphy's prayer techniques? Can you explain—

(1) how numerous people make use of a certain formula for paying bills with marvelous results (p. 37)

(2) how a poverty-stricken couple received $10,000 "out of the blue" in response to their request (p. 25)

(3) how a man was able to triple his income in three months with a certain 28-word prayer that takes only ten seconds to repeat (p. 98)

(4) how a boy ten years of age constantly receives gifts of money wherever he goes (p. 7)

(5) how L.L. used a one sentence prayer to rise from a job as an office boy to the owner of a 50 million dollar company (p. 178)

. . . or explain any one of the scores of wonderful things that happened to people who used Dr. Murphy's prayer techniques!

you'll swear it's a fabulous diamond...

(but it really isn't)

Earrings and pendants available

Men's rings, cuff links and tie tacks available

No-risk approval plan allows you to personally examine the fiery brilliance and the precious, genuine look of the most exciting simulated diamond discovery of the 20th Century . . . a jewel that undeniably has all the fire of a fine diamond!

YET PRICED AS LOW AS $40 A CARAT

(about 1/20th the price of a fine diamond)

The WELLINGTON simulated diamond is one of the most convincing laboratory made products of its kind in the world today—a triumph of science and an achievement of extraordinary significance in the world of man-made jewels.

FLAWLESS AND FIERY

The fabulous look of the WELLINGTON is possible because it actually has a refractive index of 2.409 which gives it its exciting brilliance. This is comparable to a diamond's brilliance which has an index of 2.417—a mere difference of .008 which is hardly detectable by the naked eye. The WELLINGTON is singly refractive, therefore, it never has a "fuzzy" look. The WELLINGTON is clear white, dispersing a blaze of spectral colors. It is so genuine looking in appearance that it remarkably resembles a diamond. As such, it is now being worn throughout the world by people with an unerring sense of dignity and good taste.

A WORD OF CAUTION

Much confusion exists in the public mind today about semi-precious and simulated stones that there may be those who might confuse the WELLINGTON with spinel, titania, zircon, rhinestone, rutile, and white sapphire, all of which are sold under different trade names to resemble a diamond. The WELLINGTON is entirely different from any of the above products. The WELLINGTON never has a dull, fuzzy, or yellowish look such as some of these but, on the contrary, it is clear and flawless, full of fire and brilliance. It is in a class by itself.

CUT ON A DIAMOND WHEEL

Skilled lapidists cut and polish the WELLINGTON on a diamond wheel approximately the same way that a diamond is cut—in full 58 facets—brilliant and flawless. Master jewelers then enhance its beauty with exquisitely executed mountings of 14K solid gold. Unless told differently, most people, looking at it, would find it hard to tell for sure that the WELLINGTON is not a real diamond.

NO OBLIGATION TO BUY

Send for the WELLINGTON booklet showing designs and carat sizes for men and women. It illustrates our line of excitingly styled ladies' and men's rings, earrings, pendants, men's cuff links and tie tacks along with price list and ring sizing chart. Terms are available.

We are so convinced that only by your personal examination of the WELLINGTON can its radiance and beauty be fully appreciated that we are willing to make you this no cost, no risk offer: Order on approval basis whichever style appeals to you, from 1 to 20 carats, in round, pear, marquise, or emerald cuts. Your selection will be expertly custom set and sent via registered mail. If you are not completely satisfied, return within ten days and we will promptly refund your money.

PORTRAITS IN OIL

"EVERY PAINTING A MASTERPIECE"

● Magnificently painted on canvas from old or new photos, by outstanding European and American artists. A superb living likeness in full color is executed in rich oils.

● 12 portrait painters to choose from Van Dyke Oil Portraits from photographs are indistinguishable from those done from life. It is of special advantage to those who are not available for personal sittings. All that our artists require (besides the photograph), to create a superb living likeness is a description of the color of the subject's hair, eyes, complexion.

No longer need you envy those fortunate enough to own a family portrait . . . you, too, can now own one. Like them you can see immortalized, for all time, the loved and never ageing personality of your wife, husband, children, parents, grandma or granddad, each faithfully captured at a particular moment of their lives.

Van Dyke Oil Portraits are TRUE WORKS OF ART, painted from your photograph and not a top-to-bottom enlargement of your photo as is the method of other commercial portrait services. The latter commercial method has a life span of about two years, while our genuine PORTRAITS IN OIL will last for many centuries.

AMBROSIA

Just picture these irresistible kittens in your own home. Everyone who sees these appealing waifs falls in love with their adorable warmth and touching wide eyes. You simply want to take them into your home and into your heart. That's because the artist, Gig, one of America's most perceptive painters of animals, has captured the universal appeal and charm of these intriguing felines. Under his sensitive brush, the wistful quality of kittens and the realistic backgrounds combine to give a compassionate glimpse of life. Unfortunately the black and white illustrations here cannot possibly convey all the artist's magical colors and exquisite details. Only when you see them in your home can you fully appreciate their magnificent artistry and exquisite beauty.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order your full color prints now while the supply lasts. The dramatic portraiture of animals is the latest decorator rage, and these are certain to go quickly. In order to show some of the craftsmanship and intricate detail in all the pictures, we have shown one picture larger than the rest. Actually all four fine art prints are the same size, a full 10" x 14" decorator size. So hurry, order now, offer will not be repeated this season in this magazine.

It's the best... It's the most...

of House & Garden recipes by such famous authorities as James Beard, Julia Child, Craig Claiborne, Dione Lucas, June Platt, Elaine Ross, Myra Waldo and many more.

It's House & Garden's New Cook Book

a superb, 404-page selection of over 1,000 recipes from House & Garden printed for the first time in book form. You'll find recipes for everything from hors d'oeuvres to desserts with pages of invaluable information on cooking processes, techniques and equipment, and over 375 illustrations, many in full color. There are more detailed drawings of cooking techniques in House & Garden's New Cook Book than you can find in any other gourmet cook book ever published. You will see exactly how our experts make a dobos torte, lard a roast of meat, bone a trout, flute a mushroom, make quenelles de brochet. Follow them, and it's a snap.

In HOUSE & GARDEN'S NEW COOK BOOK you will find the recipe you may have loved and lost, like Mrs. John Beckley of Scottsdale, Arizona, who wrote:

"Your magazine published an article on Swiss fondue and unfortunately I can't find my copy. Would it be possible to buy a reprint?" Often we had to reply regretfully that the recipes requested were out of print. Now they are in print again, all handsomely bound in a lavishly illustrated book and fully indexed so you can put your finger on the one you want in seconds.

Here are some of the recipes, each one a culinary tour de force that will make your reputation as a cook: Beef Wellington with Périgueux Sauce. Lobster Strudel with Béarnaise Sauce. Oyster Rockefeller à la Franey. Roast Turkey Woburn Abbey. Baked Lobster Fire Island Style. Breadfruit Vichyssoise. Miniature Shrimp Quiche. Rolled Chicken Pâté. Crêpes Directoire. Soufflé Orientale.

And it is all yours for a free two-weeks trial by filling in the coupon below.

New furniture designs with origins in 18th Century France create a room with "that Thomasville look." They're from our Place Vendôme collection, faithful to Louis XV styling in curving lines, cabriole legs, opulent upholstery fabrics. What makes "that Thomasville look" so important in decorating today? It's the way we design and craft our furniture with all the skills and artistry we have learned in 63 years. We know that the beauty of a sofa, for example, starts with what's inside (and we have a world of fabrics to cov it in beauty, too).

Making furniture with "that Thomasville look" is a matter of pride with us. After all, we war you to be proud of it, too! ©THOMASVILLE FURNITURE INDUSTRIES, I

HOUSE & GARDEN, NOVEMBER, 1967

SURPRISE is happiness
SURPRISE is excitement
SURPRISE is fun

Once there was a little girl who loved desserts. Every night at dinner, when dessert was known to be on its way, she slipped down from her chair, crept under the tablecloth (it always reached to the floor), and in the mysterious under-table half light, guessed audibly what the dessert was going to be. When she was right, she was very pleased. But when she was wrong, she was ecstatic. For the only thing she loved more than dessert itself was a dessert that was a surprise. The child grew up, as you might well hope, to be a proper calorie counter. But she never outgrew her love of surprises. Whoever does?

Surprise is the quintessence of delight, the circumstantial quality that makes nice things even nicer. But to lift the spirit rather than shattering it, of course, a surprise must be gentle. The violence of shock is no delight.

Surprise glorifies any gift. Generosity accompanied by unexpectedness acquires an extra dimension that seems to convey not merely thoughtfulness but empathy.

Surprise can make a party. For hospitality, too, takes on another dimension when its elements are unpredictable: a background that is unfamiliar, even adventurous; a menu that includes one unlooked-for dish; an after-dinner divertissement that is not taken for granted. Surprise triggers spontaneous reactions rather than habitual politesse—which augurs a livelier time for everyone.

Surprise steps up the charm of any house. Who is not entranced to discover a familiar material used in a wholly offbeat way, to encounter this-minute sophistication in an antique rustic shell, or romantic flourishes in a house as modern as a transistor or a laser?

The pleasures of anticipation can be great, but they die fast if the event falls short of its billing. The pleasure of surprise lives in the memory.

In a remodeled barn:

"LOTS OF COMFORT AND A BIT OF HUMOR"

At the back of the house the upper level o[pens] looking the lushly planted gard[en] and [pool]

"One of the things that makes this house so warm and reassuring," says Mrs. Harcourt Amory, Jr., of the remodeled barn she and her husband bought a year ago, "is the century-and-a-half of loving use it has had. The place is filled with friendly ghosts—animal and human." For years the barn was part of a working farm in the Westchester hills in New York State. Later, with the addition of some fine old doors and windows, it was turned into a community meeting place that became the scene of many a rollicking square dance. The building's next owners turned it into a house and the Amorys took over from there, furnishing it as a year-round house for weekends. But they often stay there during the week as well.

"I love it so much that I sometimes drive up from New York to spend a few weekday hours gardening or just to be here," she says. They are fond of the rural setting and the sense of isolation the house gives them, but they have purposely refrained from furnishing it in a self-consciously rustic style. "We didn't want an imitation American farmhouse," Mrs. Amory explains, "just the casual mood of the country plus lots of comfort and a bit of humor." With this aim and the help of interior designer Charles Dear, she gave the house a fresh, sparkling look that varies delightfully from room to room. You are greeted by a series of surprises as you move from one to another, and the changing effects are emphasized by the changing scale and character of the architecture. Downstairs where the low ceilings and rough stone walls suggest a cold-climate house, the furnishings are mostly English in style; upstairs where the ceilings are loftier, the mood suggests the warmer Mediterranean countries. But everywhere in the house the obvious and the banal have been bypassed in favor of the personal and the unexpected.

The main entrance, OPPOSITE PAGE, leads to the one-time stall section on the lower level of the old barn which was built into the side of a hill. Here the spirit of the house is immediately apparent in the juxtaposition of the elegant antique French eagle against the rough stone wall of the exterior, and in the hooked rugs with frog motifs that presage the innumerable animals in varied decorative forms which Mrs. Amory has collected for years. Through the old Dutch doorway you can also catch a glimpse of the round table under the clock that offers, always, a welcoming variety of nuts, fruits, and sweets to nibble on—the same tempting array that you see close up on our cover.

You can look straight through the freestanding fireplace to the dining area and its huge octagonal table which can seat as many as sixteen—and often enough, does.

Downstairs: mixed antiques in one big room

Freestanding stone fireplace open on all four sides divides the big stone-walled space on the lower level into a genial informal sitting room and a dining room plus open kitchen. The sitting room, where the Amorys relax when they are alone or serve after-dinner coffee when they have guests, is a potpourri of Americana (the white-painted cast-iron eagles supporting stone shelves against the side walls), English furniture and pewter, French fabrics, a Portuguese rug. The dining room with its Yorkshire oak chairs (there are eighteen in all) has the hearty straightforward look of an English pub, a place where you can be at ease for hours.

An old pottery urn turned into a fountain splashes water into a small pool outside door.

Over the sofa at the quiet end of the room, one of Mrs. Amory's favorite animal paintings.

Upstairs: mixed colors in the lofty living room

Like the sitting-dining room downstairs, the living room on the upper level is divided by a freestanding fireplace, in this case a round one circled by a raised stone hearth. One end of the room opens to a terrace where the Amorys like to greet their guests, bringing them indoors for cocktails before going down to dinner. The other end of the room is furnished as a more intimate conversation and study area. And the whole is brilliant with color—every hue in the spectrum except violet. Yet they all go together peaceably because they are all about equal in value.

A huge hood finished with wrought ironwork hangs over the fireplace.

On round table by window, small paintings of animals and butterflies; a tiny ceramic owl, a big lump of turquoise studded with seashells.

More of the animal kingdom: a pillowcover designed and worked by Sylvia Sidney, the film actress.

LEFT:
The entertaining end of the room is flooded with daylight from floor-to-ceiling windows, glows at night with the soft lemon yellow of the walls.

Guest bathroom is papered to match guest room, right, and scattered with animal forms such as ceramic frog soap dish.

The bedrooms: each in a different mood

Surprises come thick and fast as you look into the bedrooms and baths. In the Amorys' own bedroom, you are stopped short by the combination of elegant Venetian furniture and rough barn siding. The larger guest bedroom, dominated by an imposing Dutch marquetry bed, is gay with color, flower motifs, and plaid. And a little bachelor guest room blithely combines a stone wall and French Empire furniture.

In the large guest room, a carved wood frieze forcefully punctuates the wall above the big Dutch marquetry bed, inlaid with a phantasmagoria of flowers.

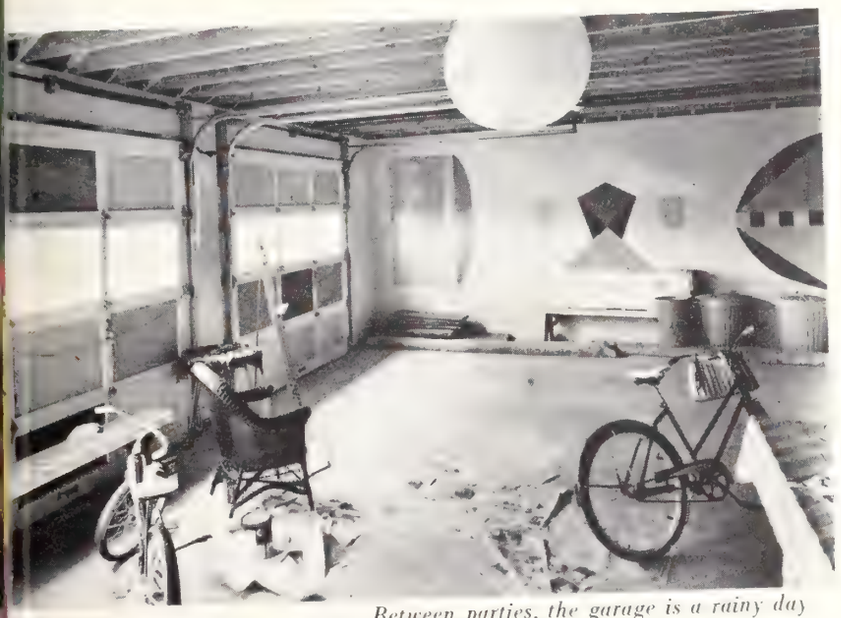
In bachelor guest room bath, copper lavatory and old brass fittings are built into antique red-lacquered dresser.

Bachelor guest room on lower level doubles as handy dressing room for the swimming pool.

In the master bath, under the faïence lavatory, a stuffed felt frog usurps the curlicued wicker Victorian doll's bed reserved by night for the Amorys' dog.

OPPOSITE PAGE:

In the Amorys' bedroom, the weathered board walls and ceiling come as a distinct surprise, but the blue cast of the wood makes a pleasantly soft pastel background for the flowered rug and the chic, sophisticated Venetian furniture.



DASHING PARTIES WITH LITTLE OR NO HELP

Today's young hosts and hostesses are agreed on one thing: they love to entertain. How they do it is as variable as their own lively imaginations. But they entertain as a joy rather than a duty, usually on a large scale, and are apt to tackle, with little or no help, projects that might have struck terror into the hearts of their elders. Enormously versatile and inventive, today's young hosts and hostesses like to discover new foods and new ways of preparing and serving them, are more inclined toward fun-and-games parties than formal galas, love to dance.

These young enthusiasts are not easily put off by negatives as H&G observed at four parties we attended recently — one on the West Coast, three in Newport, R. I. (but not in the grand Newport tradition). Two of them represented ingenious solutions to the problem of limited space, and, each of the four, a different way of coping with the problem of help. One hostess relied on a caterer for every last cheese straw, while another did everything but stuff her own olives. And all took advantage of lively offbeat settings to enchant their guests from the start. For today's young hosts and hostesses make sure to add to their best linens and silver a good measure of imagination and spirit to make their parties great occasions.

Between parties, the garage is a rainy day playroom for daughter and friends.

Cocktail buffet in a garage

With splash, dash, color, and unstinted imagination, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh Green turned the two-car garage adjoining the kitchen of their Newport house into a playroom for their young daughter, and periodically they transform it into a glowing party pavilion for themselves and their friends. On the walls, Mrs. Green painted big bright abstractions, and on the garage doors, great blocks of solid color that she doubles and triples at party time with bright cotton tablecloths and napkins. To mask the ceiling rafters she hangs up a horde of big white paper balls and to cover the concrete floor she rolls out a grass-colored indoor-outdoor carpet from which spills and footprints can be washed off with a garden hose. All these preparations can be made without setting foot inside the house or precipitating the usual pre-party tizzy. And to ensure that even after the party starts she can be as carefree as her guests, Mrs. Green enlists the services of a local caterer who was once a butler in one of Newport's massive "cottages." They plan the menus carefully together. He provides food, drink, tables, chairs, china, glass, silver, and totes along a few potted palms. She provides the guests, the sparkle, and all the color and enthusiasm that make her parties memorable.

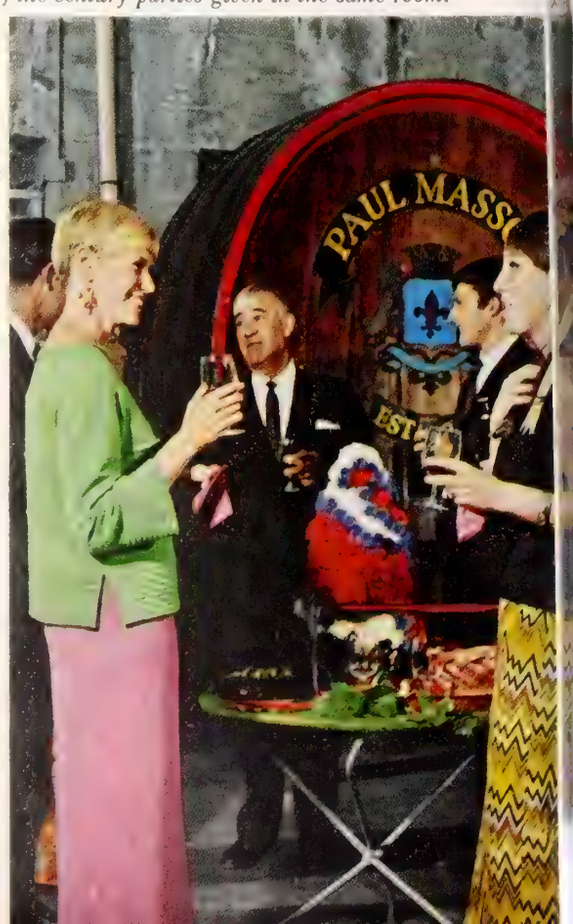
In their kitchen at home, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson made the cooking and packing of dinner a cooperative venture.



The blue-black earthenware dinner service was turned out especially for the occasion by Mr. Thompson, a ceramic artist. To make the flower tree, Mrs. Thompson pinned bachelor buttons and carnations to a Styrofoam cone. She covered the dining table with a hand-embroidered runner from India.

Turkey, pilaf, and salad were set on a massive old Spanish sideboard in the tasting room. On the wall above hang photographs of guests at some of the dashing turn-of-the-century parties given in the same room.

Guests sipped the apéritif—a pale dry Madeira of the Sercial type—amid the giant casks in the wine-aging cave across the courtyard.

When everyone sat down at the old oak table in the tasting room, overhead lights were dimmed, and fat candles placed directly on the table provided the illumination.

Movable feast in a winery

Dinner for eight in a California winery tasting room was the festive inspiration of Mr. and Mrs. Trent Thompson whose house in Los Gatos at the foot of the Santa Cruz mountains is a bit small for the kind of parties they like to give. Often they wander afield in their search for settings, and have on occasion set off with a packed dinner and a goodly number of guests for the Pacific shore, or for the cathedral splendor of a redwood grove. Their latest adventure took them to Saratoga and the guest house of the Paul Masson winery where the artists, entertainers, and other fascinating people who made their way to San Francisco a century ago were wined and dined in the great California tradition.

The Thompsons prepared their party dinner in their own kitchen and packed everything adroitly into three huge grape-picker's baskets—one for hot, one for cold, and a "dry" one for dishes, linens, and silver. The hot basket contained an herb-basted turkey swaddled in aluminum foil and pilaf of wild rice in a Dutch oven. In the cold basket were plastic bags of salad (the dressing to be added later), ice cubes, snails with artichoke bottoms (to be heated before serving), and dessert.

For dessert and coffee guests moved over to the tasting room's huge stone fireplace.

Mrs. Thompson had ranged assorted dessert ses in a shallow basket ned with grape leaves, heaped California dried it and nuts on a brass y. Coffee was served in ndmade black earthen- are cups teamed with ght red lacquer saucers. shopping information, turn to page 274.

The flowery blues and greens of the living room inspired the flowery blue and green tablecloths.

A buffet table is set up at one end of the long living-dining room; and the guests sit down to eat at round-topped tables for four, six, or eight, varied according to the size of the party.

Mrs. Corbin makes out the place cards with a felt-tipped pen in a bold, easy-to-read script.

Black-tie dinner plus fun and games

Lively entertainment after dinner is the specialty of Mrs. R. Beverley Corbin, a young Newport hostess who likes to keep things snapping. In her lighthearted, party-oriented house with its lovely view of the sea, time is never allowed to hang heavy. After one of her carefully plotted dinners, her guests are regaled by a steady round of games, dancing, or some other diversions Mrs. Corbin may dream up. Once she brought out brushes and poster paints plus an endless supply of giant sheets of paper, and cajoled her guests into an evening of self-expression.

All this diverse activity usually centers in the exuberantly colorful games room where a lavender painted Ping-Pong table vies with an orange ceiling and yellow walls. Other equipment includes a dart board, backgammon table, pinball machine, and a record player. And the lightweight rattan and wicker tables and chairs, painted in zippy oranges and blues, can be easily moved about and out of the way.

Mrs. Corbin plans her dinners with the same care as her after-dinner diversions. Not long ago, she feasted her guests on stuffed lobster Marsala, chicken with black cherries, purée of peas, herbed carrots, her own version of gnocchi, tossed green salad, cheese straws, and lime, lemon, and, for dessert, raspberry ices combined in frozen orange shells, then sprinkled with mint leaves and crème de menthe.

The stairway leading down into the games room serves as a grandstand for mixed doubles.

OM YEE

Mrs. Corbin and John Drexel chat over chicken with cherries.

Between parties the games room is a pleasant extra sitting room. The Alpujarra rug is light enough to fold away easily when the party agenda includes dancing.

Except for a fresh coat of paint, the exterior of the church is almost unchanged.

Luncheon in a one-time church

Convinced that simplicity is the better part of valor for bachelor party-givers, portrait painter Richard Banks counts on the setting of his parties to fascinate his guests. And it always does, since his summer studio is a converted Newport church. When the old New England meeting house in carpenter's Gothic style was about to fall victim to the wrecker's ball, Mr. Banks effected a last minute rescue, restored the building, and turned it into his summer quarters for both living and working. The lines of the building he preserved as faithfully as possible, and made few structural changes in the interior aside from removing the pews, and adding a kitchen and bath. He left the choir loft almost intact and simply converted it into a bedroom.

The huge, open space with its lofty ceiling and stained-glass windows never fails to delight his guests. He likes to give informal parties—either intimate luncheons for six, or huge cocktail parties. For the luncheons, he brews a memorable chowder, follows it with salad, fruit, and cheese. Serving is a remarkably simple procedure since the kitchen tucked under the choir loft is open to the rest of the room and surrounded by the handiest of serving counters. For cocktail parties, Mr. Banks sets up a really big table with hors d'oeuvres in the center of the room and turns the kitchen into a readily accessible bar.

In the working corner of his studio Mr. Banks keeps paints and brushes in a big chest he constructed of wood left over from the remodeling. Echoing the Gothic arch of the windows, a marvelous Gothic chair.

The counter of the open kitchen can easily become a convenient bar.

A work table, covered to the floor with a pale pink cloth becomes an elegant dining table.

The interior of the studio is painted in fresh clear colors that accent the architectural details and echo the hues in the stained-glass windows. The windows' deep blue inspired the choice of blue wine goblets and blue-patterned plates.

WHERE IS MY PEN?

Why haven't you written?

- I ran out of writing paper.
- I lost my address book.
- For weeks on end there hasn't been a stamp in this house.
- I did, I can't understand why you didn't get my letter. We'll have to start a march on the Post Office.
- I broke my typewriter.
- I broke my arm.
- I am in trouble with the police.
- I am writing this in my own blood from the hospital—they took away my pen.

Excuses for not writing always seem so feeble, so paltry, so paralyzingly boring that there is an impulse to make them increasingly melodramatic and so more convincing, more sincere. It is implicit in this situation that excuses have to be on the depressed, devastated side. That's rule number one. Obviously you can't say (although it has been said): having such an utter time, lying on this sublime beach, I couldn't drag myself to a postcard. Or my responsibilities are of such a grave nature, although fascinating, that I can almost never spare a moment for my personal correspondence. Or, as you know, I won the Irish Sweepstakes and I have been too involved spending the money to write you. These are impossible.

The fact is there are no good excuses for not writing. If you want to, you write. And everybody knows it. Why not tell the truth? The truth is: I didn't feel like it. That's the whole truth. I was waiting until I was in the mood to write a good letter —an interesting, a real, a spontaneous one that would spill out over the paper like an overturned bottle of wine.

These are the only letters to send or to get. In my whole lifetime just three letters have remained written on my memory and they were all like that, impulsive and direct. The first I found in a collection released to the press by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. A universal cri de coeur, it was addressed to the Director of the Internal Revenue Service, and went: "Dear Sir, I have had three or four letters from you and I want to explain why I didn't answer them. I don't need your service. Please don't write me any more, it makes me nervous."

The second is well-known, in fact it may be everybody's favorite thank-you note. Sir James M. Barrie had it from a small girl around Christmas time. "Dear Sir James," she wrote, "thank you for the pincushion. I have always wanted a pincushion but not very much."

The last is a perfect whole—message and writing paper merged into one. I read about it long ago in a magazine. It came from New England and has that terse quality. The paper was described as being small and white and in the corner was sketched a little vignette: a flowering branch of apple tree tipped down at the end by a bird's nest and a robin. Entwined with them was this verse:

We are coming, Mother coming
From the fields and from the mine
For one last sweet homing
On that Mother breast of thine.

The letter was short: "I am sorry I couldn't get there on Tuesday but I will make sure to come Friday and fix the cesspool, Joe."

While I wait for the impulse to write, the mail is still going through. Every moment of every day, somebody is writing to the President, to his Congressman, to the complaint department at Macy's, to Fred Feldman in Helicopter 710, to Twiggy, to God. What's holding back some of the rest of us? Part of the answer is the whole gloomy atmosphere surrounding letter writing, an aura that began in childhood and got steadily worse. The trauma of those first Christmas thank-yous we were forced to write and that made us wish we hadn't gotten the presents. The pang of that first letter of sympathy. Then all those nerve-wracking rules nagging at the back of the mind: Never start a letter with the pronoun I, and its impossible sequences, thinking of you I have been, sorry I am, love you I do. There was the controversy over when Dear was right or whether My dear wouldn't be better. There was something about I am sincerely yours as a sign-off—no I am and no yours; cordially—too commercial; affectionately—only when you mean it. As a matter of fact my two favorites in this field are Mr. Micawber's "yours in constant pain, Wilkins Micawber"—and one I saw attached to a letter to the New York Times: "Actually."

More inhibiting than all else was the writing paper and its formidable commitment. With its choice you had to put everything

A personal report on the glorious new uninhibited writing papers on the line, your life, your fortune, and your sacred honor. Mrs. Grundy said that it must be as thin as a curl of woodsmoke or as thick as clotted cream, both extremes of expensiveness. It must be incontrovertibly white or just possibly gray or a tepid light blue, and it was a depository of your taste, your self-esteem, your attitude towards life, your position in society, your breeding, everything but your real self. Isn't Mrs. Grundy dead? Has been for years but the evil that she did lives after her and casts a pall over almost every letter that falls into the post box.

By Rebecca Warfield

This is the way I thought things were still dragging along, but I made it just in time. In a small neighborhood card shop I was charged with strong volts of hyacinth, watermelon, lime green, tangerine. Imagining myself an innovator, I said helpfully to the shop owner, "You know these wouldn't make bad writing paper."

"You think so," she answered, "they are writing paper." And much wilder stuff, she assured me, was on the way in.

But still in thrall to Mrs. Grundy about where to buy paper, I passed them up. Even though I never thought I'd see anything like them in sacred precincts.

Where had I been? The traces have been kicked over and out of sight, the lights are on all over the right side of the tracks, all up and down Fifth Avenue, and all up and down Michigan Avenue and Sunset Boulevard and Worth you can hardly find a dull piece of paper with a magnifying glass. Not just some pleasant flower shades either, but great big wallops of color that clear out your mind.

If the color is as pale as pink, it has a wide rim of red to rev it up. Red—and this is blazing apple red—is monogrammed with navy blue for dash. There is apricot plus olive green, lemon with tangerine, a smashing grass green with black borders (yes), gingerbread brown with white edges and a white monogram as big as the Ritz, lilac with magenta. And there are leopard and Paisley and plaid and polka dot surprises inside of almost every envelope.

The traffic was jamming up in one spot where there is a clamor on for writing pads the size of those long, yellow, ruled ones of golden school days, but in strawberry and canary and gingerbread, monogrammed with a punch of another color—or with their own little vignettes or some thought like Keep Tense or names like Wilt Visibly or Blanch Perceptibly. No holds are barred. "We have a hard time keeping up with our customers," they told me here. "They're ready for it all and a step ahead. People who used to live on the telephone feel more like writing now. They aren't scared about what they ought to say anymore—they write the way they talk."

I drew up one of those little high-stool chairs to the counter (the gesture was a link with the past) and started turning the pages of one of those huge leather-bound books of sample papers that have always been around. You can't tell a book by its cover anymore: this is a suspense story with adventure and surprise on every page, and a slam-bang smashing climax, the ultimate wedding invitation. It is worded in the great old rhythms: "Mr. and Mrs. James Morrison Weatherby George Dupree III, request the honour of your presence. . ." And they have requested it in orange engraving on lemon yellow paper with wild, wide orange borders. Is everybody dancing on Mrs. Grundy's grave?

Not everybody needs that much of a charge and I can foresee some desperation "Isn't there any white paper left in the world?" There is some, plenty, for people who love white, love to write, and would write on anything at all just to get that letter in the mail. They're doing fine and always were. It's the rest of us who need the new postal regulations. No more sheets of blank white paper to stare us meanly in the eye and wither away our creative powers. The moving new colors draw us to that desk like an electric impulse: you can't let all those ideas go to waste. Brick red does it to me, lettuce green to some. Canary yellow seems to improve certain literary styles immediately.

It is true though that tangerine paper with scarlet borders and leopard-lined envelopes may not strike precisely the right note at all times or even for all states of mind. There are, of course, times when white is the only choice. But that is what makes collectors—people who grab every great paper when they see one (serious stuff isn't that hard to come by) the way they grab great stockings and belts and shoes or another piece of green malachite or still another owl or anything else that makes life attractive.

Even Serious People don't have to get stuffy letters now. I am going to get out my khaki paper with its non-matching red envelopes and write a letter right away. "Dear President Johnson," or is it "My Dear?" or "Sir?" or could it be "Your Honor?" or "Excellency?" Anyway I know exactly what I want to say and exactly how I'm going to wind it up—"Actually, R. W."

SUNNY ARCADES AND SECRET GARDENS

in a romantic house in Texas

Exterior walls are of beige Mexican brick; wood-grille front doors lead into an arcade.

Cloistered from the outside world, like a Mediterranean villa, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Shartle's house in Houston, Tex., sits in the center of 2½ acres of heavily wooded land like a self-sufficient enclave—utterly romantic, wonderfully workable. Designed by architect Preston Bolton, the house is built in the form of a huge, one-story H consisting of four wings linked to a central living room by arcades and two central courts—one containing a 50-foot swimming pool, one a walled fountain-cooled patio. The life of the house turns inward upon these arched passages and courts, and all major rooms except the dining room, kitchen, and study open wide to them.

Inveterate globe-trotters and collectors, the Shartles wanted, and got, a sprawl of space for their hobbies (hers is painting, his is photography), their collections, and their covey of grandchildren—constant visitors. Because of their love for India and Africa, they also wanted a house possessed of a certain exoticism—a quality the architect captured with the arcades, the fountain, fanciful grilles, and two bedroom courts as sacrosanct as seraglios. (Continued)

Poolside arcades, LEFT, one glassed in, one open, shade the sleeping wings from the intense sunshine. Outside the house, BELOW, winding paths pause at the foot of Roman statues.

An orderly labyrinth, the four wings of the house converge on the living room. From the entrance courtyard, you come into the open arcade and turn left into the leg of the H that houses Mrs. Shartle's studio in complete seclusion. Turning right from the entrance, you come to the guest wing, a bit less secluded but entirely self-contained. Or, walking straight ahead, you pass through the living room and find yourself in the closed arcade on the other side of the house. Opening off this are the dining room, straight ahead, and to the left, the study, kitchen, and servants' rooms. To the right is the fourth leg of the H—a quiet island of master bedrooms, baths, and a "secret garden" court. By careful zoning, quiet and active areas abut, but never overlap.

The 14-foot-high living room, the crossbar of the H, is the heart of the house. Its sliding glass doors open on one side to the fountain court, on the other to the great arcaded swimming pool court which is paved with terra-cotta tiles and "walled" at one end with a little structure containing the pool dressing rooms and storage for the pool equipment. (Continued)

In her studio, Mrs. Shartle documents her travels with oils and canvas. Window in outside wall is protected with wrought-iron "rejas."

One of the beauties of the H-shaped plan is the extravagant vistas made possible by the sweep of the arcades. Another is that outdoor maintenance is virtually nil. The acreage around the house is left in natural planting—almost jungle-like (the east wing looks out to a view downhill of a luxuriantly wooded bayou). There is no lawn to cut, and the courts have only potted plants by way of tendable greenery.

When the Shartles aren't off exploring one exotic spot or another, they relive their travels in their living room. Both are amateur photographers, and keep an adjacent closet, LEFT, jammed with their films and slides. A screen recessed in the ceiling over the long sofa, FAR LEFT, is pulled down, and the room becomes a theatre. It is also a treasury of mementos: a carved Thai panel hung over the fireplace is flanked by Hindu figures supporting the mantel. Most of the paintings are Mrs. Shartle's documentaries of scenes and people not to be forgotten, and the furniture and bibelots were found in a fantastic span of sources that stretch in a collector's swath right around the world.

Carved animals, ABOVE, found in Africa, are used as cabinet and drawer pulls in the bar, TOP OF PAGE.

The study, a composite of dining room, library, and sitting room, is the Shartles' familial cozy corner. Alone, they read and dine here, warmed on cool nights by a Franklin stove installed in the fireplace.

In the dining room, a bit of England in a tropical house, the jungle-like view is contrasted with Chippendale mahogany, a flurry of crystal against damask-hung walls, and a travertine floor.

DINING—FORMAL AND INFORMAL—WITH A ROUSSEAU VIEW

The only rooms in the house that are really open to the outdoors are the dining room, study, and kitchen. While the rest of the house looks inward, these rooms look out, and for a reason: their windows command the most verdant view in Houston, and to the Shartles—and most Texans—green is a precious color. The dining room and the study (where Mr. and Mrs. Shartle dine when alone) each have a wall of sliding glass doors and, instead of curtains, ceiling-to-floor fold-back shutters of filigreed or paneled wood that can be pulled to various angles to let the sun create a shadowed pattern on the floor's white ceramic tile. Throughout the house, white tile is an alternate to flooring of tobacco-colored brick, or of travertine. In some of the rooms, tile forms a border around wood flooring—a wonderfully cool and inventive way to make the wood look quite like a rug.

A large motor court lies between the arcaded service entrance on the left, the carport on the right.

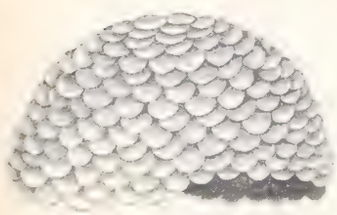
How to make festive, whimsical masks

Feline mask with pipecleaner whiskers is simple buckram base sheathed in fake fur.



Halloween mask makes a good base.

Masks give familiar friends and places an air of mystery. They put strangers at ease by making momentary strangers of everyone. Just making a mask in anticipation of a party can put you in a festive mood. Little wonder then that the masked ball, a fashion in entertaining that Venice, Vienna, and Paris have delighted in for centuries and that Truman Capote's guests enjoyed spectacularly last winter in New York, has captured the fancy of party givers all across the country.

For this season's party-giving and party-going, House & Garden asked designer Don Anderson to design for H&G readers masks that would not interfere with chatting, eating, drinking, or observing all the merriment that masks inspire. To duplicate his ideas you need only an ordinary Halloween eye mask (you may want to alter the eyes and nose), a simple hood or cap for a head covering, scissors, and white glue. (If you want to use eyeglasses as a base instead of a standard mask, apply the trimmings with rubber cement—it's removable.) You will find all kinds of whimsical embellishments right at your fingertips. Fabric flowers can be snipped from artificial bouquets or hat trimmings. Pipe cleaners or whisk-broom straws can be used to make quivery cat's whiskers. Paillettes and sequins can be bought at notions counters, or you can dip into those beads and buttons you have stashed away in a jar. Feathers you can pluck from a feather duster, shake out of an old pillow, or buy new (see page 274 for shopping information). To fluff up feathers salvaged from a pillow, put them in a paper bag, twist the top, pierce tiny holes in the bottom and hold the bag over a steam kettle.

To apply the trimmings, put a dot of white glue on both the basic mask or headgear and whatever you want to attach, and firmly press together. If you want to extend the ends of your mask, glue on pixie tabs of buckram; if the trimmings are beads and sequins that won't hide the seams, glue a layer of fabric over the patched mask before embellishing it. For strengthening the holes the elastic goes through, use gummed reinforcements. To hold a panache or forehead plume in place, bend a strong wire to hairpin shape and push it through a Styrofoam ball about the size of a golf ball; center the ball on the top edge of the mask and fasten the ends of the wire smoothly inside the mask with masking tape; then camouflage the ball with lightweight jewelry and feathers.

GREAT UNLOOKED-FORS

Refreshing new roles for an old familiar friend—fabric

Nothing keeps a house higher on its toes than the element of surprise, and there are few surprises so titillating as the discovery of a familiar material used in a totally unfamiliar way. Fabric, for example, decoration's staff of life, need no longer be limited to the conventional roles it has grown so old in. With no more than the customary effort on your part (or your paperhanger's), fabric can be an inspired wallcovering and, with a little invention and kicking over the traces, you can make it take on the traditional duties of paint, wood, and glass. You can put it on practically anything: make baffles and track-hung walls out of it, "paint" it on a table, frame pictures and mirrors with it, upholster doors and bookcases with it, shirr it, stretch it, pleat it, exploit it. Whatever the task, fabric can do it. (On page 290, do-it-yourselfers will learn exactly how.) Not all fabrics, naturally, can be used as though they were sheet iron. Along with color, pattern, and texture, the question of strength must be considered—a precaution carefully observed in the rooms on these pages where all the fabrics are made of Celanese Home Fashion fibers of Celanese acetate and Fortrel polyester. The broadloom carpeting that complements the fabrics (in one room, it complements it in a most untraditional way) is made of 100 per cent Fortrel polyester pile.

Out of the blue: an aquamarine canopy to diffuse light

A framed panel of aquamarine casement cloth, left, floating like a bit of sky over a dining table, hangs on nearly invisible wires and diffuses and tints enough light from a powerful ceiling fixture to fill the room with synthetic moonbeams. Same fabric, stretched on window screens, softens sunlight and, at night, makes a pretty frame for stars and river lights. Georgia casement cloth.

Gaelic surprise: doors and a dado wearing kilts

In a once colorless foyer, opposite page, doors framed like shadow boxes have been given almost the character of paintings by a covering of the gayest of plaids—a fabric repeated for good measure on the dado. A nice link for the three doors is the rug, an on-the-nose match for one of the plaid's reds. The orange border frames the rug much as the chestnut 2-by-4's frame the doors. A wall with two lives

In a study, a sea of stripes completely cloaks a wall via laminated shades for the windows and a shirred lining for the doors of the bookshelves between them. With shades down and doors closed, stripes shut out the world; with shades up, doors open, the wall spells nothing but sunny bookishness. Fabric by Covington.

NEVER-SAY-DIE HOUSE PLANTS

Almost any plant will survive on almost any windowsill, for a while. But it takes a special kind of plant to thrive in your living room year after year, winter and summer, without even so much as a breather on the patio. Call this type the never-say-die house plants: you see nineteen of them, opposite page, in the east window of a suburban dining room not far from New York City. This is an ordinary centrally heated room in a non-air-conditioned house. The window faces east, is open to the low-angled sun of winter mornings and shaded by tall trees all summer.

None of the plants in the window requires special soil or moisture provisions that individual pots and saucers cannot provide, although most of this doughty breed are native to an outdoor environment that is naturally warmer and wetter (or, for that matter, colder and dryer) than either the indoor or outdoor climates in which most of us live. But that does not seem to bother them. They were, in a sense, born and raised in adversity and would thrive less well without it. They would not, for example, remain successful year-round house plants in a sunny south window. Similarly they might not remain in good condition in perpetual north light. But if they are given a little filtered light when gloom gets too much for them and shaded by a curtain or even moved away from direct sun when the light is strongest, they should do well.

Of the scores of plant species and varieties that will live long under less than ideal conditions, at least thirteen others (see drawings) would have done as well as the nineteen in our window. We have included all thirty-two in the blue-ribbon list of candidates that starts on the next page (but left out such old reliables as Chinese evergreen, the heart-leaved philodendron, and the ivies). Some are naturally better house plants than others. Some will tolerate more light (or less). But as a group, they are easy to grow and care for. Good florists and exotic plant dealers either stock them or can get them for you. (Continued)

A blue ribbon list of year-round indoor plants

Polypodium aureum undulatum

Here are capsule descriptions of all the plants in the window on page 256 plus the ones on these and the previous pages—along with special tips on how to grow them successfully. They are arranged alphabetically by their precise names to help you avoid confusion when ordering.

AECHMEA. Perhaps the most satisfactory bromeliads for the house; bright red or yellow inflorescence. A. fulgens especially desirable. Roots need anchorage only; center leaf rosettes should be kept filled with water. Cut old rosettes after flowering. Filtered light preferable.

AESCHYNANTHUS. Relative of African-violet, gloxinia, and other gesneriads, this one has trailing growth: excellent in hanging baskets. Three dependable species, A. javanicus (lipstick plant), A. pulcher, and A. speciosus. Porous soil; ample moisture.

ASPIDISTRA. Especially handsome form of the old "cast-iron plant," A. elatior variegata (see page 256) has clean white stripes along leaf blades. Will grow in any light (except full sun) or practically no light. This form is hard to obtain, but the all-green species is almost as good. Ordinary soil; even moisture.

Episcia cupreata

ASPLENIUM. Of the many species of this fern genus, A. nidus (see page 256), the bird's-nest fern is one of the boldest and handsomest. Needs ample moisture, subdued (sun-free) light.

BEGONIA. One of the world's great house plants, and its name is legion. Simple way to double begonia pleasure: plant two varying species or forms together in one pot. One pair (see page 256) which has flourished for four years is fibrous rooted B. x catalina, with blush florets, and B. 'Black Falcon,' a rhizomatous type. East windows are fine for most begonias. Need humus-rich, moist, well-drained soil; warmth.

CISSUS. The grape-ivies are everybody's friends. There are big leaved (C. antarctica) and small leaved, more compact forms (C. rhombifolia). All tend to sprawl or trail, may be trained to climb. Filtered, even weak light will do. Ordinary pot soil. Watch out for mealybugs in leaf joints.

CLIVIA. The Kafir-lily is available in only one species—C. miniata—and one color—a glowing orange. The huge strap-leaves are evergreen; the radiating trumpets rise on tall stalks in winter. Keep roots pot-bound; apply liquid plant food once a month; beware mealybugs.

CODEAEUM. The crotons are among the gaudiest of house plants—for their foliage rather than their blossoms. Almost tree-size in the tropics, they may vary in your window from a small pot plant to a 3-foot exclamation point (see page 256). Open loamy soil, plenty of moisture.

CROSSANDRA. The only available species bears the forgettable name, infundibuliformis. This is one of the few small, amenable house plants that has pretty flowers (yellow orange) most of the time.

Kalanchoe blossfeldiana

Zebrina pendula

Philodendron mandaianum

DIEFFENBACHIA. A newly developed form of the familiar "dumb-cane" still in very limited supply, D. amoena 'Tropic Snow' (see page 256) has compact shape and clear, brilliant colors on its graceful, oval leaves. Humus-filled soil, even moisture. More familiar and widely available as a standard house plant is the improved variety of D. picta known as 'Rudolph Roehrs.' All varieties stand poor light, tolerate typical conditions in winter rooms.

DRACAENA. There are as many kinds of dracaena as there are of dieffenbachia, ficus, and philodendron—scores of them, and almost all fine house plants. D. fragrans massangeana (see page 256) is one of the most dramatic and durable of the "bad light" plants. Lives for years. Ordinary soil; and not too much moisture.

EPISCIA. Fine trailers, all the episcias are kin of the saintpaulia and others of the gesneria family. E. cupreata is standard florist's plant. Leaves are puckered and colorful, flowers bright yellow to red. Needs humus-rich soil; ample moisture.

EUPHORBIA. The genus includes such diverse plants as poinsettia, crown-of-thorns, and snow-on-the-mountain. One of the most dramatic silhouettes is that of the odd milkbush, E. tirucallii (see page 256), which bears sparse, minute leaves on round pencil-thin stems. Very sandy soil, watered only sparingly. Filtered light.

FICUS. The ubiquitous fig family has something for every indoor gardener. F. benjamina 'Exotica' (see page 256), is a small pot or tub tree of the utmost grace. Other good house plants include the almost too familiar but dramatic F. elastica (rubber plant), especially the decora and doscheri varieties, and the so-called fiddle fig, F. lyrata. Pick forms you like at the florist's. Ordinary pot soil; even moisture. Filtered or no sunlight.

HOWEIA. The kentia palm, H. fosteriana, is a variable beast, but try to get a well-developed specimen, especially in the larger sizes (see page 256). Takes ordinary soil, even moisture. Scale insects, mealybugs only pests.

IMPATIENS. Call it patience plant or patient Lucy—it is all the same, I. holstii. There are many foliage variants and flower colors along the red-pink-white axis. Requires porous soil, ample water. Watch out for white flies, aphids in warm rooms; control with aerosol spray.

KALANCHOE. Of the several fat-leaf forms, K. blossfeldiana is one of the best for the permanent east-window garden. Small leaves; clusters of small red-orange florets. After heavy flowering, cut growth back severely and let start again. Normal soil and moisture.

NEPHROLEPIS. The Boston ferns are all fine familiar house plants, some reaching several feet in diameter. One of the much more restrained and graceful varieties is N. exaltata whitmanii (see page 256), with marvelously proliferated frond tips. Weak light, without sun; good pot soil; ample moisture. Scale, only pest.

Crossandra infundibuliformis

Sansevieria trifasciata

CORKSCREW:

WINES TO DRINK YOUNG

How soon is a good wine fit to drink? You may be surprised to learn how many fine wines do not take long to develop.

BY ALEXIS BESPALOFF

EDITORS' NOTE: Alexis Bespaloff, whose work for a wine importer takes him on frequent buying trips to France and Germany, is one of the few Americans with the knowledge and temerity to conduct a wine-tasting seminar for the shrewd sommeliers of Bordeaux.

Young wines, fresh and engaging, have had no greater advocate than the tart-tongued Jonathan Swift, who once refused a bottle of venerable wine with the rebuke, "Sir, I drink no memories."

Memories, maturity, magnificence—these belong to the great red wines that need years of bottle age to show their incomparable finesse and breeding. But the wine drinker's day-to-day pleasure comes from wines that are drunk within a year of the vintage, and rightly so. These, surprisingly enough, comprise 90 per cent of the world's harvest.

Much of this young wine is nothing more than vin ordinaire, the ordinary, inexpensive kind served directly from the barrel or plastic or metal-topped bottles, not far from where the wines were grown. These wines to the Frenchman, Italian, and Spaniard are what coffee and cola are to the average American—the stuff with which he washes down his meals. There is almost no vin ordinaire imported into this country. We mainly import the quality wines that make up the top 20 per cent or so from the various wine-producing countries. Nevertheless, even this 20 per cent includes a great proportion of wines which do not need much barrel or bottle age to be at their best. The bistros of Paris serve the Beaujolais de l'année before Christmas, just weeks after the grapes have been harvested; and in Vienna, the picturesque Heurigen feature white wines whose often sprightly taste indicates that they're still fermenting. Today, with the demand for wine on the increase, modern vinification methods have been designed to produce wines that are ready to drink earlier, and new cellar techniques allow wines to be successfully and safely bottled much sooner after the vintage.

As a rule of thumb, the more expensive the wine, the more time it needs to develop, champagne being the notable exception. Wines to drink young are wines for the young and for all the budget-minded who want to enjoy the greatest possible variety of the world's liquid bounty without going into hock.

French Country Wines To Drink Young

France, the world's biggest wine-producing country, also has the greatest variety of excellent young wines. Probably the best known of the reds is Beaujolais, one of the finest to drink young. The 1964's from the top districts, such as Brouilly, Fleurie, Juliénas, and Moulin-à-vent, are still in top form, but if you're drinking ordinary Beaujolais, or the higher rated Beaujolais-Villages, you can start opening a few bottles of 1966.

Pouilly-Fuissé is one of the most popular white Burgundies, but not a great deal of it is produced (about 250,000 cases, compared to more than 5,000,000 cases of Beaujolais) and there is a wide variation between the best estate-bottled examples and the cheaper versions. Look for 1964 in Chablis or Pouilly-Fuissé—no need to rush into the 1966 vintage yet—and remember that a Chablis Premier Cru or Grand Cru is going to be noticeably better than a plain Chablis or a Petit Chablis (the latter, contrary to common belief, is the lowest rating of Chablis, although perfectly acceptable if young and reasonably priced).

The Loire Valley is best known for the medium-dry Anjou rosé, but there are also a number of excellent whites produced along the banks of this 600-mile-long river. Near the Atlantic are the vineyards of Muscadet, which yield a light, delicate dry wine. From the village of Pouilly-sur-Loire comes a pleasant wine of the same name that doesn't take much aging, as well as the superior and better known Pouilly-Fumé, and a few miles away is the village, and wine, called Sancerre. Both Pouilly-Fumé and Sancerre are at their best when young—the 1966's are already here—and their dryness and distinctive flavor go well with practically all fish dishes, from lobster to the most garlic-spiked Provençal specialties.

Near the historic city of Avignon are the Côtes du Rhône vineyards which produce large quanti-

HOUSE & GARDEN'S

Brandy Cook Book

By James A. Beard

The art of cooking with brandy is as old as the art of distilling the ardent spirit itself. All brandies, whatever their names, are made from fruit—cognac, armagnac, and other European and American brandies from grapes: calvados from apples: the crystal-clear eaux de vie such as framboise, fraise, kirsch, mirabelle, quetsch, and eau de vie de poire from raspberries, strawberries, cherries, plums, and pears. It is the essence of the fruit, headily concentrated, that gives a unique, festive flavor to a dish, whether the brandy is worked into a pâté or spread, cooked in a sauce or custard, poured flaming over meat, poultry, fish, or a dessert omelette or crêpes, or merely added to a sauté pan as the deglazing liquid. And if you wonder about the wisdom of dousing food with liquor, remember that the alcohol is volatilized by heat and evaporates completely in cooking, leaving behind only the lingering taste. While fresh or poached fruits take naturally to fruit-based spirits, you will find that even here there is a distinct advantage in heating the brandy first to eliminate the harshness of the alcohol, then chilling it in the refrigerator before sprinkling or pouring it over the fruit dessert.

The ultimate glory of cooking with brandy, the spectacular tour de force that raises the roof (and often the prices) in restaurants is flambéing. Yet this is no esoteric technique reserved for a maître d'hôtel, but a process you can easily master provided you follow the basic rules below. But don't drown a dish in brandy just to make the flames rise higher. A little can go a long way and you don't want your perfectly cooked chicken or roast to taste overpoweringly of high-proof spirits. Just as you would proceed cautiously until you become acquainted with the power and potential of any type of flavoring or seasoning, such as herbs and spices, so should you take your brandy in small doses, carefully following the quantities specified in recipes until you know the characteristics of each type and can increase or diminish the amounts to taste. Too much can taste raw and strong, too little will become dissipated and lost. But properly used, brandy can be one of your most invaluable cooking allies, as important and indispensable in the kitchen as in the bar.

BASIC RULES FOR FLAMING WITH BRANDY

In flambéing, it is the fumes from the spirit rather than the liquor itself that ignites, so be sure the brandy is warmed before you touch a match to it. If the cold spirit is added to a hot pan and allowed to warm through, it will ignite properly, but for best results, heat the brandy first in a pipkin or small saucepan, then light it and pour it, already flaming, over the food. Continue to spoon this flaming liquid over the food until the flames die down. Never try to flambé by pouring unlighted brandy into a sauce, juices, syrup, or any liquid that is apt to dilute the alcohol. Do not flambé a dish that contains a great deal of fat or oil, since this will also ignite and instead of pretty blue flames, you will have a conflagration. If a recipe calls for flambéing in the cooking pan, pour off the excess fat before you add the lighted spirit.

If you are flambéing a dish at the table, make certain the serving dish is flameproof or ovenproof don't risk ruining your best porcelain. It is also advisable to put the serving dish on a larger platter or tray to keep the flames away from anything flammable on the table—or away from you, if you are carrying a flaming dish into the dining room.

If you have never flambéed a dish before guests, it is a good idea to rehearse beforehand so you know what to expect. Have a trial run at a family dinner first. Then you can perform in public with the greatest of poise.

PÂTÉS, SPREADS

Quick Liver Pâté

½ pound braunschweiger (smoked liverwurst)
½ cup butter
2 teaspoons scraped onion
2 tablespoons chives, finely chopped
2 tablespoons parsley, finely chopped
2 tablespoons cognac or kirsch

Have the liverwurst and butter at room temperature. Combine all ingredients and blend thoroughly with a fork or with an electric mixer. Serve as a spread. The mixture can also be shaped into a long roll or ball and dipped in chopped toasted nuts or chopped parsley.

Quick Pâté en Croûte

6 small brioches
¾ pound lean sausage meat
½ pound chicken livers
¼ pound mushrooms, coarsely chopped
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
6 tablespoons butter (if required)
Salt to taste
Freshly ground black pepper (about 15 grinds of the mill)
½ teaspoon thyme, or to taste
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
¼ cup cognac
¼ cup heavy cream

Remove tops from the brioches and reserve, then remove the crumbs, leaving six shells. Try out the sausage meat in a heavy pan, crumbling it as you do so. When it is brown, but not thoroughly cooked, drain on absorbent paper. Sauté the chicken livers in the sausage fat to brown them lightly. Remove and chop coarsely. Sauté the mushrooms, onion, and garlic in the same pan, adding the butter if necessary. Salt to taste and add pepper, thyme, parsley, cognac, and cream. Mix ingredients together and cook gently for 1-5 minutes. Correct the seasoning.

Stuff the brioches with this filling and replace the tops. Place on a sheet of foil or a baking sheet and heat in a 350° oven until piping hot—about 12-14 minutes. Serve as a first course with a garnish of cornichons and olives. Serves 6.

Blue Cheese Spread

¼ pound blue cheese
½ cup butter
1 small clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon parsley, finely chopped
2 tablespoons chives, finely chopped
Few dashes Tabasco
3 tablespoons armagnac

Have the cheese and butter at room temperature—soft enough to mix. Combine all ingredients in a small bowl and blend thoroughly, either by hand or with an electric mixer. Serve as a spread for crackers, Melba toast, or bread. The mixture may also be shaped into a long roll or ball and dipped in chopped toasted nuts, chopped chives, or chopped parsley.

3-4 tablespoons cognac
Salt to taste
Cream (if required)

Combine all ingredients and blend thoroughly with a fork or electric mixer. If the mixture is too stiff, add cream, a few teaspoons at a time, until it is the proper consistency for spreading. Chill slightly and shape as directed for Blue Cheese Spread. The mixture may be rolled in chopped toasted walnuts, almonds or pecans, or in chopped parsley. Garnish with parsley or grape leaves. Serve with crackers or small pieces of rye, pumpernickel, or French bread.

ENTRÉE

Poularde Flambée

4 tablespoons butter
1 large frying chicken, quartered
6 shallots, finely chopped
12 mushroom caps, quartered
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon, or 1 teaspoon dried tarragon
¼ cup calvados, warmed
½ cup white wine
Bouquet garni (1 leek, sprig parsley, celery top tied together)
Salt, pepper to taste
1 cup heavy cream

Melt the butter in a large skillet over low heat, but do not allow it to brown—the chicken is to be cooked à blanc, that is, cooked "white," without browning. Place the chicken pieces in the skillet and cook slowly, turning several times. Add the shallots, mushrooms, and tarragon. When the chicken has cooked slightly, pour the warmed calvados over it and flambé. When the flames have died, add the wine and the bouquet garni. Salt and pepper to taste, cover, and continue to cook slowly for another 25 minutes, or until the chicken is tender and done.

Remove the bouquet garni, and place the chicken on a hot platter while you make the sauce. Add the cream to the skillet and let it blend thoroughly with the pan juices over low heat. If the sauce is not thick enough, add small bits of flour and butter kneaded together. When it is properly thickened, taste for seasoning. Pour over the chicken, and serve with rice or noodles. Serves 4.

Poulet Flambé au Cognac

1 roasting chicken, 3½-4 pounds
½ lemon
Butter
4 thick slices lean salt pork or bacon
Salt, pepper to taste
⅓ cup cognac
Chicken stock or white wine
1½ cups heavy cream
4 egg yolks
Chopped parsley

Rub the inside of the chicken with lemon and then with butter. Truss securely and arrange on its side on a roasting rack in a fairly shallow roasting pan. Lay the strips of salt pork or bacon over the chicken—two over the breast, two over the leg and thigh sections. Each time the chicken is turned during roasting, remove the strips, and when the chicken has been rearranged, replace the strips, to provide continual basting.

Roast in a 375° oven for 30 minutes, turn on the other side, and baste with the pan juices. Roast for another 30 minutes, place chicken on its back, and baste the breast with the pan juices. Continue roasting until the breast is nicely browned and the legs move freely when tested. The breast should be not quite firm when pressed with a finger.

Salt and pepper the chicken and remove to a warm pan. Pour off the pan juices from the roasting pan into a small saucepan. Return the chicken to the roasting pan and flambé it with the cognac, slightly warmed beforehand. Place the chicken on a hot platter and keep it warm in the oven with the heat turned off.

Skim off excess fat from the juices in the saucepan. Rinse the roasting pan with a little stock, white wine, or cognac, and add to the saucepan. Blend the cream and egg yolks together thoroughly. Heat the pan juices (do not boil), and stir a tablespoon or two into the cream-egg mixture. Then stir the cream mixture into the rest of the juices, and continue to stir over medium heat until the sauce thickens, but do not let it come to a boil. Correct the seasoning, and pour into a warmed sauceboat.

Garnish the chicken with parsley. Serve with a rice pilaff or a puree of potatoes and a salad. Pass the sauce separately. With this you might drink a fine Meursault. Serves 4.

Variations:

Poulet Flambé à l'Armagnac

Follow the instructions given for Poulet Flambé au Cognac, but add a sprig of rosemary to the chicken cavity before trussing, and rub the skin well with a blend of rosemary and butter. After the chicken has been roasted, salt and pepper it, and flambé it with ⅓ cup armagnac. Prepare the sauce as before, and serve the chicken with crisp sautéed potatoes and a salad. With this, drink a Beaujolais.

Poulet Flambé au Calvados

Instead of using strips of salt pork or bacon, baste the chicken with a mixture of ⅔ cup white wine, ⅓ cup melted butter every 15 minutes. Otherwise roast as for Poulet Flambé au Cognac. When the chicken is done, flambé it with ⅓ cup calvados. Prepare the sauce as before, flavoring with additional calvados, if needed. Serve the chicken with thinly sliced apples sautéed in butter, sprinkled with sugar, and glazed under the broiler for a moment. Drink a chilled Muscadet with this.

Filet of Beef Flambé à l'Armagnac

1 filet of beef, 4½-5 pounds, well trimmed
Olive oil
Coarsely crushed black peppercorns (about 3 tablespoons)
Thyme (about 1 teaspoon)
Salt to taste
⅓ cup armagnac, slightly warmed

Rub the filet with olive oil and then press the crushed pepper and the thyme into the meat, distributing evenly. Let the filet stand for 45 minutes to an hour. Preheat the oven to 425°. Place the filet on a rack in a shallow roasting pan, and set on the middle shelf of the oven. Roast quickly without basting for about 40 minutes, or until the internal temperature is about 125° when tested in its thickest portion with a meat thermometer.

Remove the filet to a hot, flameproof platter and flambé with the armagnac. Garnish the platter with grilled tomatoes, sautéed mushroom caps, and fresh watercress. Crisp sautéed potatoes are also excellent accompaniments. Serve the pan juices with the sliced meat. Drink a fine Volnay or a Chambertin. Serves 6.

Roast Loin of Pork Flambe with Prunes

1 loin of pork, loin end or rib end, about 5 pounds, with chine bones cracked
Salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste
24 prunes
2 slices lemon
¼ cup sugar
Eau de vie de prune or quetsch

Rub the loin well with salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Place on a rack in a roasting pan, and roast at 300°, allowing 25 minutes per pound, or until interior temperature reaches 165°-170° on a meat thermometer.

While the pork is roasting, place the prunes in enough water to cover, and bring to a boil. Add a slice or two of lemon and the sugar, and cook for 3 minutes. Drain, and cover the prunes with ¼-⅓ cup eau de vie de prune or quetsch. Cook down the liquid drained from the prunes very quickly and use it to baste the pork. About 15 minutes before the roast is done, heat the prunes with the pork in the roasting pan or in a separate saucepan on top of the stove. When the roast is ready, remove from the oven, and flambé it with ¼ cup of the brandy used in the prunes. Place on a hot platter and surround with prunes. Serve the degreased pan juices separately.

Serve the pork with a purée of potatoes and perhaps a bowl of watercress. With this drink a rosé or an Alsatian Riesling. Serves 6.

Variations:

Roast Loin of Pork Flambé with Apples

1 loin of pork, 5 to 6 pounds
Salt, black pepper, ground ginger to taste
6 greenings or other cooking apples
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar
Calvados or applejack

Rub the pork well with salt, pepper, and ginger. Place on a rack in a roasting pan and roast as for Roast Loin of Pork Flambé with Prunes. While the roast is cooking, peel and core the apples, and cut them into thin slices. Melt the butter in a skillet and arrange the apples in even layers. Cook over medium heat until they are just cooked through. Sprinkle with sugar, and run under the broiler for a minute or two to glaze. Add a little calvados to the skillet and let it come to a boil.

When the roast is cooked, transfer it to a hot, flameproof platter, and flambé with ¼ cup calvados. Garnish with the apples.

Serve with sauerkraut cooked with white wine, grated apple, and about 12 juniper berries. Drink a good Alsatian wine with this or a Johannisberg Riesling from California.

Roast Loin of Pork Flambé au Cognac

1 loin of pork, rib end, 5-6 pounds
¼ cup butter
2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
2-3 large onions, thinly sliced
Salt, pepper, thyme to taste
Cognac
1½ cups heavy cream
Beurre manié

Cut six deep, wide incisions in the pork flesh large enough to accommodate slices of onion. Cream the butter and garlic together, and spread on each onion slice. Sprinkle with salt and freshly ground pepper and a bit of thyme. Fill the incisions with the onion slices, and tie the roast or skewer it securely. Rub the roast with thyme and freshly ground pepper, and roast at 300° as for Roast Loin of Pork Flambé with Prunes.

When the roast is done, flambé it with ¼ cup cognac, remove to a hot platter and keep warm. Skim off the excess fat from the pan juices, and add another ¼ cup cognac. Combine the pan juices with heavy cream and bring to a boil. Thicken with beurre manié (tiny bits of butter and flour kneaded together). Correct the seasoning, and serve with the pork.

Serve with sautéed onions and sautéed apple rings cooked with cognac and nutmeg. Drink a chilled rosé or an Alsatian white wine.

1½-2 cups bread crumbs
6-8 tablespoons butter
¼ cup armagnac or calvados, warmed
1½-2 cups heavy cream

Chopped parsley

Soak the sweetbreads in ice water for 20 minutes. Plunge into salted water, bring to a boil, and cook for 5 minutes. Plunge again into ice water. When cool, remove the tubes and particles of fat. Weight down the sweetbreads for 2 hours. (Use a chopping board or flat plate with cans of food on top.) Cut the sweetbreads into even "cutlets."

Prepare the fried toast, heat the slices of ham, and sauté the mushroom caps. Dip the

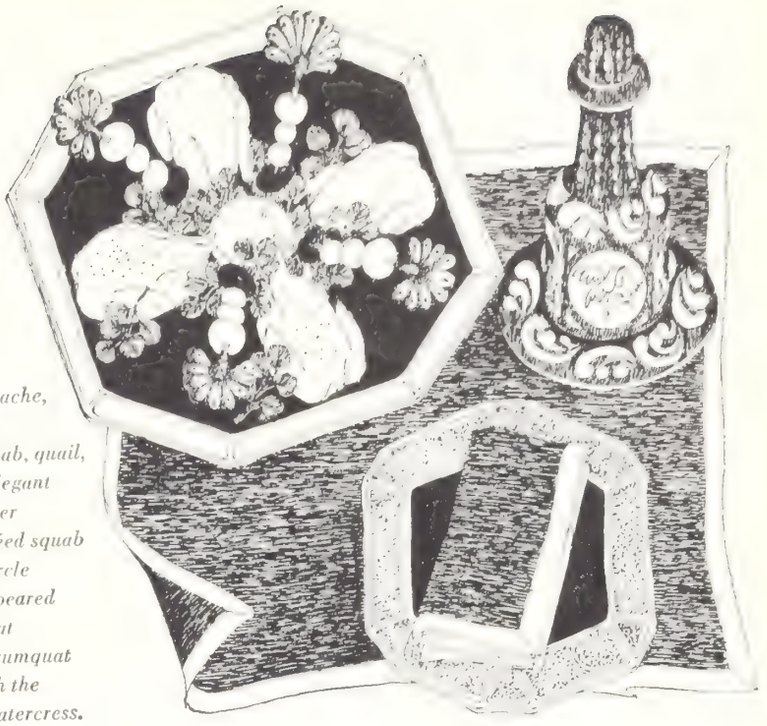
Veal Kidneys Flambé à l'Armagnac

4 veal kidneys
4 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons oil
½ cup armagnac
Salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste
1½ teaspoons Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1½ cups heavy cream
Beurre manié
Chopped parsley

Clean the veal kidneys and remove the tubes. Cut in medium thin slices. Combine butter and oil in a large skillet and heat until bubbling hot. Add the kidneys and brown very quickly over fairly brisk heat, shaking the pan and turning the kidney slices several times. Warm the armagnac, pour over the kidneys, and flambé. Add salt and pepper, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, and Tabasco, and stir in the cream. Add small bits of beurre manié and stir until the sauce is just lightly thickened. Do not overcook or the kidneys will become tough. Correct the seasoning. Add chopped parsley and serve with fried toast or rice. Serves 4.



Squab, Broiled and Flambé

6 thick pieces white bread, crusts trimmed
Butter
6 squabs, flattened as for crapaudine
1½ tablespoons cracked pepper
Calf's liver steak, 1" thick
1 orange
Salt
½ cup armagnac

Toast the bread well on both sides, butter lavishly and keep warm. The pieces of toast should be large enough to accommodate a squab.

Flatten the squab with a meat pounder or have the butcher do it for you. (It is just beaten once to break down the breast bones and flatten the squab.) Rub the squab well with the pepper. Press pepper into both sides of the liver. Butter the squab and liver very well. Remove the zest of the orange with a stripper or a fine knife. Blanch the strips in boiling water for 2 minutes. Cut into strips about 3" long. Squeeze the juice from the orange and combine with an equal quantity of melted butter.

Place the liver and the squab on the broiling rack. Broil about 5" from the source of heat, turning once, for about 18 minutes. If the liver should cook first, remove it to a hot platter. Salt the squab halfway through the cooking. For the last few minutes, place 1 or 2 strips of orange zest on each squab and baste with the orange juice and butter.

Garnished with panache, a platter of small roasted or broiled birds (squab, quail, poussin) makes an elegant main course for a dinner party. Here flambéed squab are arranged in a circle around a half orange speared with silver attelets that bear the glazed kumquat garnish. Contrasting with the fruit, sprigs of watercress.

To serve, remove the squab from the broiling pan to a heatproof platter. Heat armagnac, pour over, and ignite. Place the toast on a hot platter and place a thinnish diagonal slice of the rare broiled liver on each piece of toast. Top with a squab with its little orange garnish. Spoon the pan juices over all, and serve with a garnish of glazed oranges or kumquats. Serves 6.

Quail in Nests

6 quail
18-24 juniper berries, crushed
6 small sprigs thyme
6 small sprigs parsley
Salt, freshly ground black pepper
6 slices prosciutto
6 slices barding pork
8 Idaho potatoes
Butter
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup armagnac

Purchase the quail with their heads and legs intact. With the aid of small skewers or toothpicks and twine, secure the heads so that they will stay upright during the cooking process and for serving. Stuff each quail with 3 or 4 crushed juniper berries, a sprig of thyme, sprig of parsley, a pinch of salt, and a few grains of freshly ground black pepper. Wrap each one in prosciutto and then in barding pork and tie securely. Let them rest.

Peel and quarter the potatoes, cook in salted water until soft. Mash and combine with 2 ounces butter, the eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, and the nutmeg. Whip well. Fill a pastry bag fitted with a large rosette tube. On a well-buttered baking sheet, make 6 round nests, about 5" in diameter, which will hold the cooked quail. Brush well with 2 ounces of melted butter and bake about 25 minutes in a preheated 375° oven until nicely browned.

While they are cooking, brown the quail very well on all sides in a large skillet in 6 tablespoons butter. When they are nicely browned on all sides, flame them with the armagnac and place them in the oven where the potato nests are baking, the quail on the bottom rack and the potato nests on the top rack. Bake for just 15 minutes. Remove the nests and arrange on a preheated platter. Remove the quail and carefully place them on the nests so that the heads, tails, and feet extend. Spoon the pan juices over all and garnish with some watercress or parsley. Serves 6. For large appetites, double the amount.

Seafood Crêpes

12 crêpes
4 ounces butter
4 shallots, finely chopped
½ pound bay scallops
½ pound cooked crab meat
½ pound cooked shrimp, coarsely chopped
1 cup shelled mussels or clams
⅓ cup or more cognac or armagnac, warmed
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon
¼ cup chopped parsley
½ cup white wine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or more to taste
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated Gruyère cheese

Prepare crêpes according to the recipe for Dessert Crêpes on page 269, but omit the sugar and vanilla. Keep warm. Melt butter in a large skillet and add shallots. Cook for 4 minutes, then add scallops. Cook for another 3 minutes, shaking the pan to keep scallops from sticking. Add crab meat, shrimp, and mussels or clams, and cook for 2 minutes. Flambé with cognac or armagnac. Add the herbs, wine, salt, pepper, and lemon juice, and cook over low heat for a minute or so. Taste for seasoning.

Fill the crêpes, roll them and arrange in a buttered dish. Sprinkle heavily with Gruyère cheese. Heat in a 400° oven just until the cheese melts.

This makes an excellent first course or a luncheon dish. Serves 6.

Clam Omelettes

2 7-ounce cans minced clams
8 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
⅔ cup reserved clam juice
½ cup heavy cream
½ pound finely chopped mushrooms
1 teaspoon chopped fresh dill or ½ teaspoon dill weed
⅓ cup cognac or Zubrowka (Polish vodka)
Salt, freshly ground black pepper
15-20 eggs
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Drain the clams, measure, and reserve ⅔ cup liquid. Prepare a rich cream sauce with 3 tablespoons butter, the flour, clam juice, and heavy cream. Stir over low heat until it is thickened and velvety. Sauté the mushrooms in remaining butter. Add the clams, mushrooms, dill, and cognac or Zubrowka to the sauce, and simmer for 5 minutes. Salt and pepper to taste.

Allow about 2½ eggs per omelette, adding about 1 teaspoon water and a pinch of salt for each. Beat eggs, water, and salt, and prepare 6-8 omelettes in the usual manner. Fill each with a few spoonfuls of clam sauce. Serve with a garnish of chopped parsley. Good as a first course or luncheon dish. Serves 6-8.

Lobster Edith

4 hard-cooked eggs
1 cup heavy cream
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste
1 teaspoon or more paprika
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1½ cups lobster meat, cut into rather large pieces
⅓ cup calvados
4 vol-au-vent shells

Mash the yolks of the eggs, add 3 tablespoons of the cream, and rub to a paste. Chop the whites very fine. Combine the butter and flour in a saucepan over low heat and cook for a minute. Add the remaining cream gradually and stir until thickened. Add the egg-yolk mixture and seasonings. Add the lobster meat, chopped egg whites, and calvados, and cook until well blended and piping hot. Fill the vol-au-vent shells. Serve at once. Serves 4.

Tripes à la Mode de Caen

2 pounds large onions, sliced
3 pounds tripe, cut into 2" squares
2 calf's feet, split
1 pound beef suet, diced
Bouquet garni (2 leeks, 1 sprig thyme, 1 bay leaf, 1 onion stuck with 2 cloves tied in cheesecloth)
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
¼ cup applejack or calvados
1 cup cider (dry, not sweet)
2 cups flour mixed with water to make a stiff paste

This quantity requires a very large casserole, a 6-8-quart size, or the classic tripotière. The recipe can, of course, be halved.

Arrange a layer of sliced onions in the bottom of the casserole and follow with a layer of ⅓ of the tripe. Next add the calf's feet and half the suet and then another layer each of onions and tripe. Now add the bouquet garni and the remaining tripe. Top with the rest of the suet, and add the salt and pepper, applejack or calvados, cider, and enough water to cover. Place lid on the casserole and then seal the edges with the stiff flour-and-water paste.

Cook in a 250°-275° oven for 12 hours. Remove from the oven, discard the paste seal, and uncover. Skim off the excess fat. Remove the bouquet garni and the calf's feet. Strip the meat from the calf's feet and return it to the casserole. Taste for seasoning. Serve very hot with boiled potatoes. Serves 10.

DESSERTS

Pear Flan

4 egg yolks, lightly beaten
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup light cream
Eau de vie de poire
Pinch salt
3 pears, peeled, cored, and halved, or 6 halves canned pears
Simple syrup (1 cup water boiled with 1 cup sugar)
1-pound jar apricot preserves
1 baked 9" flan shell

Combine the egg yolks and sugar in the top of a double boiler or heavy pan. Heat the cream separately to the boiling point. Warm the egg mixture with a little of the cream, and then combine the two. Stir over medium heat or hot water until the mixture coats a wooden spoon or spatula. Add 3 tablespoons eau de vie de poire and the salt and stir well. (Do not overcook, or the custard will curdle.) Transfer this pastry cream to a bowl to cool. Chill until ready to use.

Poach pear halves in simple syrup until they are just tender. Drain and pour some pear brandy into each half. (If you use canned pears, add pear brandy to each half.) Chill.

Put apricot preserves in a heavy saucepan and bring to the boiling point, stirring with a wooden spoon. Allow to simmer for 2 minutes and then force through a rather fine strainer. Keep warm.

Spoon a thin layer of chilled pastry cream in the bottom of the flan shell. Arrange the poached pears on top. Spoon the warm apricot glaze over the pears and cool. Serve with or without sweetened whipped cream. Serves 6-8.

Tipsy Pudding

40 lady fingers
½ cup cognac mixed with ¼ cup water
¼ cup or more raspberry jam
1½ cups Brandied Custard Sauce, flavored with cognac
1 cup toasted blanched almonds
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 tablespoon cognac

Dip the lady fingers in the cognac-water mixture and arrange a layer of about 20 in a serving dish. Spread layer with half the raspberry jam, cover with remaining lady fingers, spread with remaining jam, cover with custard sauce, and chill. Just before serving, stud surface with the almonds and serve with whipped cream, sweetened with powdered sugar and flavored with 1 tablespoon cognac. Serves 6.

Brandied Custard Sauce

1 cup milk
1 cup heavy cream
4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
¼ cup brandy of choice
½ teaspoon vanilla (optional)

Heat the milk and cream to the boiling point. Beat the egg yolks and sugar together lightly over low heat in a heavy enameled pan, a stainless-steel pan, a double boiler of glass, or one with a pottery top. Lacking any of these, improvise a double boiler by placing a glass bowl over a saucepan of hot water. Gradually add the milk-cream mixture and stir vigorously. Heat the brandy in a small pan to the boiling point to volatilize the alcohol. Continue stirring the egg-milk-cream mixture until it coats a wooden spoon or spatula. Do not overcook or it will curdle. Add the brandy, cook gently for another moment or two, then remove to a bowl and cool. Makes 2½-3 cups.

Meringue Cream Pie

4 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1½ cups sugar
Salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons kirsch
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Beat the egg whites with the cream of tartar until quite fluffy. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt and continue beating until the sugar is dissolved and the whites hold stiff peaks. Lightly oil a 9" pie pan and spread the meringue in the pan. Bake in a preheated 300° oven for about 1 hour. Do not open door for the first half hour. Remove to a rack to cool. The center will collapse. When cool, chill the shell in the refrigerator.

Combine egg yolks and remaining ½ cup sugar in top of a double boiler and stir over simmering water until the mixture is thick. Remove from heat and stir in lemon juice, a pinch of salt, and the kirsch. Cool to room temperature. Whip the cream. Fold the cream into the filling and pour into the meringue shell. Chill for 2-3 hours before serving; or chill as long as 24 hours. Serves 6-8.

Pêches Sultanes

6 ripe peaches
2¾ cups sugar
Vanilla bean (about 2"), or 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
6 egg yolks
¼ cup white wine
Framboise
1 quart pistachio ice cream
Pistachio nuts, chopped

Blanch the peaches in boiling water for 1-2 minutes and then peel off the skins. Prepare a syrup by boiling 2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, and the vanilla bean or extract together for 10 minutes. Poach the peaches in the syrup until they are tender. Do not allow them to become mushy. Let them cool in the syrup while preparing the sauce.

Beat the egg yolks and remaining ¾ cup sugar together until light and lemon-colored. Add the wine and continue to beat. Transfer to the top of a double boiler and beat over hot water until thick and foamy. Do not allow the water to come to a boil, or the egg yolk will solidify. Flavor

Soufflé Lady Stanhope

tablespoons butter
tablespoons flour
½ cups hot milk
egg yolks
½ cup sugar
tablespoons vanilla extract
3 ounces unsweetened chocolate, melted with 1 tablespoon sugar over hot water
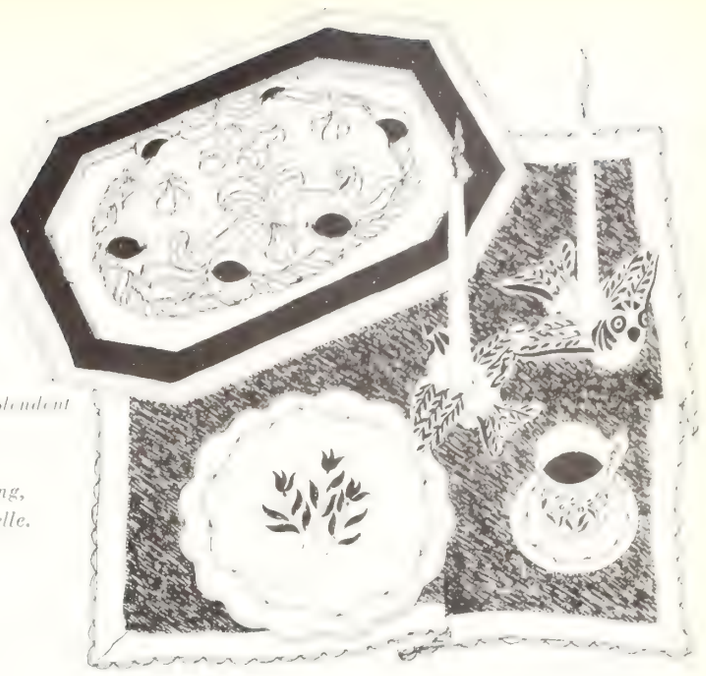
10 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
12 lady fingers
Kirsch, cognac, or rum
Butter and sugar
Sauce Sabayon

Melt the butter over low heat and blend in the flour. Stir in the hot milk and continue stirring until the mixture thickens. Cook for 2 minutes, then remove from heat and allow to cool slightly. Meanwhile beat the egg yolks and sugar together. Pour some of the thickened sauce into the egg mixture to warm it gradually, then add the rest of the sauce and blend thoroughly. Divide the sauce in half. Add the vanilla flavoring to one half, the chocolate to the other. Beat the egg whites and salt until stiff but not dry. Fold half the egg whites into each flavored sauce, first folding in ⅓ of the amount rather thoroughly, then folding in the remainder lightly.

Soak the lady fingers in the kirsch, cognac, or rum. Butter a 2½-quart soufflé dish, and sugar the surface. Shake out the excess sugar. Pour in the chocolate soufflé mixture, and on this arrange the lady fingers. Cover with the vanilla soufflé mixture. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a 350°-375° oven for 35-40 minutes. Serve with Sauce Sabayon, spooned over each serving. Serves 6.

Sauce Sabayon

5 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar, or to taste
1 pint milk
¼ cup kirsch



Place egg yolks and sugar in the upper part of a double boiler and beat until light. Do not allow the water in the bottom half of the pan to come to a boil, or it will cook the eggs. Add the milk and continue beating until thickened. Add the kirsch and stir in lightly.

Strawberries Carcassone

Choose ripe, flavorful strawberries, and sugar to taste. Squeeze lemon juice over them and give them a generous sprinkling of freshly ground black pepper. Toss well, and just before serving, add about 2 tablespoons armagnac per serving. Toss again. This makes an unusual and extraordinarily good blend of flavors.

Grape Tart

1½-2 pounds perfect grapes, purple, red, and white
⅓ cup cognac
Apricot glaze (see recipe for Pear Flan)
1 baked 9" flan shell

Is an interesting sketch on the tendrier lines . . . Lenôtre, and a pert glimpse with Orgeratte Noir . . . one resplendent on a silver platter, studded with little cups of halved eggshells filled with flaming, fragrant framboise or mirabelle.

Split the grapes in half and remove the seeds. Pour the cognac over them and let stand for ½ hour. Drain. Meanwhile, prepare the glaze according to previous instructions. Brush the bottom of the shell with a little of the glaze and allow it to cool. Arrange the grape halves in the shell, alternating the colors and building them up to the center. Pour remaining glaze over them. This needs no further embellishment. Serves 6-8.

Crêpes Lapérouse

8 dessert crêpes
1 cup crème pâtissière
6 egg whites
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup apricot purée
½ cup diced pineapple soaked in
¼ cup kirsch
Kirsch or cognac

Spread the crêpes lightly with crème pâtissière, roll, and arrange on a buttered ovenproof dish. Beat the egg whites very stiff, and gradually add the sugar to make a meringue. Cover the crêpes with the meringue, smooth it, and sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar. Bake in a 375° oven just until the meringue is nicely browned.

Meanwhile warm the apricot purée so it will spread easily. Remove the crêpes from the oven, and spread the apricot purée over the meringue. Top with the diced pineapple. Heat about ⅓ cup of kirsch or cognac, and pour over the crêpes. Flambé, and serve hot. Serves 4.

Dessert Crêpes

1 cup less 1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons cognac
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups milk

This recipe will make 16-18 crêpes. The extra crêpes can be stored in the refrigerator for several days or in the freezer for a month. Sift the flour, sugar, and salt together, and add the eggs one at a time. Mix until smooth in an electric mixer or blender. Add the melted butter, cognac, and vanilla, then gradually stir in the milk. The batter should be as thin as light cream. Refrigerate the batter for at least an hour before using.

Make the crêpes in a well-buttered 6" crêpe pan over a fairly brisk heat. For each crêpe, pour 1½-2 tablespoons batter into the pan, and tip so that it runs over the entire surface. Cook until lightly browned on side next to pan, then turn and brown lightly on second side. Keep warm in a low oven or over hot water, wrapped in foil, until ready to fill.

Crème Pâtissière

⅓ cup sugar
3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk
2 tablespoons rum

Combine the sugar and egg yolks and beat until quite thick. Gently blend in the flour. Gradually add the hot milk, stirring constantly. Cook over medium heat, or in top of double boiler over hot water, stirring constantly, until the mixture reaches the boiling point. Add the rum, then set aside to cool.

Omelette Soufflé

3 eggs
2 cup sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
Pinch salt
3 tablespoons or more butter
Granulated sugar
½ cup cognac, kirsch, or framboise, warmed

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks until thick, then beat in the sugar until the mixture is smooth and falls in ribbons when poured from a spoon. Add lemon juice and salt, and beat for another moment. Beat the whites until stiff, but not dry—just beyond the soft-peak stage. Fold ⅓ of the whites into the yolk mixture quite thoroughly. Fold in the remaining whites rather lightly. Pour into a 9" round iron or Teflon-lined, metal-handled skillet that has been well-buttered, sprinkled with granulated sugar, and heated. Cook in a 375° oven for about 15 minutes, or until the omelette is puffy and brown.

Turn out on a hot heatproof plate sprinkled with sugar, pour warmed cognac, kirsch, or framboise over it, and flambé. If you are doubtful about turning the omelette out, you may serve it from the pan, although it is not as attractive this way. Sprinkle with sugar, and flambé in the same way. Serves 4.

For a pick-it-yourself dessert at a buffet dinner, pile a tiered epergne high with strawberries, pears, peaches, and other fresh fruits to be sprinkled with sugar and a preferred eau de vie from ceramic muffineers. To identify flavor of spirituous contents, hand-letter labels and paste them on the sides.

Omelette Norvégienne

Layer of sponge cake or génoise, 1" thick
Framboise or mirabelle
6 egg whites (reserve shells)
2 egg yolks
⅓ cups sugar
1-1½ quarts firm ice cream (2-3 complementary flavors)

This is similar to Baked Alaska, but is far more interesting. Place the sponge cake or génoise layer on an ovenproof serving dish. Sprinkle the cake with ¼ cup framboise or mirabelle. Beat the egg whites until quite stiff. Beat the yolks and gradually beat in the sugar until it is thoroughly blended. Fold the egg whites into the yolks.

Arrange small dips or spoonfuls of ice cream on the cake, alternating the flavors. Cover completely with the egg mixture and smooth the surface. If you like, decorate by piping some of the egg mixture through a pastry tube. Finally insert six nicely trimmed eggshell halves in the egg mixture to form a ring around the cake.

Bake in a 425° oven just long enough for the egg covering to brown. Remove from the oven and pour a little framboise or mirabelle into each eggshell. Ignite the brandy, and bring the dish to the table flaming. Serve at once. Serves 6.

Fruit Fritters

2 cups flour
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup light beer
1 tablespoon kirsch
Pinch salt
Fat for deep frying
Flavored fruit of choice (see right)
Stale cake crumbs or macaroon crumbs
Powdered, granulated, or extra fine sugar
Brandy Sauce

Sift flour and combine with beaten eggs, melted butter, and beer. Blend thoroughly until batter is smooth. Add kirsch and salt. Let batter stand for 2-3 hours before using. Put it through a strainer to remove any lumps. Heat fat to 375°. Roll desired fruit in crumbs, then dip into batter and lower into the hot fat. Cook until fritters are beautifully golden on all sides. Serve with a dusting of sugar and sauce if desired.

Brandy Sauce

6 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup sugar
3 egg yolks
2 ounces or more brandy or eau de vie of choice
1 cup heavy cream

Cream the butter and sugar together thoroughly. Gradually add the egg yolks and beat in well. Add the brandy. Combine with the cream in top of a double boiler and stir over hot water until the mixture thickens enough to coat a spoon. Taste for sweetness and brandy flavor. Serve with fritters.

Apricot Fritters

Drain 12-18 whole canned apricots, peeled but unpitted, and marinate in kirsch or framboise for an hour or so. Roll in macaroon crumbs, dip in batter, and fry as directed above. Serve very hot with a dusting of powdered sugar. Serves 6-8.

Pineapple Fritters

Marinate 12 rounds of either fresh or canned drained pineapple in framboise for several hours. Dip in macaroon crumbs and then into batter. Fry as directed above. Serves 6.

Pear Fritters

Poach 12 pear halves in simple syrup (1 cup sugar boiled with 1 cup water) until just tender. Drain and remove to a plate. Marinate in eau de vie de poire for about 30 minutes. Dip the pears in stale cake crumbs, pressing them in firmly. Fry as directed above. Dust with powdered sugar. Serve 1 or 2 pear halves per person, depending upon the size of the pears.

Apple Fritters

Peel, core, and quarter 4-5 apples and poach gently in simple syrup until they are just barely cooked through. Marinate in calvados. Dip in stale cake crumbs, then into batter. Fry as directed above. Serve with a dusting of powdered sugar. Serves 6.

Fruits with Brandy

You can make numerous easy desserts by mixing fruits in various combinations and flavoring them with brandy or eau de vie, such as framboise, kirsch, etc. Fruit desserts, which have the virtue of being light and not oversweet, are very popular these days, especially among the calorie conscious. (If you are truly counting calories, use artificial sugars with these fresh fruits and a touch less of brandy.) Some fruits can be used fresh with little or no preparation, some require poaching or baking, and others may come from a can or your freezer.

Apples Bake and serve warm with calvados poured over, or flambé with calvados.

Stew in syrup and flavor with cognac, calvados, or kirsch.

When making a pie, add ¼ cup or more of calvados, or a touch of cognac to the apple filling before baking.

Blackberries Sugar to taste and add cognac or kirsch.

Blueberries Flavor with maple sugar or brown sugar, and cognac, armagnac or kirsch.

Raspberries Sprinkle with kirsch, framboise, or eau de vie de poire.

Strawberries Sugar to taste and add kirsch or framboise.

Cherries Sugar pitted fresh cherries and sprinkle with kirsch. Flavor canned cherries with kirsch or with cognac, as a fruit dessert or a topping for ice cream, or heat and flambé with kirsch.

Melons Sprinkle strong-flavored cantaloupe with framboise, kirsch, or cognac.

Add about a tablespoon of kirsch or mirabelle to honeydew melon just before serving.

Flavor Spanish or Persian melons with framboise or kirsch.

Plug a ripe watermelon and fill it with as much kirsch or cognac as it will take. Replace the plug, seal with Scotch tape, and chill the melon in ice for 8-12 hours.

Papaya Sprinkle with framboise.

Peaches Slice fresh peaches, add sugar to taste, and flavor with kirsch or framboise.

Poach in vanilla-flavored syrup, then remove the peaches, add cognac to the syrup, and cook for a minute or two to evaporate the alcohol.

Sprinkle canned or frozen peaches with kirsch, framboise, or cognac.

Combine with raspberries or strawberries and flavor with framboise.

Pears Add eau de vie de poire, the perfect complement to fresh, poached, or canned pears. Kirsch is also pleasant.

Pineapple Add kirsch or framboise. Or stuff with sugared raspberries and pineapple chunks, and flavor with framboise.

Plums Flavor fresh or poached plums with mirabelle or kirsch (the former is more subtle).

Prunes Add quetsch or eau de vie de prune to poached or baked fresh purple prunes. Include a touch of cinnamon in the cooking syrup.

Bring dried prunes to a boil in a simple syrup and cook for 5 minutes. Flavor with eau de vie de prune or mirabelle. Serve cold with heavy cream or whipped cream. These are also excellent with cognac. Prunes soaked in cognac until puffed are a delicious additive for many dishes.

ties of inexpensive young red wines. There was a time when the wines from the vineyards around the town of Châteauneuf-du-Pape needed ten years to mature, but nowadays few producers vinify their wines in the classic tradition, and the 1964's and 1962's can be drunk right now. On the other side of Avignon is the village of Tavel, from whose vineyards comes the best dry rosé of France, a young wine with considerably more body and flavor than most rosés.

Although more wine is made annually in Alsace than in Beaujolais, the Alsatian white wines are less well-known here. Unlike all other French wines, which are labeled, by legal definition, with the name of the town from which they come, Alsatian wine takes the name of the grape from which it is made: Sylvaner, Riesling, Traminer, and Gewürztraminer. The Gewürztraminer, or spicy Traminer has the most pronounced flavor. The Riesling and Sylvaner are drier and less flowery than their German counterparts. All are most refreshing when drunk young.

Young Wines of Burgundy and Bordeaux

The best wines of Bordeaux and those from Burgundy's Côte de Nuits and Côte de Beaune need several years in bottle. They are expensive even when bought young, and much more expensive if you're looking for a good 1955 or 1959. Less costly and drinkable much sooner are the village wines of Burgundy, and those of the Bordeaux châteaux from lesser known districts.

Burgundy's "village wines" (those without the additional name of a specific vineyard) mature quickest: Nuits-Saint-Georges, Vosne-Romanée, Pommard, Volnay, Beaune, etc. Village-plus-vineyard will almost always be a better (and more expensive) wine, requiring more bottle age: Nuits-Saint-Georges, Les Porrets; Vosne-Romanée, Les Malconsorts; Pommard Épenots; Volnay Champans; Beaune Boucherottes. The 1964's are still a bit too young, but the 1962's are excellent. (Don't skip this fine vintage; although it hasn't received as much publicity as 1959 and 1964, its wines are sound and well-balanced, and often surpass the other two vintages in quality.) Among the better white Burgundies, the classic trio are the villages of Meursault, Chassagne-Montrachet, and Puligny-Montrachet. The 1964's are fine, and if you want a premier cru (one of the village names, plus a vineyard name) you'll find the 1962's are very good indeed since fine white Burgundies do take on additional character and style with a little bottle age.

In Bordeaux, the famous "classed growths" of the Médoc, and the great châteaux of St. Émilion, Pomerol, and Graves are so costly that more and more wine drinkers are turning to the petits châteaux, as they are called in the trade—less famous vineyards whose excellent wines sell for $2 and $3 the bottle. They come not only from the classic districts, but increasingly from neighboring wine districts within Bordeaux, such as Bourg, Blaye, and Fronsac. Since these wines are lighter in style, a good recent vintage, such as a 1961, can be drunk with pleasure today, and many of the 1962's can be really delightful. The dry white wines of Bordeaux are mostly inexpensive, but they usually have less distinction than a white Burgundy at an equivalent price.

The Refreshing Young Whites of Germany

The white wines of Germany rank among the world's greatest, and they are almost all wines to drink young, either alone or with a meal. From their tremendous range, you can choose whatever is most to your taste, from the flowery, delicate wines of the Moselle and its tributaries, the Saar and the Ruwer, to the somewhat fuller-bodied Rhine wines (divided into the Rheinpfalz, the Rheinhessen, and the Rheingau). Most of them need no bottle age. The exceptions are the fuller and richer wines labeled Spätlese and Auslese, made from especially ripe grapes, that are successfully produced only in excellent vintage years, such as 1959, 1964, and 1966. Vintages in Germany do not correspond to those in France—1963, for example, was a better year than 1962 or 1961. But the off-vintage years in Germany yield pleasant wines that tend to be drier and less flowery than those of the very sunny years.

Generally speaking, as in Burgundy, a village name followed by the name of a vineyard indicates better quality than a village name alone. But unlike Burgundy, where a village wine will have some distinction, a simple village wine from the Rhine or Moselle is pretty low on the scale.

Other Wines of Youthful Merit

Italy's wine production almost equals that of France, but it is much more casual and lacks the peaks of quality so abundant in France and Germany. Red wines from the Piedmont (Barolo, Barbera, Fresia) and some of the better Chiantis need aging, but the bulk of the Italian wines imported here are the kind to drink up quickly—Valpolicella, Bardolino, Frascati, Soave, Verdicchio, and Lacrima Christi among them. Vintages in Italy bear no relation to those in France and, as Italy is farther south, there is much less variance between one year and the next. Moreover, vintage years appearing on many Italian wines are not altogether reliable, so the best thing to do is to forget about them completely and concentrate on sampling wines from different districts until you discover the ones you like. As a few brands dominate the market here, you'll have no difficulty finding them again in a retail store.

Although Spain is best known for its sherry and Portugal for its port, these fortified wines represent only 2 or 3 per cent of the output of the two countries—the bulk is inexpensive and agreeable young table wine. The best red wine of Spain is rioja, similar in style to a delicate Bordeaux. Portuguese rosés with their mellow, not-quite-dry flavor have become extremely popular here, and the white vinho verde, fresh and clean-tasting as a green apple, is garnering quite a following.

Switzerland, which despite its small size imports more wine than we do, produces some white wines to drink young such as Neuchâtel, the best known, Yvorne, Dezaley, Aigle, and Fendant du Sion. Little red wine is made and the best is probably Dole du Sion.

Austria's wines, grown from the German grape varieties but lighter and drier, fall into the immediate-drinking category. Some are ready a mere matter of weeks after the vintage. Grinzinger, Durnsteiner, and Gumpoldskirchener are the names to look for.

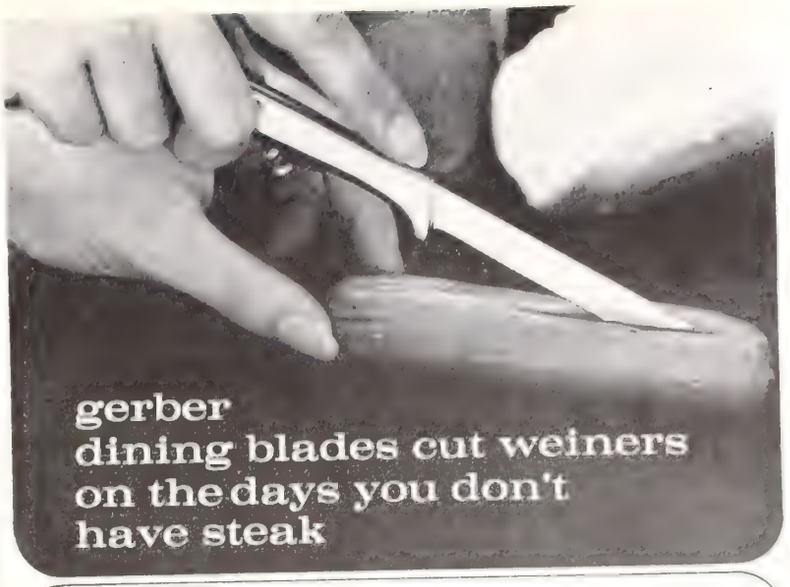
Even Central Europe is not averse to selling wine to us. The Yugoslavian Riesling and the full-bodied red Egri Bikaver from Hungary are two you might encounter.

California's Candidates

California provides more than three-quarters of the wine we drink in this country. The premium wines sold as varietals—which means the name indicates the variety of grape that went into the wine—are among the best. Red varietals include Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Noir, Zinfandel, and Gamay. Among the best of the whites are Pinot Chardonnay, Pinot Blanc, Chenin Blanc, Sauvignon Blanc, Semillon, and Riesling. All except vintage Cabernet Sauvignon, which improves with age, are excellent when young. While these are the classic European grape varieties grown in the best vineyard districts of France and Germany, the soil and the climate in California are so different, and so influential, that it would be fruitless to look for identical characteristics simply because the same grape makes both a California Pinot Noir and a Pommard.

Although vintages do vary in California, most producers do not put the year on their wines, partly because the vintages are blended to make a more standardized product, and partly to avoid making the public unnecessarily "vintage conscious" about California wines. There are exceptions. Certain producers will indicate the vintage year on wines they consider especially good.

Youthful Champagne



Finally, let's not forget that most festive of young wines, champagne, which, whether French or domestic, is ready to drink when shipped. There was a time when champagne connoisseurs preferred to age champagne for ten or fifteen years, finding the slightly aged and brownish, or maderized, quality attractive, but present-day taste leans toward the freshness and sparkle of young champagne which has, after all, already been suitably aged in bottle in the cellars of Rheims and Epernay.

Check List for an Instant Cellar

The following selection is a good starting point for a small cellar of wines to drink young. Each wine sells for under $3 a bottle (some for less than $2). Although this list is by no means comprehensive, it has been designed to include a wide variety of wines from different countries and regions that could accompany any food you wish to serve.

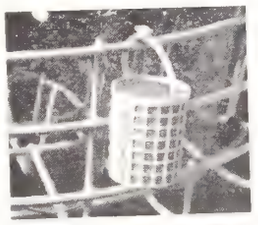
because of its inability to vibrate in sympathy to notes struck on the keyboard—is just about the worst possible material that can be used for this extremely important part of a piano.

On the other hand, don't reject a piano because it has plastic keys. Ivory keys—although they certainly sound more luxurious than plastic—tend to crack with age and eventually turn yellow. The synthetic materials used for the keys of modern pianos last considerably longer than the traditional ivory.

How are you going to pay for the instrument?

For most families, a piano represents a major expense. In fact, after the house and family car(s), it is likely to be the largest single investment you are going to make. So if you are not prepared to pay cash, make sure the dealer has a sound and viable payment plan. Don't hesitate to have the financial arrangements reviewed by your banker.

How to make your new piano feel at home.



Dealers usually throw in one tuning with the purchase of a piano. This should be done about one month after delivery; it takes that long for a piano to settle down in its new environment. After that, have the instrument tuned at least three—preferably four—times a year. The longer you wait between tunings, the harder it will be to tune the piano, and the less likely it is to remain in tune. If the instrument gets a great deal of use, you might also consider having it voiced every three or four years. By all means follow the manufacturer's recommendations.

If you take the care and time to select wisely, you can count on owning a piano that will provide many years of good service and unbounded enjoyment for your whole family.

Would you spend 99¢ to bring your dishwasher up to date?

The latest deluxe-model dishwashers have a built-in rinse injector for Liquid Jet-Dry. It prevents spots. One 99¢ box of Solid Jet-Dry can bring your dishwasher right up to date. Solid Jet-Dry prevents spots, too. You see, spots are often caused by slow, uneven drying in the rinse and dry cycles. And changing your detergent can't help you. No matter how good your detergent is, it's no good to you in the rinse cycle. It all goes out with the wash water. That's where new Jet-Dry comes in.

It contains a special drying agent that goes to work in the rinse cycle and helps dry your dishes so fast, so evenly, spots don't have a chance to form. Just hook Jet-Dry onto your dishwasher rack. Now your dishwasher is up to date! You get 3 bars of Solid Jet-Dry (up to 100 washings) for only 99¢. (Oh, yes, if you have a new dishwasher with a built-in rinse injector, keep it filled with Liquid Jet-Dry.) Get a package of Jet-Dry at your dishwasher dealer or grocery store today.

Jet-Dry hooks right onto your dishwasher rack like this.

in McConnellsville, N.Y. the winters are long and the craftsmen are patient

There's time, for example, for 12 separate finishing operations plus two complete hand-sandings on every piece of Harden solid cherry furniture. There's time to make it the hard way—the way colonial furniture used to be made before anybody got ideas about nails and plastics. With hardwood dowels.

This goes for upholstered pieces, too. Under the hand-cut fabric is the same kind of painstaking workmanship. All of which might seem a little ridiculous, except that all Harden furniture is intended to last—to become tomorrow's heirlooms. Harden solid cherry furniture, for every room in your home, is the colonial that not only looks authentic, but is made that way. Drop us a note for the name of the Harden dealer nearest you. The notes of a happy housekeeper

BY MARY ELIZABETH FALTER

The crisp cold weather we've been having put me in the mood to clean bureau drawers. As I worked, it occurred to me that it's really the tremendous variety of the jobs to be done around the house that provides the light and shade and makes the whole thing bearable. The daily one-two-three of beds, dishes, and dusting I do automatically, which gives me time to think my own private thoughts. The seasonal or once-in-a-while jobs that require more imagination and thought are more interesting, and they never fail to give me a sense of accomplishment. Then both kinds are spiced with the unexpected—spur-of-the-moment dinner guests, a find at the supermarket, or a new flower in the garden—all of which makes life at home really rich and rewarding.

One thing I couldn't live without are jumbo-size plastic utility bags—the ones that are really made to line the largest size garbage cans.

But we use them for lots of other things. Since the trash collector won't pick up leaves or garden cuttings that are not in a container, and the city won't allow any kind of burning, we sweep all the garden refuse into our big bags, close the tops with rubber bands, and put them out with the cans on collection day. I also use a bag to line the big laundry hamper so I can lift everything out at once and carry it down to the washing machine. The bags are great for wastebasket emptying, too, and to cover things like the barbecue, small garden furniture, and anything else to be stored in the cellar, garage, or attic. If I can't finish ironing all the clothes I've dampened. I put the leftovers in a bag and stick it in the freezer until another day.

The world and its markets are filled to overflowing with treatments, oils, and polishes for fine furniture, but I've just discovered one that seems to be unique and highly efficient. The name is Finish Feeder, and they say it penetrates wood, as well as improving and clarifying surface finishes and automatically taking care of mars and scratches. Since it contains beeswax, it also helps to make furniture water-resistant. There is no buildup of the wax because of the deep penetration. Finish Feeder can be used on wood paneling, too, and as part of the finish on new "unfinished" furniture, or old furniture stripped to the raw wood.

It's amazing how far a spatter can go when you're cooking bacon on top of the stove. We have a brand new beautiful coppertone range and I had trouble removing grease spots from the dark surface without leaving smears until I discovered the best thing to do is go over the spots with paper towels first, follow up with a sponge and mild detergent solution, then—and most important—dry with a clean kitchen towel. When I'm conscientious about doing that, the top of the stove never needs a hard cleaning.

When we drove over to the Princeton game last Saturday, we christened a new gadget Tom bought for the car, because he was tired of the terrible clutter that used to develop in the front seat and glove compartment. His remedy is a vinyl-coated wire rack that is really half rack and half basket. It clamps to the back of the front seat where anyone in the car can reach it and holds all the maps, pamphlets, Kleenex, and other odds and ends including, last Saturday, a thermos of coffee. If it does nothing else, it should solve the lost map situation.

We have been extra careful about hanging pictures on the freshly plastered and painted walls of our new house. Tom has a trick that's designed both to keep the picture hook from loosening and the plaster around it from crumbling. He simply puts a piece of masking tape over the spot on the wall where the hook is to go and drives the nail through that. Then if we decide to raise or lower the hook an inch or so, he can pull out the nail leaving only a small clean hole.

HOW TO "PAINT" WALLS AND FURNITURE WITH FABRIC

If you have a steady hand and the right tools you can turn some of the great unlooked-fors on pages 250-255 into do-it-yourself projects

Swooshing fabric up the wall or splashing it on furniture usually demands the skill of a specialist. But some of the simpler applications are not beyond the competence of a deft do-it-yourselfer with a reservoir of patience, the normal number of thumbs, and an obliging friend to help out.

HOW TO FABRIC A WALL

An amateur might reasonably tackle a short stretch of wall (such as that between two windows or two bookcases), a flush door completely innocent of panels or moldings, a closet, or even a small room such as a bathroom, dressing room, or tiny hall. And there are several methods to choose from: you can shirr the fabric on rods at top and bottom; you can apply it with double-faced masking tape or with Velcro; you can staple it to the wall; or you can paste it on as you would wallpaper.

What is the best kind of fabric?

If you are going to shirr the fabric on rods, you can use any type that gathers nicely, even a sheer. For any other method of application, your best choice is a medium weight, closely woven cloth such as sailcloth, Indian head, or glazed chintz. For pasting permanently on the wall, some fabrics come with a special paper backing (you can mount them just as if they were wallpaper) or you can have the fabric you choose sent out to have the backing applied.

Allover non-directional patterns are the easiest to use because they require no matching. If your heart is set on a unidirectional design or a stripe, you will have to allow extra yardage for matching. How much extra you will need will depend on the size of the "repeat," which is usually marked on the sales tag. (The salesman should be able to help you estimate.) Never use stripes, however, on a wall with windows or doors that are not perfectly plumb.

If you plan to use a method that does not allow the fabric to be removed for washing, check into those treated with stain-repellents such as Scotchgard, Syl-Mer, and Zepel. If the fabric you like does not come pre-treated, ask the store or showroom to have it treated for you. Or, you may spray it yourself with Scotchgard or Krylon after it is in place.

Fabric to be applied to the wall with paste must be preshrunk. Many new fabrics are, but if yours is not, launder it before you cut it, because if you don't take the trouble to shrink it, the paste will.

To figure out how much fabric you need, measure the height of the wall (this will be the dimension of one "length" of your fabric). Then measure the width, divide by the width of the fabric, and round off to the next full width. For shirring, double the number of lengths, to assure opulent folds. And add an extra half-yard or so to make sure there's room for "play."

What tools are required?

Sliver-sharp scissors and a steady hand are your basic necessities. If you decide to paste your fabric, you will also need a set of wallpaper brushes and roller, and a plumb line and chalk. For any other method, you will need a sewing machine to make headings or stitch lengths of fabric together. And depending on which method you use, you will need a supply of double-faced masking tape, Velcro, or a staple gun.

How to shirr fabric on rods

Shirring, the simplest way to cover a wall, yields one of the prettiest results (see the dressing room, page 254)—and one that makes it easiest to take down the fabric for washing or change of decorative mood. You have only to (1) fasten the cut-to-fit curtain rods to the wall just below the cornice molding and above the baseboard, (2) cut single lengths of fabric, allowing 3 inches at each end for headings, and (3) gather the material along the rods, concealing the free edges between the folds.

The masking tape expedient

If you want a more tailored wall, but you're not sure how well you will like it, or you're a bit uncertain about your skill, try double-faced masking tape. The fabric won't stay up forever (the adhesive tends to dry out in time), but it may hold fully as long as you want it to. Start by stitching your fabric lengths together and pressing the seams flat. Now stick strips of the tape around the edges of the wall; peel off the outer protective coat, exposing the sticky adhesive, and carefully press the edges of your fabric to the tape—first along the top, then at the bottom, and then at each side, always taking care that the seams and straight grain of the fabric are vertical.

How to use Velcro

Similar to tape in application but far more reliable is Velcro—that tenacious push-together-pull-apart strip fastener used for closings in everything from men's swimwear to sofa slipcovers. Although the burr-covered "hook tape," is glued to the wall's edges, the fabric itself can be taken down for washing. After the "hook tape" is in place (use white household glue for this step) and the fabric lengths have been sewn together and pressed, sew the "pile tape" to the wrong side of the fabric along the edges. Then simply push the two surfaces of the Velcro together. If the fabric ends up slightly askew, you have only to rip the edges apart and begin again.

The staple method

On a short stretch of wall one or two fabric-widths wide or on a flush door, such as those on page 251, the fabric can be tacked up with staples: stitch the lengths together and press, then staple the top edge along the cornice molding or the door's top edge. Now, being careful to keep the fabric grain vertical (take extra care the first time—removing staples is a tedious job), fasten the bottom, then the two side edges. The exposed staples can be concealed by glued-on upholsterer's gimp or braid.

The fine art of pasting

The most permanent and professional-looking fabric-covered wall (see page 255, for instance) is the one to which the fabric has been pasted, but this method also requires the most unwavering pair of shears. To prepare the wall, first paint the entire surface with Modocol, the adhesive professionals recommend: it is fairly easy to handle, and bonus! can be washed out of the fabric when you change your decorating scheme, leaving you with a perfectly usable piece of cloth. Brush it right over the old wallpaper or paint, and let it dry.

Now establish a true vertical by attaching your plumb line at the cornice molding, flush with the wall. Make sure the line is taut, then cover it with chalk and pluck it smartly to make the chalk bounce onto the wall in a straight line. This is your starting point.

With your scissors, carefully trim off both selvages of the fabric—precision is important, because the raw edges should butt against each other as neatly as the edges of wallpaper do. Now paint a second coat of Modocol on the first section of wall, and, leaving a few inches excess for play at the top, apply your first length of fabric so that one edge follows the chalked vertical. Close your scissors, and, with the side of the point, make a sharp crease where the fabric meets the ceiling and base moldings. Cut carefully along these creases. Now use your broad smoothing brush to sweep out all the wrinkles, and run the little roller along the edges to be sure they're pasted flat. When the first panel is in place, continue with the next length of fabric, making sure the pattern matches at the joints. When you have finished, let the adhesive dry overnight before spraying it with Scotchgard or Krylon.

HOW TO COVER FURNITURE

To apply fabric to furniture that has molding, paneling, or serpentine surfaces is a job for a professional. But with care and patience, you can cover a simple piece with no excrescences—a Parson's table, for instance, or a small chest or night stand on which all lines are straight and all surfaces are flush. Even before tackling that, you would be smart to practice on a small cut-to-order plywood picture frame (see those on page 254) or a simple cube.

What kind of fabric?

Use the same type of closely woven cloth with a non-directional design recommended for walls, and for the same reasons (see opposite page). Try to get a fabric that is both pre-shrunk and pre-treated with one of the stain-repellents. But if it is not pre-shrunk, do not shrink it yourself, because laundering removes the body, essential for a professional-looking job.

Elegance reminiscent of another age to add to the lustre of your home today—this table desk from Brandt's Society Hill Group is scaled with the delicacy of a minuet. The patina of the mahogany finish reflects the tradition of English cabinetmakers and Colonial carpenters, whose Society gave a name to a Philadelphia hill. Theirs was a tradition insistent on faithful attention to details, design worthiness, and superb craftsmanship. In the Brandt tradition, the Society Hill Group embodies excellence. FABRIC ON FURNITURE continued from page 289

The necessary tools

One trip to an artist's supply store should equip you for the job. You will need a 2-inch flat artist's brush for applying glue, a matte knife for cutting, a staple gun, and the glue itself—Sobo. (Professionals use Sobo because it's waterproof; if none is available where you live, you can use any white household glue.) Sobo must be mixed with water, but this requires a bit of preliminary experimentation, because there are no established proportions for all fabrics. Try adding a few drops of water at a time, and testing it on scraps of fabric and wood. The glue should be creamy, but should not ooze through to the fabric's surface. If you're covering a Parson's table, or anything that demands mitered corners—a professional finishing, deceptively simple to do—it would help to have a few sheets of lightweight cardboard (ask your art dealer for "heavy cover stock").

Where to staple

Professionals advise stapling wherever the fastening can be concealed by another piece of cloth, or by the structure of the piece itself. Fabric-covered shelves for bookcases, such as those on page 253, may be stapled at the back and side edges after you have neatly tucked in the edges and carefully placed the pieces into position. Flat, hinged divider screens and cabinet doors can be covered entirely by using staples (or double-faced masking tape, or Velcro). Follow the directions for walls and doors, page 289.

Preparing the surface

Unfinished furniture needs no preparation for glued-on fabric, but old pieces with glossy or painted surfaces should be sanded down to a dull finish. Also, check to see if drawers or lids need plan-

Full-length portrait of H&G's BASIC GARDEN LIBRARY

Our own 8-foot shelf of general and specialized books holds all the current answers to an everyday gardener's anyday questions

Knowing that you are someday going to want to know more about horticulture than we can tell you, H&G has compiled what we believe is the bone and sinew of a fine amateur gardener's library. It happens also to be the basis of our own garden library, which is logical enough, since our abiding interest, like that of our readers, is in making and growing gardens for pleasure.

This is a generalist's collection, although in addition to basic reference books and volumes on the whole range of the home landscape, a representative sampling of special subjects and out-and-out specialists' books is also included. All these books are, in our belief, current and standard. They are not necessarily literary selections, although many make good reading. Not all are now in print or on your booksellers' shelves. In some cases, original prices are unknown. But all can probably be bought secondhand or specially ordered if you will give your dealers a little time to advertise for them. Most were written either in or for the United States. The dozen or so written or published in Britain contain information of sufficient relevance to American horticulture to earn them a place on your shelves.

certain amount of organization is desirable in y library, although some compromises usually ve to be made in the interests of appearance e have arranged our collection in the étag`re, pposite page, in five categories—encycloped ---, cture books; volumes on native and woody ants; specialized reference books; texts on ecial subjects—starting with the bottom shelf.

NCYCLOPEDIAS

rom left: The Standard Cyclopedia of Horti ilture, L. H. Bailey, 3 vols. Macmillan, $65. fter fifty years, still the final authority on cul vated species, although obsolete for taxonomy nd nomenclature.

Dictionary of Gardening, Royal Horticultural ociety, 4 vols. and supplement. Oxford, $47.05. tandard horticultural reference for all laymen tyros and experts alike. Most nearly up-to-date ncyclopedia for range, taxonomy, nomencla ure. Weak on some U. S. species.

Exotica 3, Alfred B. Graf. Roehrs Co., $45. Vir ually unique. Easily the most complete and up o-date illustrated encyclopedia of plants of the vorld, featuring especially the exotic species ommonly grown only in subtropical regions or ndoors and in greenhouses in the northern U. S.

Hortus Second, L. H. and Ethel Zoë Bailey. Mac millan, $14.95. A concise desk dictionary of cul tivated species based on the Standard Cyclopedia and almost equally outdated, but still a handy al phabetized quick reference guide.

OVERSIZE PICTURE BOOKS
(second shelf)

There is no basic list that would suit every gar dener. Among titles we ourselves could not omit, we include these six:

Great Gardens of the Western World, Peter Coates. Putnam, $22.95. Part history, part travel guide, part picture album, it has a sound histori cal value beyond the mere album range.

Treasury of American Gardens, James M. Fitch and F. F. Rockwell. Harper, $12.50. A represen tative pictorial review—and practically the only one of American gardens and garden design since the country's beginnings.

The Tropical Gardens of Burle Marx, P. M. Bardi. Reinhold, $15. The record in good pic tures and adequate text of the work of one of the world's most notable landscape designers and plantsmen—the Brazilian who designed much of the landscape of Brasilia, and many public and private buildings in both South America and Europe. Every dedicated gardener should be aware of Roberto Burle Marx's varied interests and work.

Modern American Gardens—Designed by James Rose. Text by Marc Snow, picture captions by Mr. Rose. Reinhold, $16.50. This book is all Rose, whose work is as distinguished and thoughtful as that of any American landscape architect now practicing in the field of home landscapes. Captions are opinionated, but im portant. The text contains much of interest about the present practice of landscape design.

Landscape Artist in America, Leonard K. Eaton. Univ. of Chicago, $10. Chief value: record of the work of Jens Jenssen with and for the Chicago Park system—one of the most notable in the U. S.

A History of Garden Design, Derek Clifford. Re vised. Praeger, $16. More a browsing book than a pictorial one. Covers a broad range of time and place (say 3,400 years and the world).

NATIVE AND WOODY PLANT RESOURCES
(third shelf)

Illustrated Flora of the Northeastern U. S. and Eastern Canada, Britton and Brown, Revised Edition, 3 vols. N. Y. Botanical Garden. $37.50. Long the standard and still perhaps the most authoritative botanical reference work in its somewhat limited field. "Britton and Brown," il lustrated by drawings and organized scientifical ly from start to finish, has not been, nor will it soon be, superseded.

H&G's garden library

Our library fills five 24-inch-long shelves of a graceful and immensely strong étagère with a frame of tubular chrome steel designed to ac commodate a collection of varisized books. We added the shelves of birch plywood (but we might have chosen tempered glass). The biggest and most general reference tomes are at the bot tom; the specialized titles toward the top. Over size picture books lie flat on a shelf of their own. The frame of the étagère is by System Abstracta. For shopping information, turn to page 274.

ing to compensate for the thickness of the fabric.

Cutting and gluing

Measure and cut your fabric with a sharp matte knife before you glue—professionals cut the top and apron of a table from a continuous piece. When you glue, spread the Sobo evenly on the entire surface of the wood with your artist's brush, and lay the fabric immediately. Have a friend help with large surfaces—Sobo is notoriously gooey and must be handled with a minimum of hesitation. Match the edges and smooth out wrinkles and bubbles with something firm and dull—a blunt ruler, perhaps, or your own palms.

The picture frame technique

If you want to start with a flat picture frame, place a rectangle of fabric several inches larger than your frame on the already glued surface. Cut out the center hole, leaving a few inches to fold back. Snip the cloth to the corners of the frame, and fold the fabric around all the edges to the back, where it can be stapled or glued. You may hide the raw edge when your painting is in place by gluing a piece of fabric across the entire back.

Trick for table legs

When covering table legs requiring mitered corners, first complete the tabletop and aprons and the two inside surfaces of each leg, being sure to wrap the fabric well around to the outer surfaces. Next, cut a piece of your artist's cover stock the exact width of the two outer planes combined, and the length of the table leg plus the apron, trimming the cardboard to an even point from the bottom of the apron to the tabletop to form a "miter" (see the Parson's table on page 252). Fold the cardboard in half lengthwise, and cover it with a similarly shaped, slightly larger piece of fabric, gluing the edges to the inside. Let this "templet" dry, then glue it in place.

HOUSE PLANTS

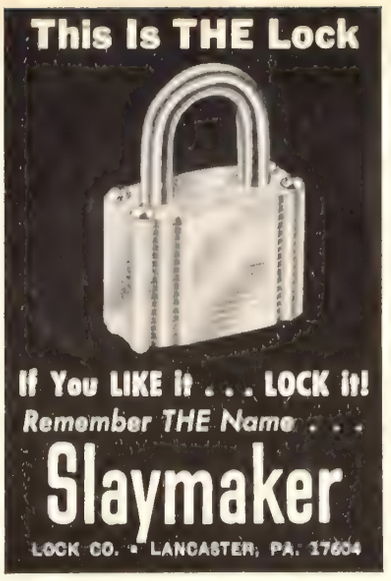
lections. P. caperata 'Little ntasy' (see page 256) is an apding form with deeply ridged rk green and silvery leaves. Ordary soil and moisture.

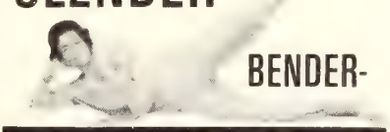
HILODENDRON. A group so ge and so familiar in its comnest varieties that a search for less familiar ones is worthile. 'Emerald Queen' (see page 6) is of this order—a robust iner and climber. P. mandaiam is similar and similarly dratic. P. selloum (see page 256) s deeply cut leaves, tends to ow from a central crown, though will make a large spreading ant. All the tribe like a rich pot il and plenty of water. All do st in subdued light, or with filred eastern sun. No pests worth entioning.



OLYPODIUM. When you see is bold and beautiful fern in the rist's shop, it may go under the me of either P. aureum manianum or P. a. undulatum. They e much alike and most amenable house culture (are often winter rdy, as a matter of fact). They best in subdued light, leafold; steadily ample moisture.

HOEO. There are only two readly available forms of this engagg plant. R. spathacea has dagger-form leaves that are green on p, purplish underneath. R. s. ittata (see page 256) has bright arrow white stripes on the leaf rfaces. Both produce small hite florets in dark cups far own in the leaf joints. Cut back ld stems to rejuvenate plants. he cut tips root readily to form ew plants. Ordinary soil; even oisture; should have good light, ut not bright sun.

RUSCUS. There is no familiar ame for this unfamiliar plant. he starchy leaves of this slowrowing pot shrub, R. aculeatus see page 256), produce from heir centers small white florets nd then large red berries. In lower and fruit or not, it is an musual and pretty shrub. Tolertes subdued light, ordinary soil nd moisture. No pests.



SAINTPAULIA. The African-vioets (see page 256) will all flower reely in an east window—and for nost of the year. The choice of orms and colors is wider than in ny other preferred genus. Porous, humus-rich soil; ample noisture.

SANSEVIERIA. Old-fashioned snake plant, still an invaluable vertical accent of great durability and tolerance to poor conditions. S. trifasciata is the species with alternating green and yellow stripes, occasional cross-banding. Sandy soil; less than normal moisture.

SCHEFFLERA. There are many distinctions without differences among the schefflleras available at florists. No matter, they are all splendid weak-light house plants. S. actinophylla in a big clay pot (see page 256) makes a fine indoor "tree." Weak light, alternating with occasional vacations in good (but not sunny) light keeps it in condition. Average loam soil; even moisture. Mealybug, occasionally scale are the only pests to guard against.

SPATHIPHYLLUM. Long popular for the best of reasons (amenability to house conditions), the variety known commercially as 'Clevelandii' (see page 256) is one of the prettiest. Makes a full plant, endures subdued light (very poor light if you do not insist on having flowers). Well-drained loam soil, but plenty of water. No pests.

ZEBRINA. The numerous wandering Jew or trandescantia tribe has a few members that are especially good as trailing basket plants in the house. Z. pendula, with its purple-striped green leaves, is one of the best. Grows luxuriantly in filtered light, produces purple florets in an east window. Porous soil, ample moisture.

Notes for November gardeners

It's a mixed bag: problems of winter sun and water, a thought on labels, feeding house plants

First week

Gallows label. There has been no permanent (and inexpensive) solution to the label problem for amateur gardeners so far as we know. Of course, you may not recognize labels as a problem at all; many gardeners do not. But assuming you wish to label your plants on a permanent basis (there are a good many short-term labels on the market), and you are not a public park or an endowed arboretum, you may still be chasing the will-o'-the-wisp. We have experimented with everything from plain white wood and plastic, marked with crayon, to heavy zinc etched in acid ink—none of which was totally satisfactory. So we suggest a permanent tag that is easy-to-make yourself to be hung on an impermanent standard of ordinary soft iron wire (coat-hanger diameter).

To make the standard, cut and straighten an 18- to 24-inch length of the wire. Then with the aid of a wire-bending jig or an ordinary bench vise and a pair of pliers, make a right angle bend an inch-and-a-half from one end. Next, twist the tip of the short arm upward, to provide a stop that will prevent the label from sliding off.

To make the permanent label, cut strips about 1 inch wide and 6 to 8 inches long from pieces of light aluminum sheet (available from any roofer or the do-it-yourself rack at the hardware store). With a rounded nail point or a blunted awl, scribe the plant name and any other pertinent information you think necessary. Then slightly taper one end of the label and near this end punch a slit with a small chisel or screwdriver. Push the tapered end through the slit to form a small loop about the size of a pencil.

Although the gallows support may eventually rust, the label can always be relocated and rehung as necessary. The only caveat: no label is child-proof. So, just in case, make a planting location chart if your domestic situation warrants it.

Second week

Winter drainage. Ice and snow seldom cause damage in a garden that is on a slope unless erosion results; the principal damage takes place on level ground. Some kind of drainage system should be encouraged around the crowns of plants that stay green or turgid all year (foxgloves, canterbury bells) or whose crowns just seem to be vulnerable to accumulations of slush and ice (chrysanthemums, even delphiniums). There are two ways to accomplish this. One is to elevate the plants for the winter—which is not a bad idea if you don't mind the work of digging, lifting, and resetting. The other is to dig drainage ditches to carry away water (and melted snow) before it changes to ice. Even on perfectly flat ground this can be done before the ground freezes solid by scratching out small vermiform trenches with a pointed Warren hoe or the corner of your big garden hoe. It is surprising how useful even the shallowest trench may prove. Naturally you have to provide some place for the water to collect after it has accommodatingly run into your ditches. And in the open spaces between plant clumps, small sumps may be made to collect water from several small drains and deliver it to a bigger one.

If drainage is a ticklish problem at other times of the year, permanent ditches of this sort may be provided. If they are filled with stone chips, they will operate surprisingly well, even when earth is washed back in on top of the gravel. Such drains are actually like the old-fashioned field drains, with the stone chips standing in for the drain tiles. Ultimately the best remedy of all, however, may be to raise the level of the whole area next spring. Then you will not need to fuss with ditches again, however minuscule.

Third week

Unfriendly sun. Winter sun is the gardener's worst—well, maybe, most insidious—enemy. For many broadleaf evergreens and other plants whose crowns remain green through the winter or whose bark is thin and tender, the low but intense rays of a January sun can be, literally, murderous. More than wind and often more than intense cold, the burning-glass effects of a bright winter day raise havoc with live plant tissues. This is one reason careful gardeners build burlap or wooden shelters around their prized rhododendrons and some of the less durable hollies. But those shelters that are erected presumably to cut the winter wind are often unnecessary on that account. Many broadleaf evergreens will stand the coldest winds that blow, if only they are protected from the sun. This is not to say that windy locations will not encourage excessive, even dangerous, evaporation of essential moisture from evergreen foliage, or that absolute cold beyond the tolerance of any plant may not cause damage or death. But the sun is the real peril—which may be hard to believe since we ourselves cherish it so much during the short days of winter.

The conclusion is inescapable that if you can shelter plants on the sunny south, you need not worry about protection from the blustery north. Which leads to a suggestion: place more of your thin-skinned plants to the north of buildings, hedges, fences, or other "sun" breaks. All you really need to remember in implementing such a policy is that no plant, in the north temperate zones, needs sun at all in winter, and few plants wholly withstand its effects.

Fourth week

Label fallout. Speaking of labels, here is a purely non-identification function they can perform indoors: keeping tabs on your plant feeding progress. As you have undoubtedly discovered before now, it is one thing to start fertilizing a couple of dozen pots on a window sill or a couple of hundred in a greenhouse, and it is quite another to complete the job without being called to the telephone or the front door or to walk the dog or dry the dishes. Any interruption in the process of distributing soluble fertilizer to the plants that need it is almost certain to make you forget which pots you have treated and which you have not. Besides, you may not have time to do the whole job at once anyway. And also some plants need supplementary feeding more often than others. Here is an idea: as you feed your pots, or a group of similar pots, turn the labels around. (If the name faced outward before, face it inward after fertilizing.) Plants that require special treatment may rate a separate pot label (not to be confused with the gallows labels in the foregoing paragraphs) just to keep track of the special plant food needs. A white or green plastic or wood label, with a colored dot crayoned on one side (a china marking pencil is fine), can provide you with both a whole code of special requirements and a means of recording progress. This color-code label can carry other information to you, such as the amount of watering the plant should have, or the time of its dormancy, or when it should be repotted or have cuttings taken. All this may sound like a lot of work. For a few dissimilar pots, it is. For a large number of pots, some such fussy system can prevent chaos. So don't knock it; it may prevent the loss of a treasured plant someday.

MULLER

On the cover: Worthy of Catherine the Great, H&G's "diamond"-studded Christmas bouquet is a tour de force that—miraculously—you can make yourself, assembling it exactly as though you were arranging flowers. The components —plastic jewels, prisms, snowflakes, crystal beads, finials, and Christmas-tree lights—are widely available. (In New York City, Lord & Taylor has all of them.) The base of the crystal bouquet is every flower arranger's best friend, Styrofoam. If you want to vary the frosty crystalline look with spikes of color, there are plenty of multi-hued "jewels" at hand for just that purpose. H&G's 1967 decorations, all designed for you to re-create, begin on page 127.

Only one car can make a Cadillac owner look twice.

Longtime Cadillac owners, accustomed to the finest, have high regard for the spirited glamour of the 1968 Fleetwood Eldorado—the world's finest personal car. While they may prefer one of Cadillac's more traditionally styled models, they admire the bold concept of the Fleetwood Eldorado. For it reflects the vitality of every one of Cadillac's eleven 1968 models, each powered this year by the new 472 V-8—biggest, smoothest V-8 engine ever put into passenger car production. Shouldn't you, too, give Cadillac a second look?

Notes for the Hostess

In keeping with the contemporary enthusiasm for instant this and instant that, why not instant table "linens?" With scissors, gift wrapping paper, or wallpaper, and a plastic mat for a guide, you can come up, in minutes, with place mats to fit the particular mood of the moment. Use pinking shears, take a little more time and some rubber cement, and you can turn out more sophisticated creations to carry out the special theme of a party. A wonderfully economical, easy way to get an effect without a serious outlay, and a great way to experiment with colors.

I've discovered a series of wine vinegars that are to ordinary vinegar what Beluga caviar is to lumpfisk. Aged in oak as carefully as many a good table wine, Baccari Vintage Wine Vinegars come in red or white and with eleven other seasonings such as garlic, tarragon, or shallot. They also come as full-bodied herb vinegars, each green bottle holding what would seem to be almost a whole plant of rosemary, oregano, parsley, mint, dill, or basil. The bouquet garni combination is practically an entire herb garden. The bottles' shaker tops, much like those of bitters bottles, ensure judicious application. Solo, or in an epicurean gift pack of four, handsomely boxed in wood, or even all thirteen together, the vinegars may be ordered from that delightful San Francisco emporium of good living, The Arches, at Buchanan and North Point.

Another find on a recent trip to San Francisco: the Winestock, an ingenious extension of a familiar child's toy that seems to prove the form-follows-function principle. It consists of an assortment of fat and slender beech dowels that you fit together to make a wine rack of whatever size you happen to need. As your cellar grows, so does the wine rack. Sturdy and sensible, it is good-looking enough in its simplicity to be kept in full sight. You can get it from S. Christiansen of Copenhagen, Inc., at 1001 Front Street.

When size or season limits the lavishness of flowers on the dining table, a porcelain reproduction of a Georgian candlestick can solve the problem with small-scaled authority. The one I saw at Quai Voltaire in New York is 4½-inches high with a holder in the base in which you can put a few flowers or cigarettes. If used in pairs, these little candlesticks could light and liven a small dining table—garnished possibly with violets and garnet roses. One candlestick alone, filled with cigarettes, would be a charming beacon in a guest room, the candle lighted to welcome a visitor.

An international sandwich buffet accompanied by the usual liquid cheer is a liberating, lively way of entertaining a continuous stream of friends throughout a holiday afternoon and evening. Practicable, palatable, and subject to no rigid time schedule, the provender may be replenished at need with little consternation in the kitchen. It's just a matter of adequate preparation. HOSTESS NOTES

Space permitting, you might set up four tables, Mexican, French, Italian, and Danish—one in each corner of the room, and decorate each table differently: for the Mexican corner, perhaps a wild pink cloth plus flamboyant, carved Mexican candles; a bright blue cover for Denmark and a cluster of mini-tapers in a Scandinavian holder; green for Italy with Chianti bottle candlesticks; white damask or lace for France and an elegant candelabrum.

Let the Mexican menu feature tacos, those hearty, piquant, tortilla-folded snacks. A hot tray with cover dome will keep the previously heated tortillas warm, and the spicy meat mixture can be held at the right temperature in an electrically heated dish or over a candle warmer. Add a bowl of finely shredded lettuce, dishes of grated onion and store cheese, and a boat of fiery hot sauce (to be had in the Mexican food sections of many grocery stores), and let each guest make his own fresh taco to taste. Small paper plates are indicated.

The sandwiches à la Française would be of a daintier variety: small finger rolls filled with pâté; Bar-le-Duc and cream cheese between very, very thin slices of white bread; chopped chicken and mushrooms melded with hollandaise sauce spread on brioche slices or on rich egg bread.

Smørrebrød or Danish "buttered bread," as their open-faced sandwiches are called, are fancifully pretty as well as filling. Vegetable flowers, butter swirls, mosaics of garnishes delight the eye as well as adding taste and texture. For instance, on buttered black bread, smoked salmon decked out with lemon slices and capers; delicatessen-sliced rare, roast beef dusted with black pepper on buttered brown bread and trimmed with fresh horseradish curls; tiny shrimp, or coarsely chopped shrimp mixed with mayonnaise and set off with cucumber slices.

For the serious trencherman, the Italian specialities are most rewarding. As a foundation, baskets of Italian bread split or in wedge-sized pieces, and/or halved, hard rolls. For fillings, a casserole of hot, small meat balls, a dish of roasted peppers, and a platter of Genoa salami, pepperoni sausage slices. To top them off, a dish of tomato sauce and a bowl of anchovies. Everyone to his own folly. A supply of larger paper plates would be welcome at this table.

With all this international sandwichery, it might be fun to serve in addition to the usual beverages, Mexican beer and a chilled vin rosé, akvavit, and Chianti.

The Towle Reputation:

When everyone's patterns begin to look alike it could help you make up your mind.

It usually happens two weeks after you start shopping around. Suddenly, "Heritage Rose" looks exactly like "Moonlight Fantasy," "Moonlight Fantasy" looks like "Sunset Sonata." And they all look like carbon copies of "Rococo Rhapsody," or whatever.

Don't panic. You have just reached the turning-point in a silver shopper's life. The point where she begins to suspect that there's more to selecting sterling silver than just the pattern.

And there is. Because behind every piece of silver, there's a silversmith. And each silversmith has his own personality. His own traditions. His own reputation.

The Towle tradition, speaking for ourselves, goes back over 275 years. In fact, we're still located near the same little river in Newburyport, Massachusetts where we started in 1690. We still follow the same rules of our craft, even though doing so much work by hand may seem a little eccentric these days. And we still keep our shop small, because that's the best way to assure high standards. (We have only 325 workers. Many of these craftsmen have never worked anywhere else).

When all the patterns begin to look alike, stop and think about what we've just told you. Then start choosing again. Perhaps you'll begin to see the difference.

For color folders showing these and other Towle patterns, write Towle Silversmiths, Dept. H4, Newburyport, Mass.

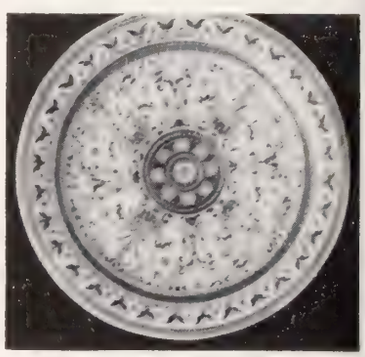
BUST OF LINCOLN

I am enclosing a picture of a life-size bust of Lincoln which I own. I know it was done by L. W. Volk, who also made a bust of Stephen Douglas. The bust is signed, but has no date. Could you add to my information?



S.D.—Lima, Ohio

The American sculptor, Leonard Wells Volk (1828-1895) was born in Wellstown, N. Y. Stephen Douglas was his wife's cousin and helped him to study sculpture in Rome. Volk's studio was in Chicago, and he made the portraits of Lincoln and Douglas during the debates of 1858.

My daughter-in-law received this German plate as a wedding present. Can you tell its age from the marks?

H.F.G.—Houston, Tex.

GERMAN PLATE

Your plate was made by the German firm of Villeroy and Boch, and the mark shows it was produced at Mettlach shortly after 1841, the year the firm was founded. Jean Francois Boch had bought the Abbey of Mettlach in 1809 to use as a plant for manufacturing earthenware.

REGENCY MIRROR

Can you give me any information about this mirror? It is made of a light wood covered with gold leaf. The eagle and the lion's head are black.

J.W.T.—Columbia, Mo.

The round convex wall mirror, which was frequently designed with lateral candle arms, is believed to have originated in France and is identified with the French Empire style. But it was also fashionable in England during the Regency period, 1795-1820. Since your mirror is in the Regency style, it was probably made in England.

Flatter them outright with artistries in papers, both classic and modern.

Personal paper helps one express oneself. So, a gift of Crane stationery, reflecting one's tastes, is flattering indeed. Crane dealers have a wide selection (our designers have seen to that) ranging from "18th Century Greek Islands" shown above — to designs of decided simplicity — to beautifully blithe creations. Before you get frustrated by decision making, look at what's new and personal in our Christmas collections. What you spend can be paltry, from $1.25—to princely. For sure, no one but a Crane dealer can make our famous watermark part of your salutation and good wishes. And paper that is 100% rag is both luxurious and rare. You know it's superb (and so does everyone) by the look, the feel, the name on the Christmas boxes. Crane & Co., Dalton, Mass.

Chickering does everything a concert piano does only it does it at home.

Home is where Chickering is most often seen. That's because we've designed our largest grand a full 3½ feet shorter than a concert piano, so it fits perfectly in your living room.

And because home is where Chickering is most often heard, we've tuned its volume to home proportions. But the richness of tone and sensitivity of response are worthy of the Philharmonic. That's what you'd expect from America's oldest piano maker.

Of course, Chickering doesn't make the only grands and consoles for the home. But we do make the finest, and music lovers the world over agree. As for appearance, we're highly fashion conscious. You enjoy a choice of twenty different console and grand styles and finishes.

Write for a full-color brochure or visit your local fine piano dealer. Bring home a Chickering that's where it belongs.

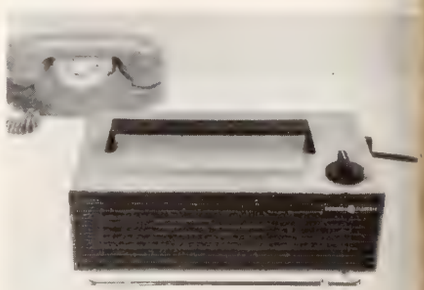
THE NEW GENERATION OF HEATERS

Compact, light, and surprisingly good-looking, the newest space heaters give comfort in the cold without making you settle for the drabness and clumsiness of their ancestors. Designed to warm areas ranging from desk corners to whole rooms, the heaters are wonderful for country weekend houses with slow-starting heating systems, or for quick morning warmth in the bedrooms of fresh-air fiends. Most have automatic thermostats, and the floor models will turn themselves off if tipped over.

Desk-top heater with a brawny mite of a blower that adds a rush of warmth or circulates air. Two heat settings: 1,000 or 1,500 watts. 12 inches long. General Electric, $29.98.



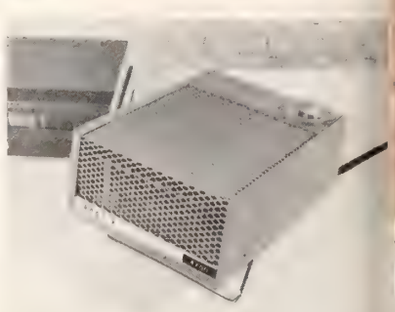


Table-top heater that can snug one corner or a whole room of a summer house off season. Or, on sticky summer days, two fan speeds can cool things off. Only 10½ inches long, with three heat settings: 375, 750, or 1,450 watts. Travels anywhere. Braun, $29.95.

Wall-hangable heater having a cylinder with twenty-six fins that spin out heat with nary a whisper or draft. Can also be set in various positions on a horizontal surface. 11 inches long; 1,500 watts. Hanovia, $29.95.

Wood-tone panel that radiates just enough warmth to keep you toasty in the company of fresh-air fiends. Press-on brackets hold it to the "modesty panel" of a desk; or you can lay it on the floor beneath your toes. 20 by 12 inches; 200 watts. 3M Company, $24.95.

THE FANTASTIC WORLD OF WAGNER

How you can explore it without having to stand in line for tickets

BY RONALD GIBSON

The hardest tickets to come by in New York this season will be those for the new Metropolitan Opera production of Wagner's Die Walküre, which will open November 21 and be repeated intermittently until March 4. Several ingredients have combined to create this surge of excitement: the prestigious Austrian conductor Herbert von Karajan, who makes his Met debut in the new production; the controversial sets, brought to New York intact from the Salzburg Festival; the glamour-laden cast of singers. But basic to it all is the commanding presence of Richard Wagner, whose music dramas continue to attract capacity audiences, more devoted and voracious today than ever.

If you can manage to get in to a Wagner performance at the Metropolitan this winter, well and good. But if you can't, don't despair. Listening to Wagner at home in up-to-date stereo is superior in many respects to anything you will experience in the opera house. Even veteran opera buffs will concede that the fantastic world of Wagnerian music drama, with its gods and heroes, its rainbow bridges and fire-encircled rocks, is better envisioned in the mind's eye than counterfeited in the theatre.

The most cunningly executed stage settings cannot compare to the scenes we can visualize under the stimulating influence of Wagner's music. And only rarely do sopranos and tenors with the requisite Wagnerian lung power come close to resembling the sinewy men and svelte women depicted in the librettos. Generally speaking, when it comes to Wagner in the opera house, seeing is not believing. You can, of course, always shut your eyes. But in that case, why go to the opera house at all? Now that the full thrust and breadth of Wagner can be captured on records, the armchair listener is in a position to savor this music at its very best.

The Valkyries on discs

Today there is a wide range of complete performances on records from which to choose. For example, a production of Die Walküre very similar to the one that is selling out at the Metropolitan can also be heard in splendid stereo. Karajan conducts this new Deutsche Grammophon recording, and the cast is equal in quality to that appearing at the Met. In the Met production and on the records Jon Vickers and Gundula Janowitz are the lovers, Siegmund and Sieglinde; on the recording Thomas Stewart sings Wotan and Josephine Veasey and Martti Talvela are heard in the roles of Fricka and Hunding. The major change in casting is the Brünnhilde—Birgit Nilsson at the Met, Régine Crespin on the discs.

In the recording, Karajan emphasizes the luscious opulence of Wagner's music. The Berlin Philharmonic's strings glow with warm intensity and the brasses represent the last word in burnished splendor. Against this dark, softly cushioned orchestral background, the cast gives a performance of unconventionally intimate proportions. Every word comes across with pointed immediacy, so that the drama seems less epical and grandiose than we have been led to expect. This is especially so in the case of Siegmund and Sieglinde, who for once really sound youthful and rapturous as they rush off into the moonlit night.

The Ring in toto

During the next three years Karajan will record for Deutsche Grammophon and produce at the Met the three other operas that comprise Wagner's "Ring" cycle—Das Rheingold, Siegfried, and Götterdämmerung. If you start with Die Walküre now, you will be able to acquire and assimilate the complete cycle in easy stages. But if you are badly bitten by the Wagner bug and can't wait that long, there is a complete recording of the four operas made by London Records, and a singularly impressive achievement it is: four albums, containing a total of nineteen discs, each one a trailblazer in the field of operatic recording.

Das Rheingold, which started off the series in 1958, set a new standard for recorded opera by demonstrating how stereo techniques could be used to make a music drama "move" by means of sound alone. It remains one of the most successful staged-for-stereo productions in the catalogue. Not only are the singers deployed back and forth across the invisible stereo stage, but all sorts of ingenious sound effects and electronic tricks are used to vivify the action. The passage of Wotan and Loge through the anvil-hammering din of the Nibelungens' cavern, the heaven-splitting thunder and lightning that dissolve the mists around Valhalla, the distant chant of the Rhine maidens—all come across with brilliant, image-filling realism. Rheingold and the three succeeding albums in the London recording of the "Ring" are truly spectacular stereo productions.

The Hungarian conductor Georg Solti is in charge of these performances throughout. He leads the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra and a dazzling constellation of star singers—including Birgit Nilsson, Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, Kirsten Flagstad, Joan Sutherland (who has a bit part in Siegfried), and the veteran bass Hans Hotter. Solti's approach is more abrasive and sharply etched than Karajan's, and the singers adhere more closely to the traditionally heroic manner of interpreting Wagner. To recommend one conductor over the other would be foolhardy when both have so much to recommend them. Some people will prefer Karajan's silken suavity, some will favor Solti's jabbing sparkle—and some won't be content until they have both of these recordings in their collection.

The greatest Isolde

A similar embarrassment of riches greets the Wagnerite in search of a recorded Tristan und Isolde. For many years the choice was easy. Toward the end of her career, Kirsten Flagstad sang in a complete recording for Angel Records that seemed virtually unimprovable. Not only did it have the great Norwegian soprano in thrillingly splendid voice (even in her late fifties Flagstad could outsing colleagues half her age), but it was directed by the most esteemed Wagnerian conductor of recent history, the late Wilhelm Furtwängler. Although the other participants in this recorded Tristan were not quite so noteworthy, they were at the very least entirely adequate, and the performance reached heights of passion and sustained power rarely encountered, either on stage or records.

Recently the supremacy of this recording has been challenged by a newer version of Tristan recorded on the stage of the Bayreuth Festspielhaus. The Isolde of this one is Birgit Nilsson and Karl Böhm is in the pit—both estimable musicians, if not, in my opinion, quite the equal of Flagstad and Furtwängler. But to help tip the scales in its favor, the new Deutsche Grammophon production has a more persuasive singer in the role of Tristan (Wolfgang Windgassen) and far more up-to-date engineering. Although the sound of the monaural Angel set was good for its time, it begins to seem dim and lusterless when compared to the striking stereo spread of the newer recording. Take your choice: a unique performance of Tristan in dated sound or a better-than-average performance in superb stereo. The dedicated Wagnerite will probably want to have both.

Fortunately, there is less need for equivocation when it comes to Parsifal, Wagner's last—and some say his greatest—music drama. From the standpoint of both interpretation and engineering, the album to have is the Philips set, recorded from the Bayreuth stage in 1962 with conductor Hans Knappertsbusch in charge. True, some of the singing is less than ideal, but the performance as a whole wonderfully conveys the mystical eloquence of this score, and the stereo microphones manage to capture the special quality of Bayreuth's acoustics.

The best is yet to come

In the case of Lohengrin and Die Meistersinger, the best advice for the armchair listener is to wait. (Lohengrin will also be performed at the Met this year, as will Der Fliegende Holländer.) None of the currently available recordings can be recommended with unqualified enthusiasm. There is marvelous orchestral playing by the Boston Symphony and fine engineering in the RCA Victor recording of Lohengrin, but the singing is mediocre. Conversely, there is some wonderful singing in the Richmond set of Die Meistersinger (most particularly the incomparable Paul Schoeffler as Hans Sachs), but the 1950-vintage monaural sound can't begin to do justice to the richness of Wagner's instrumentation.

These gaps in the Wagner discography will undoubtedly be filled before too long. Meanwhile, the armchair Wagnerite already has plenty of good material to keep him happy. He can forget about those "Sold Out" signs at the Met and revel in the intoxication of this music as it fills the living room with swirling sound and the mind's eye with the fabulous creations of Wagner's imagination.

BEST WAY TO KEEP FROM MISSING NEW BOOKS YOU WANT TO READ

MEMBERSHIP in the Book-of-the-Month Club is a certain way to keep from miss-, through oversight or overbusyness, the v books you fully intend to read. You will on the average 20% less for those books want than you otherwise would. You will e a wide choice—more than 200 books a ar; and under the Club's new Book-Divi- nd system you will be acquiring useful and autiful volumes—as well as fine library sets for trifling sums.

HOW CAN IT BE DONE? The ub's Book-Dividend system is comparable the traditional profit-sharing systems of nsumer cooperatives. A portion of the ount members pay for the books they buy is accumulated and invested in entire editions of valuable books and sets through special contractual arrangements with the publishers. These are the Club's Book-Dividends.

✶ YOU HAVE A WIDE CHOICE OF BOOK-DIVIDENDS • The system is simple. If you continue after this experimental membership, for every Club Selection or Alternate you buy you will earn one Book-Dividend Credit. Each Credit, upon payment of a nominal sum, often only $1.00 or $1.50 —somewhat more for an unusually expensive volume—will entitle you to a Book-Dividend. More than a hundred different volumes are at present available, and others are constantly being added.

Would you spend 99¢ to bring your dishwasher up to date?

The latest deluxe-model dishwashers have a built-in rinse injector for Liquid Jet-Dry. It prevents spots. One 99¢ box of Solid Jet-Dry can bring your dishwasher right up to date. Solid Jet-Dry prevents spots, too. You see, spots are often caused by slow, uneven drying in the rinse and dry cycles. And changing your detergent can't help you. It contains a special drying agent that goes to work in the rinse cycle and helps dry your dishes so fast, so evenly, spots don't have a chance to form. Just hook Jet-Dry onto your dishwasher rack. Now your dishwasher is up to date! You get 3 bars of Solid Jet-Dry (up to 100 washings) for only 99¢. ...UMBIAN FIGURES ARE FROM THE FAMED KAHLÚA COLLECTION OF AUTHENTIC PRE-COLUMBIAN FIGURES.

'Twas the week before Christmas, and all through the place
Every creature was stirring at a furious pace.
Stockings were carefully hung side by side
In hopes that Kahlúa would be tucked inside.

There came from the kitchen
the continual clatter
Of the mixing of brownies
from Kahlúa batter.
Kahlúa was poured on roast turkey,
for basting,
And poured into small cordial glasses, for tasting.

Some whipped up bowls
of Kahlúa Parfait,
While others cracked eggs
for Kahlúa Souffle.
(All drank Kahlúa in coffee. Ole'!)

Yet this was but part of their holiday fixings, Kahlúa was used for their spirited mixings;
Kahlúa Sour!
Brave Bull on ice!
Then, after dinner,
Black Russians are nice!

They drank K&B
(that's Kahlúa and Brandy)
From Kahlúa Kups
(made of chocolate candy).
Celebrations continued
well into the night (With Kahlúa cocktails, that were, like, out of sight!)

'Till each one exclaimed with a cry of delight,
"Merry Christmas to all,
and to all a good night!"

"Bar Humbug!"

How to Reduce the Size of your Hips and Waistline

...if you are "over 30"

Relax-A-cizor does it for you while you rest!

How's your figure? If you are "over 30," chances are those lax unexercised muscles of your waistline, tummy, hips and thighs don't hold-you-in as well as they used to.

Know why? Because, as the years pass we just naturally get less exercise. Thus the muscles of your "natural girdle" lose some of their "hold-in-power" or "tone."

But, unlike the store-bought foundation that "stretches out of shape," there IS something you can do about "putting the shape back" in your natural girdle of muscles.

Sound like hard work? Not any more. Now—your beauty exercises can be done without any work at all! Relax-A-cizor tones your muscles with vigorous, concentrated exercise. Yet—this exercise doesn't require a whit of effort. You REST . . . read . . . watch TV . . . at home! Takes as little as 30 minutes a day!

Relax-A-cizor firms up that natural girdle . . . reduces size of hips, waistline, tummy and thighs while you take it easy!

There's no weight loss. Relax-A-cizor exercises and tones muscles . . . so its results do not cause or depend on loss of weight. It's not a vibrator, not a cumbersome bicycle or chair. There's no heat . . . no massage. Relax-A-cizor is delightfully different!

And here's why Relax-A-cizor works . . . for the woman who's "over 30": Many adult women lack good muscle tone because they don't get enough exercise. Relax-A-cizor gives effortless, concentrated exercise to such figure areas as hips, waistline, tummy and thighs. Regular use causes these areas to reduce in size measurably to the extent these muscles lack tone because of insufficient exercise. And the less the muscle tone the greater the degree of size reduction.

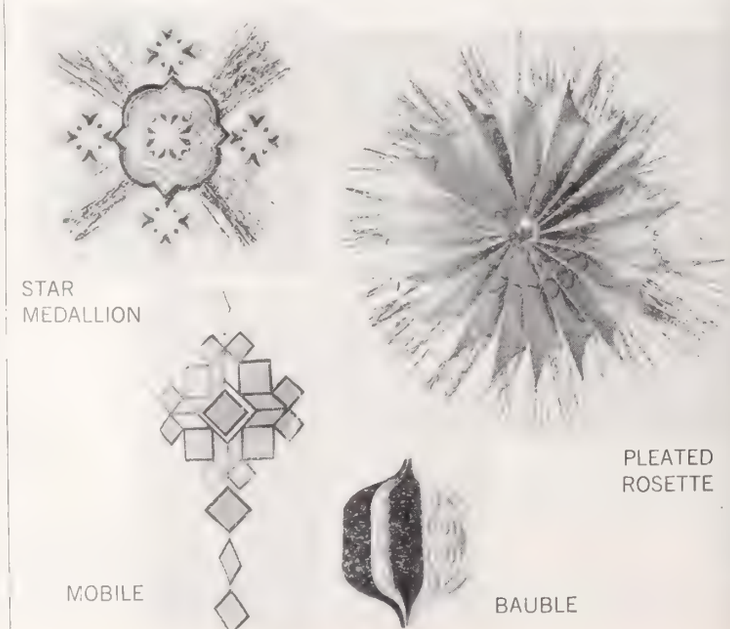
PAPER ORNAMENTS YOU CAN MAKE

with patterned gift wrappings to adorn your tree



Much of the fun of Christmas is creating decorations with your own hands. From some of this year's gift wrapping papers you can make dashing ornaments by cutting out the motifs and pleating them or stiffening them with cardboard, and finishing them with ribbons and beads. The ornaments below were designed especially for H&G with a sampling of Norcross gift papers and Festive Tie.

STAR MEDALLION (from "Golden Radiance" paper). Back one of the larger medallion motifs with cardboard and glue two 4½-inch pieces of ⅝-inch Festive Tie, crisscrossed, to the back. Fray the ribbons by removing the selvage threads on each side and unraveling the filler from the metallic warp. To each point of the medallion, glue one of the smaller medallion motifs, and paste a second set of medallions to the back of the ornament to hide the cardboard.

MOBILE (from "Stained Glass" paper). Cut out a 3¾-inch square of paper, taking as your center one of the yellow-and-purple 1-inch squares in the pattern, then trim to shape of ornament (see below). Back with cardboard, and cover reverse side with duplicate motif. Cut out ten ¾-inch squares to make five reversible cardboard-stiffened pendants. Wire one to top of ornament, and three to bottom. With a razor, cut out the yellow-and-purple center of the ornament, and hang the fifth pendant with a small piece of wire to the top of the opening.

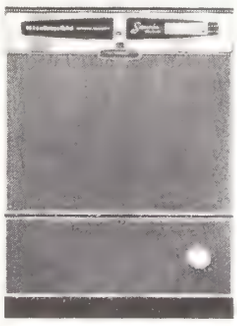
PLEATED ROSETTE (from "Castilian Red" paper). You start this with a 20-inch strip of the paper, 1¾ inches wide, which has points along one edge, following the scalloped line of the pattern. Using these points as a guide, accordion-fold the strip, join the ends, then form into a rosette. Glue pleated rosette to a 2½-inch disk of cardboard, and insert a bead at the center to hide cardboard. To the back of the cardboard, glue eight 4½-inch pieces of Festive Tie, crisscrossed, and fray the ends as in the star medallion, below.

BAUBLE (from "Rose Elegance" paper). Cut out in one piece six of the larger connecting motifs that resemble Christmas tree balls, plus an extra half-motif at each end. Starting at left, fold back the half-motif, then accordion-pleat the rest of the strip by folding at motif centers and joinings. Open folds and spread face down on table. Cover back of strip with rubber cement and press together each of the pleats. Press wire along the length of the spine and make a hanger loop. Fan out the folds.

he KitchenAid dishwasher flood control program.

It might happen to you.

You buy a dishwasher and one day it floods over.



There you are, stuck with a messy kitchen and a big repair bill.

But, if you buy a KitchenAid built-in dishwasher, the odds are about a million to one this just wouldn't happen.

You see, our dishwashers have a special twin fill valve. Not a single fill valve like most dishwashers have. And, like we said, the odds of our twin fill valve jamming open and letting the dishwasher flood over are about a million to one.

If you've ever had the bad luck of having a dishwasher flood over, you can understand why we're making such a big thing out of a little twin fill valve.

In fact, a KitchenAid is full of important little features because we believe in building dishwashers better in every way, so they work better and last longer.

So if you're looking for a dishwasher with better value, as well as a better valve, visit your KitchenAid dealer (check the Yellow Pages). Or write.

Notes for December gardeners

From condensation to Christmas trees and from wildflowers to windproofing

First week

:ons of condensation. Air :irculation can be just as impor- ant to the welfare of tools as it s to roses. And good air circula- ion is something that even more ool sheds than rose gardens lack. n the case of tools, the enemy is ust; in roses it is mildew, disease, r worse. Excess moisture, what- ver the cause, is the culprit. In he muggy days of summer, con- lensation is the simple result of oo much humidity, which, espe- ially when it is trapped in con- ined places or under moisture- roof coverings, simply settles on whatever is handy. If that sub- stance is a ferrous metal, rust en- sues. If it is brass or aluminum, esser oxidation can eventually ause pitting or deterioration of exposed surfaces. In winter, the problem is the same, except that cold air cannot hold as much moisture as warm air, therefore condensation occurs sooner and in greater volume. There is less risk of actual mildew, which is a summer fungus disease, but the fine brown film of rust you find on your tools come spring can be just as harmful in several ways. Among them, of course, are the dulling of tool edges, increased friction in tools whose effectiveness depends on smoothness, and the shortening of tool life.

The best answer to condensation—after the application of protective coatings (oil, for instance) —is ventilation of storage spaces. Open windows are fine, provided they don't admit worse elements than air. Prefabricated ventilating panels, of wood or metal, that may be inserted into holes cut in walls above lintels, or in gable-ends beneath pitched roofs, should make a considerable difference in the incidence of inside condensation, even though, for normal ventilation purposes, the results would be inadequate. Whatever device you may be able to buy at your local hardware store or supply yard, get it in a reasonable size—2 square feet or more for even a smallish closet. Make sure the panel is screened against wasps and caterpillars, and is stormproof.

Second week

Deck the hollies. Every year at about this time we stress the importance of protecting broadleaf evergreens from the low but surprisingly intense rays of winter sun and the scorching effects (not necessarily the coldness) of strong winds. And every year we suggest setting the boughs of scavenged Christmas trees among the branches of hollies and similar shrubs and small trees to provide such protection. Any evergreen branches will do, but the timeliness of Christmas and the presumed availability of free trees justify the recommendation. But beware: by the time you lay your hands on abandoned trees you find the ground frozen too hard for pushing the lopped off branches into position. (The same should be borne in mind in connection with any stakes to be driven into the ground to support protective screens or covers.) If the ground does freeze early and permanently before Christmas, however, do not despair. Simply tie your Christmas greens amid the foliage of the vulnerable plant, overlapping and spiral-wrapping them to any height desired.

While we are on the subject of winter sun and windburn, bear in mind that the often invaluable wilt-proofing (anti-desiccant) compounds often weather even more unfortunately than the foliage they protect. The wilt-proofing spray tends to decompose in sun and wind and will not last the

There are some people around who want to spoil woman's greatest indoor sport.

Shopping

It's hard to believe, but there are some fairly influential people around today who think the government ought to do your shopping for you.

It seems they think you're overwhelmed by all those different brands of soap . . . and all those cake mixes like Pineapple Supreme, Swiss Chocolate and Angel Food. Or, maybe just not bright enough to make up your mind.

So, they want the government to restrict the number of brands on the supermarket shelf . . . and standardize their contents under grade labels . . . Grade A, Grade B and so on. They figure that would make shopping easier for you.

Of course, if all that happens, you may never make something like Black Forest Torte or Venetian Roll.

Because what manufacturer is going to knock himself out to create new and better products if he can't use them to compete with? Restrictions don't stimulate competition. They tend to make all products the same. And that's not the way this country got prosperous.

winter. There is little point in doing a protection job that is only 50 per cent effective. So spray at least twice—once this month, on a day when the temperature can be expected to remain above 40 degrees for twenty-four hours, and again someday in late February when you have the same prospects for mild weather.

Third week

More wildflowers. The New York Botanical Garden, in conjunction with the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, and with the help of private investors, has now published the second volume of its series on the Wildflowers of the United States. This two-section volume covers the Southeast. The first volume, published last winter, covered the herbaceous plants of the northeastern U.S. and costs $39.50. The new work contains more plants and pages and sells for $44.50. A good deal of the extra content has to do with plants native to areas where the two regions adjoin. The repetition of text and identical color plates from the first volume, which may at first seem unnecessary, is probably justified by the assumption—in part suggested by the cost of the volumes—that many prospective purchasers will buy only the book covering the area of their special interest. And if a plant will grow in their region, no matter where else it may be found, they will want it in the volume they buy.

This project remains stupendous and unique, offering as it does a photograph, in color and usually in a proper habitat, of virtually every one of the enormous number of plants described. Only herbaceous plants of general interest to gardeners and nature lovers are covered—no woody plants, for example, no mosses, no fungi—but far from diminishing the scope of the effort, that limitation only emphasizes its importance. The great virtues of the first volume remain: the clarity of Dr. Harold Rickett's text, the organization of the plants by families, the quality of both typography and color reproductions. The disadvantages of the first volume also remain: the fact that there is no cross-reference by page or plate number from text to pictures (they were produced in different countries, assembled here for binding); that no real sense of scale or size is provided (one photograph on a page represents, perhaps, a blossom 3 inches in diameter on a plant 2 feet high, and another photograph, of about the same size, depicts a plant 2 inches high with a score of florets each as big as the head of a mapping pin). Both of these deficiencies could be remedied in later volumes, and we hope they will be, even if it is necessary for the sponsors and publishers to maintain a slightly slower production schedule. Because this work, while botanically precise and surely of a quality to hold the respect of professionals, is actually intended for amateurs, it should be so designed that it will be of the greatest possible use to them. But the fact that the second volume, like the first, is such a delight to see and peruse is reason enough for stretching the budget to buy it.

Fourth week

Lean-to wind frame. Other plants than broadleaf evergreens may also need special winter safeguards. In addition to protection against an excess of sun (admittedly the most important single hazard of the cold season in the North Temperate Zones), they will need protection against pelting rain, sleet, heavy wet snow (all capable of forming ice around plant crowns and on plant leaves and branches), as well as against blustery winds. Some gardeners go to the trouble of erecting the same kind of burlap-on-frame screens that are used to protect prize boxwoods, hollies, and rhododendrons. But there are simpler expedients where a number of plants are grouped together or where a variety of plants, both shrubby and herbaceous, can be included in a single bed for winter care before going to more permanent positions the following spring. Among the best of these is the two-sided corral, with roof, that gives protection from the prevailing winds (say north and west, or north and east, in the North Temperate Zone) and from storms of any kind. You can make this corral with the assistance of the ever helpful snow fence. The fencing alone will provide protection at the sides. Fencing supported by a framework of one-by-two's and topped by cheesecloth or tobacco cloth (the type used to shade tobacco fields in summer) will break the force of rain, but permit the descent of moisture, and will cut down the impact of heavy snows, but allow fine dry snow to sift through.

BOOKWORM'S BOUTIQUE

A selection of lavish and provocative new books that offer a happy solution to the yearly problem of what to give the tough ones on your list

The Blockbusters

Every year, in time for Christmas, the major publishing houses present a selection of very special books that usually have several points in common: they are large in format ("coffee-table" tomes) and generally esoteric in subject matter. They are handsomely illustrated, usually with a large number of plates in exquisite color. The printing and reproduction are meticulous. They tend to be more for browsing than reading, although the text is often very erudite. And they are expensive! In short, these are books that make wonderful presents, delightful to receive, but you probably would think twice about buying one of them for yourself.

Here is a brief selection of these Christmas blockbusters that we think would be of special interest to H&G readers:

Picasso: The Blue and Rose Periods by Pierre Daix and Georges Boudaille. (New York Graphic Society, pre-Christmas, $29.95; $35 thereafter.) A complete survey of the master's work during the periods that may be his most popular and are certainly his most romantic. Sixty-one full-color pages plus black-and-white reproductions of every painting done during this period with a detailed history of each.

Architecture and Sculpture in Early Britain: Celtic, Saxon, Norman by Robert Stoll, photographs by Jean Roubier. (Viking Press, $18.50.) The best of British Romanesque architecture which flourished between the eleventh and thirteenth centuries.

Graphic History of Architecture by John Mansbridge. (Viking Press, $9.95.) Drawings covering the whole of western architecture from ancient Greece to present-day buildings—along with ground plans and architectural details.

The Essential Japanese House. Photographs by Yukio Futagawa, text, Teiji Itoh. (Harper & Row, $25.) A feast of superb photographs, the book surveys pre-1860 Japanese houses, all singularly beautiful.

The Masters' Book of Ikèbana edited by Donald Richie & Meredith Weatherby. (Published in Japan, distributed by N. Y. Graphic Society, $32.50.) Subtitled "Background and Principles of Japanese Flower Arrangement," this is an authoritative—and extremely beautiful—guide. Most of the book is devoted to the history and development of Ikèbana, but the final chapters present the masters of the three great schools of floral arrangement and give instructions for reproducing their work. Our choice for the blockbuster of the year!

The Finest Rooms in France by the editors of our French cousin, Maison et Jardin. (Viking Press, $27.50.) Just what the title says it is. Chosen and illustrated with exquisite taste.

The World of Children. (Published by Paul Hamlyn, London, distributed by N. Y. Graphic Society. $25.) The work of over 100 distinguished photographers, in color and black and white, plus perceptive essays by ten outstanding authors—all dealing with the development and fabulous world of children.

American Furniture: Queen Anne and Chippendale Periods. 1725–1788, by Joseph Downs. (Viking Press, $25.) A new edition of the 1952 book on the furniture collection at Winterthur. Precise descriptions and detailed photographs of each piece; color photographs showing some of the furniture in room settings.

Food and Drink

It is an old truism that too many cooks are disastrous: it is also a truism that it is impossible to have too many cook books. So each year's batch makes most welcome gifts or additions to your own culinary library. Among the recent cook books of more than passing interest are:

Michael Field's Culinary Classics and Improvisations (Knopf, $6.95). To say that Mr. Field, noted for his cooking classes, deals with the subject of leftovers gives little indication of the scope and inventiveness of this book. In each case, he starts with his culinary classic, whether fish, fowl, or meat, then spins off up to a dozen delicious sequels—a salmon-filled roulade, turkey Tetrazzini, a pâté of pot roast.

House & Garden's New Cook Book (Simon and Schuster, $9.95 prepublication; $12.50 thereafter). Culled from the pages of H&G, over 1,000 recipes by some of the greatest culinary authorities of our day—Julia Child, Dione Lucas, Craig Claiborne, James Beard, and others. Lavishly illustrated, easy to follow, the recipes run the

WHAT'S NEW for living

Music on the move. A mini jukebox that weighs under 30 pounds and record players that can be picked up with one finger have made recorded music as portable as broadcast music. Half the fun of the mini Multiplayer is pressing the buttons alongside the index to choose from the fifty selections you have pre-programmed. No coin slot, no throbbing lights. But this 8-inch-tall import from Norway can fit on a bookshelf or be carried from bedroom to den or off to a party. New from Philco-Ford are Hip Pocket Records—tiny, 3⅞-inch, wafer-thin, 45 rpm discs that you can also take with you along with a portable radio phonograph weighing less than 2 pounds.

Look, no pans! The same heat-in-the-bag convenience introduced a few years ago by major frozen-food companies can now be added to food frozen at home. A new packaging set, Scotchpak, includes an electric sealer and airtight plastic pouches that make it a snap to freeze, store, and serve single portions or a quart-and-a-half of your best beef bourguignonne. Leakproof when sealed, the flexible packages are easier to store than rigid containers, and there is no defrosting. Just plop the pouch in boiling water, heat, and empty contents directly onto plate.

A warming place. A new gadget, the Hot Seat, promises to keep you toasty warm during the frosty minutes before the car heats up on chilly mornings. It is made of a reflecting fabric that bounces back your own body heat. If your family are thermostat jigglers, a Hot Seat might come in handy for the house, but expect its occasional disappearance, if a stadium goer is around.

Cheers for a chair. Show-stopper of the current design exhibit at New York's Museum of Modern Art is a chair of poured brown urethane foam donated by its designer, Gunnar Andersen. A far cry from the Eames chair, which in all its crisp simplicity starred in the Museum's 1946 design show, this newest experiment looks like a child's dream of, finally, enough chocolate frosting. It was chosen for the museum's permanent collection because it represents an important technological breakthrough—the first solid, sit-able plastic chair not made from a mold. Admirers think of it as soft sculpture, in which, incidentally, one can sit.

Kitchen accent. The most practical, no-nonsense kitchen can now be given a softly textured look without lowering its efficiency a whit. Kitchen-cabinet fronts are being produced in a nonshiny plastic laminate with a raised grillework pattern that catches changing patterns of light, yet does not protrude enough to be a dirt catcher.

Pot luck. Chafing-dish cookery might well qualify as a spectator sport, since the audience inevitably senses that keeping the flame constant is a cliff-hanger for the chef. But Ronson's new butane-fueled table cooker beats the game by dint of an adjustable heat-control gauge in its handle. You can use any pan on the burner and cook in any way you would on a range top. Once fueled, the burner cooks or warms for thirteen hours, loves to travel—say to keep soup hot by the skating rink.

CHARMING TRADITION: THE CHRISTMAS SPOON

Every year since 1910, a famous firm of Danish silversmiths have been making what they call their "Christmas Spoon"—a dessert spoon designed by a well-known artist, sculptor, or architect. Hand-crafted of richly enameled, gold-plated sterling silver, each spoon is a collector's joy, and—with or without its matching fork—a superlative gift.

"Christmas Rose" was designed in 1929 by Ebba Holm. The motif, which is executed in white enamel, is the artist's concept of that curious, delicate flower known to botanists as Helleborus niger—to laymen as Christmas-rose. $33.

"Splendor of Yule," the 1967 spoon, was created by Paul René Gauguin (a descendant of the great painter), who chose gold enamel for his sunburst and pine-bough handle. $18.50.

MIEHLMANN

"Birds in the Christmas Sheaf," designed by Palle Suenson in 1937, has a pierced handle with three enameled bluebirds winging through the filaments of a tiny golden spike of wheat. $29.

"Madonna and Child," designed by Carl R. Frederiksen in 1962, is very contemporary, very abstract, with the handle cut to suggest the outlines of the figures. The colored sections are enameled in two blues—one pale, one richly dark. $22.

"Mistletoe," the 1941 spoon and the work of Ole Hagen, is perhaps the most sculptured in the collection. The entire handle is formed of clustered leaves accented by white enamel berries. $27.

"Snow Flowers," designed in 1956 by Jorgen Michelsen, is a little tribute to the snowdrop. The spoon's handle is a solid sheaf of white-enameled flowers, interlaced like pearls. $22.

"Snowflake" is a Worcester Silver import, made in the Danish tradition and created by a Dane—Carsten Frolich—whose motif is a repoussé golden snowflake breaking through a background of pure white enamel. $18.50.

THE DANISH SPOONS, ALL BY A. MICHELSEN OF COPENHAGEN, ARE AVAILABLE AT DANISH SILVERSMITHS INC. THE WORCESTER SILVER SPOON IS IMPORTED BY ROYAL WORCESTER PORCELAIN AND AVAILABLE AT SHREVE, CRUMP & LOW. FOR STORE ADDRESSES SEE PAGE 183

It's the best... It's the most...

of House & Garden recipes by such famous authorities as James Beard, Julia Child, Craig Claiborne, Dione Lucas, June Platt, Elaine Ross, Myra Waldo and many more.

It's House & Garden's New Cook Book

a superb, 404-page selection of over 1,000 recipes from House & Garden printed for the first time in book form. You'll find recipes for everything from hors d'oeuvres to desserts with pages of invaluable information on cooking processes, techniques and equipment, and over 375 illustrations, many in full color. There are more detailed drawings of cooking techniques in House & Garden's New Cook Book than you can find in any other gourmet cook book ever published. You will see exactly how our experts make a dobos torte, lard a roast of meat, bone a trout, flute a mushroom, make quenelles de brochet. Follow them, and it's a snap.

In HOUSE & GARDEN'S NEW COOK BOOK you will find the recipe you may have loved and lost, like Mrs. John Beckley of Scottsdale, Arizona, who wrote:

"Your magazine published an article on Swiss fondue and unfortunately I can't find my copy. Would it be possible to buy a reprint?" Often we had to reply regretfully that the recipes requested were out of print. Now they are in print again, all handsomely bound in a lavishly illustrated book and fully indexed so you can put your finger on the one you want in seconds.

Here are some of the recipes, each one a culinary tour de force that will make your reputation as a cook: Beef Wellington with Périgueux Sauce. Lobster Strudel with Béarnaise Sauce. Oyster Rockefeller à la Franey. Roast Turkey Woburn Abbey. Baked Lobster Fire Island Style. Breadfruit Vichyssoise. Miniature Shrimp Quiche. Rolled Chicken Pâté. Crêpes Directoire. Soufflé Orientale.

And it is all yours for a free two-weeks trial by filling in the coupon below.

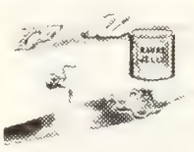
NAVAL JELLY

DISSOLVES RUST FROM IRON & STEEL

ALSO REMOVES RUST STAINS FROM CONCRETE

NAVAL JELLY ADHERES EVEN TO CEILINGS!

NAVAL JELLY is a tacky gel . . . just right to keep it in position on vertical or overhead surfaces. It will not stiffen or evaporate in tropical heat or arctic cold. It will not flow away.



BRUSH IT ON. Let stand a few minutes or several hours depending upon the depth of the rust. HOSE OFF WITH FRESH WATER. After all of the Naval Jelly and rust is gone, the dry surface will contain a rust inhibitor, a thin clean film. This will prevent further rusting and may be painted over.

CONSUMES 47 TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN RUST

Use Naval Jelly on
- Pipes • Boilers • Scaffolding
- Gutters • Tools • Fence
- Autos • Tractors • Ship
- Guard Rails • Stainless Steel
- Water Tanks
- Chemical Equipment
- Lift • Cranes • Screen
- Concrete Forms • Fire Escapes

REMOVE RUST STAINS FROM
- Concrete • Terrazzo • Tile
- Stone • Vinyl Tile • Linoleum

TAKE RUST STAINS OUT OF CLOTHING

NO ACID FUMES

Naval Jelly contains no muriatic acid. It is fumeless, harmless, safe to use. It dissolves rust, mill scale . . . even oil and dirt. It does not attack the metal . . . but leaves a clean rust-inhibited surface and improves bonding properties of paint if painting is desired after rust removal. Because Naval Jelly is safe to use, it is ideal to store non-flammable, non-fuming, non-explosive. It is quickly soluble in either cold or hot water, has a pleasing odor.

COVERAGE. Naval Jelly will remove rust at the rate of 80 to 200 square feet per gallon, depending upon the thickness and condition of the rust.

VIRGINIA HAM AGED LIKE VINTAGE WINE

Christmas Tradition for 300 Years!

Smoked for weeks over hand tended fires, kept going day and night, while juices drip and pungent hickory smoke flavors the meat. Aged a year, then baked with wine and sugar. Arrives ready to serve (doesn't even need heating), for Christmas feast, buffet, cocktails, sandwiches, etc. Traditionally sliced paper thin and served cold; goes a long way; easy to keep; a delight to any homemaker during busy holidays.

300 years ago Virginia planters traded their hams to English sailing masters. Soon the old world's epicures were agog over this new flavor. Virginia Ham became famous around the world. It still is. Each magnificent ham now hanging in our aging rooms has been slowly cured, smoked to a rich mahogany hue, and aged the way the colonists did it 300 years ago. For there is no short cut to such flavor. Just before shipment each ham is soaked, simmered, skinned, the fat trimmed, then sauced with wine and sugar, and baked to a sweet and savory feast of flavor unlike any other!

Nested in burgundy tissue in sturdy Old Virginia Smokehouse box, with carving, keeping, serving suggestions enclosed, here is a grand treat for your family and guests and a magnificent gift! Our hams are prepared to please discerning people. We guarantee complete satisfaction or money refunded. $1.98 per lb., net cooked weight plus postage. Sizes 8 to 15 lbs. Please specify if wanted now, for Christmas, or other date.

32 individually hand-carved Ming Dynasty pieces

SOLID IVORY CHESS SET

with fine inlaid teak chest & playing board

The art of carving ivory is exacting, and for good reason. Elephant tusks are obviously limited in supply, and expensive. The more intricate the work, the more skilled the craftsmen. That is the case here, you have 32 intricate, individually hand-carved pieces. Each is a little jewel—the Kings (stand a full 3") and Queens are Ming Dynasty and appropriately clothed. The Bishops are Chinese scholars, the Knights are 17th century warriors, and the Castles are war elephants. The 8 pawns, each different, are the 8 Chinese immortals, legendary beings that represent these conditions in life—Wealth, Poverty, Aristocracy, Plebianism, Age, Youth, Masculinity and Femininity. A superior set, pure ivory, in lined teak playing-board chest (14 x 7 x 3"). In time, as the ivory takes on the glow of age, it will become an heirloom. $30 ppd.

now, bed-wetting can be stopped... naturally!

100% GUARANTEED TO WORK OR MONEY BACK.

Now there is a simple, pleasant solution to the problem of enuresis (bed wetting), with its resultant emotional upsets and embarrassments, possible psychological damage. It is SENTRY DRY, the result of years of research and experimentation, and based on the scientifically proven theory of conditioned response. It has been tremendously successful in England and has won acclaim from doctors in the U.S.A.

100% safe, completely shockproof, utilizes sound and light to teach natural control in amazingly short time, sometimes even overnight: Basically SENTRY DRY is a bedtime system, and consists of a comfortable 18" x 12" pad placed under the sheet of the bed. Pad is powered by one ordinary flashlight battery and is as completely safe as common household heating pad or electric blanket, even when wet. At the first drop of liquid, aural buzzer sounds, awakening child. Subject soon associates the annoyance of being awakened with the wetting. Natural control of function follows rapidly.

Guaranteed 100% effective with children and adults alike, when used as directed, or your full purchase price will be refunded. which incidentally is not hundreds of dollars, but a most modest thirty dollars. No drugs are involved, no humiliating dependency on embarrassing punishments that separates as much as the child. Does not deprive child of important sleep, prevents hypertake. Gives child needed "social security" so that he may accompany friends on vacations . . . attend sleep-away camp without shame or fear of "accident."

Read what enthusiastic users have said about SENTRY-DRY: "Has worked exactly as instructed. Child was dry after very few nights." "Mr. W.W. L.I. 'Wonderful!'" Mrs. J.C., Scarsdale. "Sentry Dry cured 8 year old boy in just a week." Mrs. L.B., New York. SENTRY DRY, complete with sensor unit, sensor pad, program log-lamp and cassette hollow detailed Instruction Manual is $29.98 postpaid. Fostoria is the art of giving beautifully Giving beautifully is giving it in Fostoria glass. Flowers in a lovely Decorator Compote. Candles in handsome Sandwich Candlesticks, or fruit in Fostoria's reproduction of the Pressed Block Bowl. Both from the Henry Ford Museum Collection. This is the kind of giving that does credit to your reputation. That makes people want to open your gift first—or save till last. Because they know there's always something special and unusual inside. Your secret herb dressing in an American Cruet. Nuts in Fostoria's authentic reproduction of the Four-Petal Bowl, circa 1850 in the Henry Ford Museum. Even candy-store candy. Think how glamorous that becomes in a Coin Glass Wedding Bowl. Inspired, too. Because the Fostoria will be around a long time to remind someone of you. And isn't that just about the nicest thing any gift can do?

FOSTORIA GLASS COMPANY, Moundsville, West Virginia • Fostoria Gift Collection includes many decorator pieces and divine colors. At fine stores everywhere.

Tree of wonder, tree of light in its soaring radiance embraces age-old symbols—the star that shines in the east, the tree that is ever green, the light that never fails to return. At the same time it is a wondrous symbol of modern technology and a magical means of creating Christmas enchantment in your rooms or on your holiday tables. For the little box that sparks the glow, see page 193.

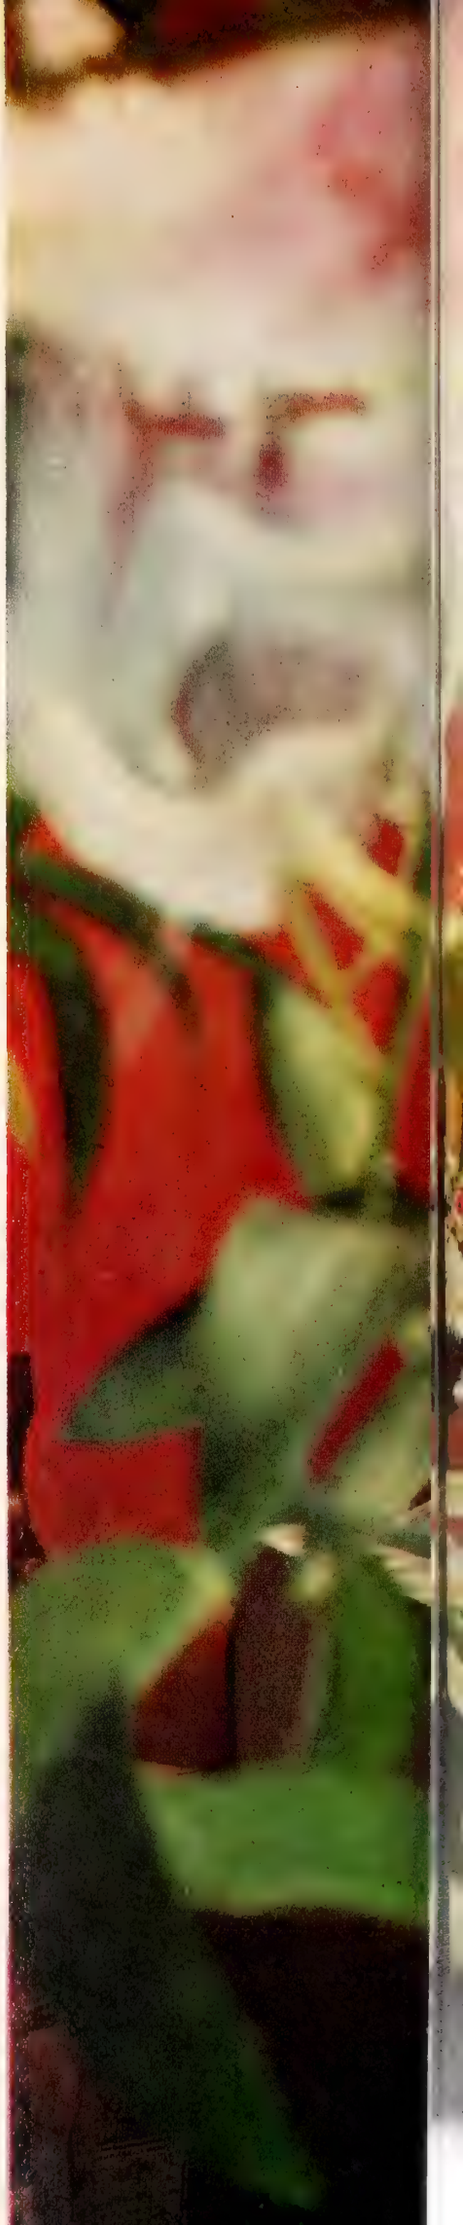
A door for Midas wears, instead of a wreath, a great jeweled ornament hung with a bow of silver lamé. The boxwood and hemlock garland that frames the door is twined unconventionally, refreshingly, with strings of crystal beads, silver ribbon, and velvet-covered rope.

Crystal and light

H&G's Christmas Decorations for 1967 are magnificent to look at, easy to put together yourself

Exotic as night-blooming cereus, six fabulous "light-up" bouquets bedeck a holiday tree so splendidly that no other ornaments are needed except connecting, necklace-like strands of crystal beads.
For shopping information, see page 187.



HORST

A cone of pure white light, seemingly made of snowflakes and spun sugar, might beam its welcome on a chest in a foyer, or in a window—like a twinkly good deed in a naughty world.

Crystal and light Continued

Fantasies in crystal and light, H&G's decorations for 1967 have all the look of loot from the Snow Queen's palace (see our cover for a prime example). They are also—for all their dazzle—beautiful hoaxes: with one exception, they are made of basic bits of glitter you can buy practically anywhere for a carol—plastic "jewels," ersatz silver, clusters of tiny Christmas lights—plus such mundane anchors as pipe cleaners and wooden dowels. Designed by Ellen Lehman McCluskey, who also created the settings, the decorations were executed by Edwin Schnittker, and follow tradition only in the fact that they adorn familiar spots in a house made gala for the holidays—the Christmas tree, the front door, the mantel, and the dining table. For a look at the materials you will need and the simple tricks of putting them together, see page 133.

Possibly the most regal mantel in town: twin bouquets (replicas of the sparkler on our cover), canopied with comets' tails of lights and silver beads hung from a brilliant bristle of finials—the kind that usually topknot a Christmas tree.

How to assemble H&G's Christmas decorations basic components of H&G's decorations are as familiar as pop- and cranberries, and a lot more fun to put together.

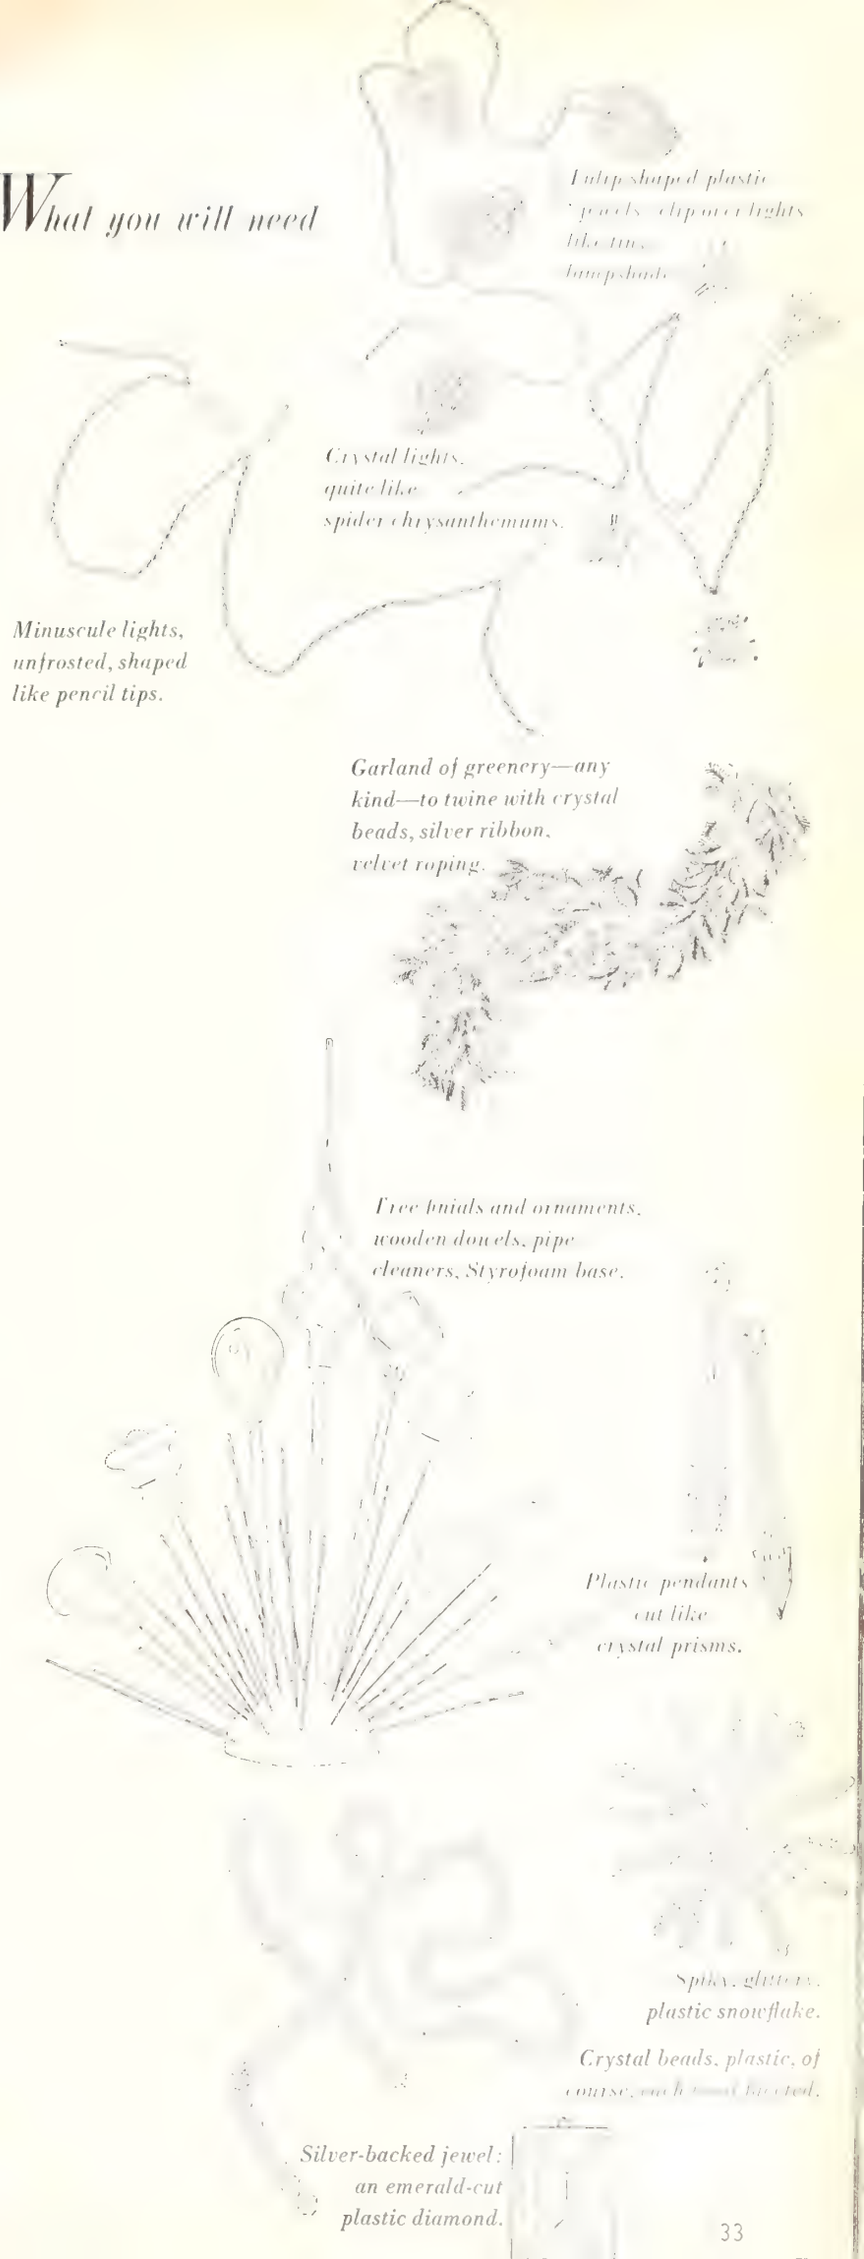
BOUQUET, whatever its size and use, is always made the same way. base is a half-sphere of Styrofoam (the stuff comes in all shapes sizes) which you will find at your florist or the ten-cent store. e it into a porcupine with thin wood dowels and pipe cleaners. d your lights around the base and through the dowels, then fill he chinks with crystal beads and little silver balls. Now slip tree ls and ornaments over the dowels, and fasten plastic snowflakes, els, and prisms to the pipe cleaners. If the bouquet is for a tree e the one on page 128), wire it to a branch, then strengthen the nch with nylon cord attached to the trunk. This prevents droop.

DOOR ORNAMENT (page 129) is made with a base of flat 1-inch- k Styrofoam cut with a sharp knife into any shape you fancy r model was an old-fashioned Christmas ornament), then paved dly with ornaments, jewels, and prisms. Just poke them bodily the Styrofoam or hook them in with wires. Top the ornament h a bow of silver lamé ribbon and hang it up.



GARLAND you can buy ready-made from your florist, or run up rself with your favorite greens. (We used the vinyl variety, which asy to handle and just as good next year as this.) Intertwine either e with strings of crystal beads, silver ribbon, velvet roping.

SNOWFLAKE TREE (page 130) is a 2-foot-high cone of Styrofoam nd with a spiral of lights (try to find lights with white cords), rally powdered with plastic snowflakes (you just stick them into Styrofoam), and accented with jewels, prisms, and a few silver ls. These have fasteners that hook over the snowflake spikes.

CHRISTMAS RADIANCE AT THE WHITE HOUSE

By Scottie Fitzgerald Smith

Magnificently clothed King of the East from the new group of antique crèche figures rides a horse instead of the more usual camel.

When I was a child in Texas," says Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, reminiscing about Christmas, "the great adventure was digging the pine tree out of a nearby pasture—I can still remember the piny smell. We used to use real candles for decorations then. It's a wonder we all survived."

Needless to say, the 20-foot-high blue spruce that adorns the White House Blue Room over the holidays is wholly electrified and thoroughly fireproof. But the tree is only one part of the White House Christmas decorations. Even more spectacular is the crèche set up in the East Room.

Last year's crèche consisted of a group of figures, designed in the modern vein, of draped, gilded burlap, that seemed to float against the magical background specially created for them by Stephen Barany, New York floral designer. On December 13 of this year, in the same spot, the newest White House acquisition will be unveiled—a crèche consisting of twenty-two eighteenth-century Neapolitan figures donated by Mrs. Charles Engelhard, in a setting created by Donald Oenslager, the famous stage designer.

For some time Mrs. Johnson had been hoping that the White House might acquire a permanent crèche that would be a work of art commensurate with other White House treasures.

"So I asked Jane Engelhard, who has helped with so many projects, what we could do about it. She did the most remarkable job of research, looking all over Europe for the perfect figures. She found our new ones in Naples, which seems fitting, since most great religious art comes from Italy."

Mrs. Charles Engelhard, a woman of great taste and perseverance, started by studying five books dealing with crèches. But she was still uncertain how to proceed when she happened to sit next to Thomas Hoving, now director of New York's Metropolitan Museum, at a dinner party.

"I knew he'd helped do over the Cloisters for the Rockefellers," she says, "so I begged him to help me, and he did. He set up appointments for me at the most important museums in Europe for this sort of thing, one in Munich, one in Naples, and two in Rome."

"I visited the museums in Munich and Rome, and I learned a lot, but I (Continued on page 192)

This year's crèche will be composed of the newest additions to the White House art treasures—eighteenth century figures from a famous collection in Naples. Holy Family is mounted on its own little platform; angel, RIGHT, will hang over scene.

GRIGSBY

Last year's crèche in the White House East Room was displayed in a marvelously gossamer-like structure of delicate textured wrought iron interwoven with laurel branches and tiny lights. The crèche was designed jointly by Mrs. Henry Parish and Albert Hadley.

A TALENT FOR CHRISTMAS

The Vincent Prices, whose favorite holidays are the twelve days of Christmas, live in a wonderfully individual house full of inventive idea

Recent [illegible] don't know about painting or food (or can't dig up [illegible])

Although Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Price have lived and worked in California for years, they rema transplanted New Yorkers, happy to be successful at their respective jobs—acting for him, costur designing for her. They are grateful to Hollywood, but they have never allowed its kudos to lead the up glamour's garden path. Instead, they live with style and humor in a wonderfully theatrical hous "Spanish, more or less" on the outside, pure Price within. Omnivorous collectors of practically e erything, they adore clutter and know exactly how to make it both delightful and, in an amusi way, outrageous. For Christmas, their favorite holiday, they bedeck their house with a fanta of lights and garlands and baubles, and sit amid it with their five-year-old daughter, Mary V forte singing one carol after another, happy as three Tiny Tims. Their sophistication, norma al a high order, goes right out the window and stays there until Twelfth Night. (Continue

PHOTOGRAPHS BY EC

Every Christmas the staircase gets a new necklace. This one is made of felt flowers that fold up like old-fashioned paper bells. "From Japan, wouldn't you know?" Crucifix is Mexican Colonial (Mr. Price is very fond of primitive religious art). Beside it, a self-portrait by Matisse.

The Prices' preoccupation with Christmas has deep roots. Mrs. Price was born in England, the daughter of an army officer who believed in Discipline—at home as well as in the barracks. The only time he allowed his children to kick up their heels was during the twelve days of Christmas. "That's why I'm such a child about it," says Mrs. Price. "To me, Christmas is an embrace, the warmer the better. And I love the spectacle of it all. Every year I buy one more gross of something for the tree. I don't know how I get it all on, but I do."

Mr. Price had the father of all fathers—a candy manufacturer who numbered among his friends Mr. Hershey, the chocolate czar. The little Prices didn't bother with mere sugarplums, they had life-size Santas and reindeer of solid chocolate—for as long as they lasted. "Quite understandably, we were very popular kids. It's a lovely feeling, and every Christmas, I resurrect it. Of course, chocolate won't get you very far with grown-ups, but champagne figures."

Christmas day at the Prices is a family affair. No guests, but gifts that don't stop. "Mary thinks that if a little is good, a lot is much better." On New Year's Eve, however, they pull out the stops and give their favorite dinner of the moment to their favorite friends—always the same fourteen people who have been coming for years, plus sometimes a new face or two. Then they dance all night. "It's my favorite kind of party," says Mrs. Price, "and I cook the dinner myself. I can't bear big routs; when we have to have them, we have a caterer. Otherwise, we entertain only when we feel like it, and for the only reason that counts—to give people pleasure. We both cook, but rarely in tandem. Two prima donnas in one kitchen can play hob with the broth." Two years ago, nonetheless, the prima donnas got together long enough to produce a cook book that gourmets keep under their pillows. (Continued)

The library is the Prices' sitting room. It has one fireplace that doesn't work, one—a Franklin stove—that does. Mrs. Price's favorite settee is a Georgian beauty from the Salvation Army. Helmeted bird was carved in the New Hebrides.

Moroccan room, a little hideaway, is shaded by a "Casbah Tinker Toy"—a wood curtain Mrs. Price had made of toy parts. Lady-with-palm came from the Admiralty Islands.

"Nothing in the world is so satisfying as learning to make something with your own hands, and to make it well. It doesn't matter what it is—a tile, a cake, a flower bed."

The Prices spend as much time in their kitchen as they can—which is not much. Inordinately busy people, they are as apt to have a hamburger on the run as Lobster Savannah at leisure. (They are probably the only people in the world who managed to wheedle the recipe for the latter lusciousness out of Boston's old Locke-Ober's.) They travel like twin Gullivers, spiraling the world, making films, buying pictures. Some they keep, some they sell, a few are quietly banished to limbo. "I must admit to having acquired a dog or two," says Mr. P.

As a rule, Mrs. Price leaves the choice of paintings to her husband. "He's an authority, and I'm not going to make any boo-boos." She loves kitchen curiosa—old molds, antique gadgets (as long as they work), copper pots and pans. Most of these she finds in France, and—like her Christmas tree—her kitchen always has room for another gross, arranged with the same care she would give to the ornamentation on a period costume. Such are the demands and rewards of expertise.

Home from their travels, the Prices rest for five minutes, then work. Besides writing a syndicated column on art for thirty newspapers, Mr. Price is Commissioner of Indian Arts and Crafts for the U.S. Department of the Interior. This takes a bit of fieldwork, but when he isn't digging for artifacts, he comes home to his own fields and grows cymbidiums the Burpees would envy.

Mrs. Price, in the meantime, has probably been making tiles. She has her own kiln, and a great deal of the flooring and wall-facing in the house came out of that hard-working little oven. She also has a daughter to nurture, amuse, and dress. "I don't know why, perhaps because Vin played Prince Albert for so long, but Vicky looks like a Victorian child, so I sometimes dress her like one. I loathe sewing, but for some perverse reason, I'm good at it. My mother always reminded me that it was a gift—like Mozart's, and 'remember, dear, they had to lock him in the attic to get any music out of him.' So I sew for Vicky—not all her clothes, but some." 3. In the pool house, a roving serving cart, always laden with Mexican glasses, fruit, an paper flowers from Guatemala
4. In Christmas finery (by Mr. Price's fine Italian hand), a wood and gesso cherub of the elegant school of Bernini.
5. Mr. Price's Staffordshire dogs, a gentle pack acquired i England while he was making a particularly fiendish film.
6. Typical Mary Price table setting: Delft china, a centerpiece of dried seed pods and "stuff," and always, her beautifully folded napkins
7. Embellishing the poolside façade of the pool house: butterfly tiles made by Fanny Brice's son, William.
8. On an altar from a Mexican Penitente church, a Pre-Columbian idol, dressed for Christmas, votive lights, a riot of Mexican paper flowers.
9. Another table setting: Imari china from Kyoto, and a centerpiece of Hawaiian anthuriums circled by folk art roosters from Puerto Rico.

"Collecting should be fun. If you can afford Renoirs, lovely—if not, there is a great deal to be said for China dogs and scrimshaw."

In Mr. Price's "non-art" book on art, I Like What I Know, he asks himself "Why, at my ripe age, do I find myself increasingly undogmatic in my taste? And why am I still learning?" Probably because he never stops going to school, never stops buying pictures, and is always willing to take a chance on a young artist whose work intrigues him. The Prices own some valuable paintings, which they love, and many that may be valuable some day. Whether they are or not is of no great moment. Everything in their house—from the Modiglianis to some funny little ashtrays that look like jewels and cost ten cents apiece—was chosen because it means something very special to them. They don't try to analyze why, they simply feel pleasure. And they can get pleasure from things that often dumbfound other people. In the garden is a 25-foot totem pole that once be[longed] to John Barrymore. When bug-eyed non-totemists say "A totem pole in your backyard, Mr. Price?" he says "Of course! Doesn't everyone have one?"

THE WRAPPING IS THE MAGIC...

... that transforms the simplest little object into a gift, a shining expression of your affection and joyous holiday wishes. To inspire you in this happy task, H&G has asked eleven famous designers each to create a Christmas package

GENE MOORE
DISPLAY DIRECTOR, TIFFANY & CO.

1 Whimsical incongruity delights Gene Moore and the admirers of his Tiffany windows where he has been known to combine diamonds with dirt, and rubies and emeralds with uncooked spaghetti. In the same vein is his choice of a plain brown paper bag fastened with a weaving of red satin ribbon and a sprig of holly to enclose a really important Christmas gift. "People should not be blind to simple things," he says. "I also like newspaper for gift wrapping, dressed up with ribbon and holly."

WILLIAM ACCORSI
SCULPTOR

2 William Accorsi's wit and inventiveness is evident in the little throne he fashioned of wooden rulers as a box for a small piece of jewelry. He explains the three-dimensional pun as "a gift package fit for the supreme ruler—of your household, of your heart." A sliding bottom that pulls out of the back holds the jewel in place; a slot was cut in the seat so the throne could be used later as a coin bank.

PETER MAX
ARTIST AND DESIGNER

3 Directly to the surface of his Big Gift for his wife—a Lambretta—Peter Max applied his "wrapping" and decked it profusely with Mexican paper flowers. In the ebullient style familiar to collectors of his posters, he painted, in washable media, all the elements of contemporary art that Mrs. Max loves, plus twin portraits of himself, and her name on the headlights. Freely adapted, his method could be applied to any gift too big to wrap.

MALLORY-TILLIS
INTERIOR DESIGNERS

4 "We have seen enough glitter and gold," said the decorating team of Stephen Mallory and James Tillis, so they wrapped their gift box in a froth of blue and white moiré ribbon (which happens to be WAC Good Conduct ribbon). First they anchored the ribbon along the inside top edge of the box, then drew it over the edge, down one side, across the bottom, and up the other side. After repeating this procedure for the other two sides, they wove horizontal strips in and out through the verticals. Bows are short lengths of ribbon tied in single knots and attached with straight pins so they can be removed easily, leaving the ribbon-covered box a gift in itself, to keep and to use.

NOEL TAYLOR
COSTUME DESIGNER

5 Noel Taylor, who once gave Lynn Fontanne an opening-night present wrapped in a piece of fabric left over from one of her costumes, believes "the wrapping should be as personal and individual as the gift inside." For H&G, he designed a package covered with a bit of cloth he used in a costume for the TV production of "Anastasia," with a spill of vibrant Mexican yarns salvaged from another show, "Soldier in Love." The lengths of yarn are glued to the cloth, the paillettes glued to their ends.

HORST P. HORST

PHOTOGRAPHER

6 To create a winter moonscape for his gift package, Mr. Horst turned to the black and silvery tones that abound in his darkroom. For wrapping paper, he used negative photostats of fir trees, then outlined each side of the box with a frame of silver lamé ribbon and topped the whole with a loopy bow.

JOHN VESEY

FURNITURE DESIGNER

7 Steel and glass are Mr. Vesey's favorite materials for his very contemporary furniture, and he wanted his gift wrapping to have the same bright shimmer. So he chose a cool blue wrapping paper with an inner shine and a pattern that appears to move "psychedelically," and tied it with shaded ribbon. Similar papers and ribbon are not hard to find.

STEPHEN BARANY

FLORAL DESIGNER

8 Traditional Christmas colors in a surprise combination of plant materials—strawberries, carnations, holly, and string beans —make the exuberant "bow" on Stephen Barany's package. The box top was cut out to hold a shallow tin for the arrangement which was anchored in florist's Oasis. If the Oasis is kept wet, such an arrangement will stay fresh for several days.

FORNASETTI

FURNITURE AND ACCESSORY DESIGNER

9 The Milanese designer Fornasetti believes that an important gift should not have to depend on the reflected glory of tree lights, so he gave his a light and a life of its own. Using a wooden box large enough to hold both the gift and a battery, he connected a cluster of white plastic tree lights to a wire that plugs into the socket which is recessed in a hole cut in the top of the box. The shiny malachite paper is Fornasetti's own design.

ADOLFO

HAT DESIGNER

10 With his special talent for creating fantasies with fabric and flowers, Adolfo fashioned a wonderfully soft and luxurious wrapping for two books. In place of paper, he used one of his own signature scarfs, decked it with French silk millinery anemones, luscious velvet ribbon, and a sprig of wheat. Everything is meant to be kept for permanent use—even the wheat which can be added to a small flower arrangement.

ALEXANDER GIRARD

ARCHITECT AND DESIGNER

11 "The ultimate in shocks of delight" was Mr. Girard's aim in his fifteen-part cube of gifts. Each is wrapped differently from a horde of papers and ribbons collected from all over the world—and embellished with stickers designed by Mr. Girard himself. He admits it was a small engineering feat to make fifteen shapes join in a cube, but since a box of any shape can be made from six pieces of corrugated cardboard and tape, the feat is not impossible. Or the idea of combining differently wrapped packages in one stack could be carried out on a simpler scale by using four or eight boxes of the same size and shape.

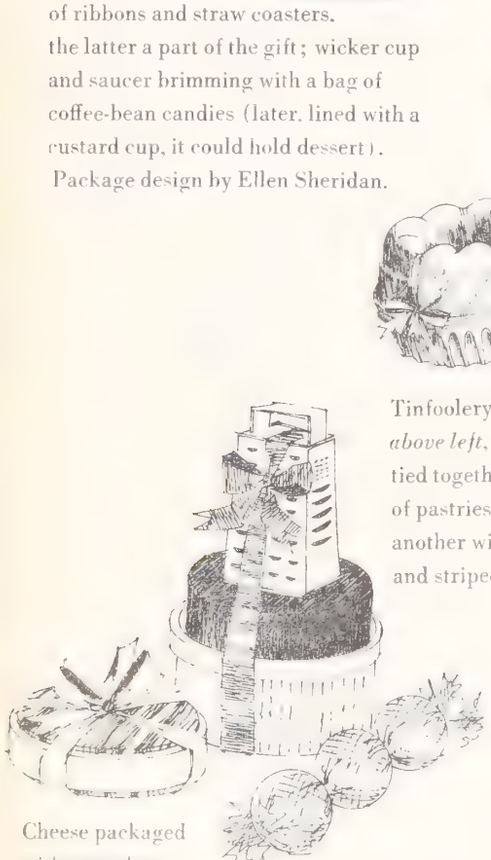
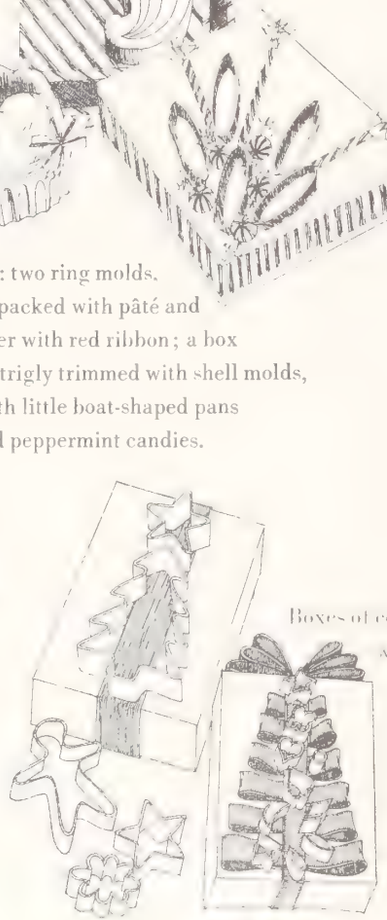
Gifts for gastronomes



Fodder for inveterate nibblers: cocktail canapés in boxes that flaunt flowers of ribbons and straw coasters. the latter a part of the gift; wicker cup and saucer brimming with a bag of coffee-bean candies (later, lined with a custard cup, it could hold dessert). Package design by Ellen Sheridan.



High on the list of gifts guaranteed to delight everyone a the consumables—magnums of wine, wheels of cheese, ar such specialties from your kitchen as a crock of your ow pâté maison or a marinade with a secret ingredient. But is really inventive packaging—mad, mod, or as merry you like—that makes all the difference between the gift th is welcomed and the gift that is really enjoyed. Diversic isn't the only thing, though, to consider when you wrap u food; there should be a little method in your madness. Hi at the nature of your gift by the container you put it or the decoration on the box, and be sure to include in prominent position a card announcing any essential data the name of the food, how to store and serve it, how long can be expected to keep. Deliver it by hand if possible. you must rely on the not-so-tender mercies of the mails, l sure everything is well cushioned and clearly labeled "fra ile," "perishable," and "rush." Glue, ribbon, and a few ine pensive items from housewares or gift shops are all you ne for any package on this page. For goodies to put in t packages, see H&G's Christmas Gift Cook Book, page 17

Cheese packaged with panache: Camembert sandwiched between cheeseboards; wheel of Cheddar in soufflé dish with crater; baby Gouda in plastic mesh tubing.

Boxes of cookies embellished with after-Christmas keepsakes: tin cookie and aspic cutters glued to ribbon to suggest trompe-l'oeil trees.

Spectacular surface decoration for a simple box of crackers and cheese: open wood butter mold and slim wood forks glued to red ribbon. Design by Ellen Sheridan.

A batch of bright and droll ideas for Christmas consumables: Edam cheese caged in a homemade crate; cookies cosseted with layers of bright tissue in a clear glass jar; bottle of salad dressing sheathed in a cardboard cone wound with colored yarns. Imaginative containers designed to be kept after the goodies are gone: clear glass tree ornaments filled with special spices; funny-face fish casserole with beard of dill, a belly full of pickled salmon concealed in his glazed interior; a gold luster soufflé dish packed with a fruitcake, and a zingy box to transport them both; a go-along diversion for a gift of nuts—a nutty cracker, actually a gluing clamp, its handles painted scarlet.

HOLIDAY PARTIES that celebrate the season, each in its own joyous way

Probably more than any other holiday of the year, Christmas is celebrated in a tremendous diversity of ways in diverse climates by people of diverse national origins. Even today, celebrations, in some places, are still movingly simple. In a mountain village on the island of Mallorca, for instance, the villagers light bonfires on the surrounding hills on Christmas Eve and spangle the night with fireworks. In the U. S., the celebration of Christmas is usually an amalgam of customs from many parts of the world—customs picked up in the course of traveling, or inherited from ancestors who themselves arrived from some other land. But always, Christmas is a time for parties, for gathering under your roof the several generations of a far-flung family; for throwing open your house to carolers with frost-nipped noses, for preparing a feast or a bowl of hot punch, for decking your rooms to look their most festive, most welcoming. And at Christmas parties, as at Christmas itself, part of the pleasure is always in the mixture of familiar traditions with the excitement and surprise of the new. Remembered from childhood are the stockings hung on the fireplace, the smells of gingerbread, pine, tangerines, mulled wine. New every year is the mystery of each wrapped parcel under the tree or beside each plate, the change in menu from turkey to a roast goose, or from plum pudding to bûche de Noël. Old and new are deftly mixed in the three extremely different Christmas parties on the following pages. They range from a lavish ball to a cozy lunch in a wonderful kitchen, but all three express in their own distinctive way the love of the hosts to share good food, good friends, the warmth of the season.

Host Richard Nelson gives last-minute pre-party instructions.

CANDLELIGHT DANCE

and its sequel, a tree happening for children

Small tables and gilt chairs are clustered at one side of living room for resting between dances.

On a fine, mid-December night a year ago, 150 guests arrived for an enchanting bal de Noël given by interior designer Richard Nelson in his Manhattan apartment. Preparations had begun almost six months earlier: consulting with the chef, designing the decorations, planning the seating space for the late-night supper, figuring out logistics in the kitchen. For Mr. Nelson is not only a perfectionist about such things, he also adores Christmas and celebrates it each year with excitement, wonder, and a pair of parties—an evening of dancing, followed a few days later by an afternoon just for children. Last year's parties also marked the debut of his new apartment on the ground floor of a handsome townhouse. The party setting consisted mainly of two very large rooms—a stone-floored living room with a 20-foot-high vaulted ceiling and a paneled dining room—flanking a garden courtyard and linked by a windowed gallery, opposite page. The decorations—all in traditional red, white, and green—added more magic. Garlands of evergreens studded with red fruits and berries and red velvet bows framed windows and doors. In the gallery, pots of cyclamen, poinsettias, and white orchids were (Continued) massed along the walls, and red velvet cushions, for extr seating, were scattered on the floor. More red and whi flowers—anemones, carnations, roses, lilacs, snapdragon tulips, geraniums—were mixed with holly and pine and a ranged high up on bookshelves, mantels, and an armoi where they would be clearly visible and not compete wit the gala raiment of the guests. Last of all, the whole pla was lighted with dozens of red and white candles. "The were 200 tiny white candles on the Christmas tree alone recalls Mr. Nelson. A 20-foot beauty, the tree scraped th living room ceiling and was decorated with ornaments h has been collecting since he was a child.

Guests were invited for 8:30 P.M. A red-coated foo man opened the door and showed the way to the livin room, which had been cleared of all furniture except th piano, and set up with gilt chairs and five round tables co ered with handsome Fortuny cloths. The party started qu etly, cozily. A harpist played eighteenth-century Christma music, and trays of champagne and plates of cucumber an watercress sandwiches were passed around by a team o waiters. As more and more people arrived, the six-piec orchestra struck up and the dancing began. Guests include all ages—from sixteen to eighty—and the music swirle from waltzes to rock and roll.

Shortly before 11:00, the buffet supper (see men left) was served in the dining room. Guests helped then selves and settled wherever they wanted (no place cards at one of the big round tables covered with green and silv cloths. After supper, when everyone was back in the livin room, came one of the highlights of the evening. "Mab Mercer, who has been a dear friend for years, sang for us, recounts Mr. Nelson. "She started with 'A Partridge in Pear Tree' and went on from there for about an hour and half. It was a marvelous treat. After that, we just dance and danced and danced—until 4:30 in the morning."

Three days after his dance, the inexhaustible M Nelson gave his annual children's party—a tradition tha started several Christmases ago when he simply said t friends, "Do bring your children to see the tree." Th children came, had a grand time, and the spontaneous hap pening grew into a yearly party. They arrive at 4:00– usually about forty-five of them—with mothers, with nan nies, or on their own, and stay two or three hours. Ther are Christmas cookies and apple juice aplenty, but the sta turn is, always, the tree. Heaped beneath it are small pre ents for each child, and hung on the lower branches ar candy canes to take home, horns to make a ferocious di with, and all the more toylike tree ornaments—drum soldiers, dolls, unicorns—which Mr. Nelson enjoys seein the children play with. "That's what the tree is for," he say in the marvelous kitchen of a famous cook

Julia and Paul Child admire a just completed creation for a holiday party.

Miniature Christmas tree on a chest carved by Mr. Child greets guests with scent of Christmas as soon as they step into the house.

"One of the nicest ways to celebrate Christmas," says Julia Child, television's "French Chef" and co-author of Mastering the Art of French Cooking, "is with something delicious to eat." When she and her husband Paul Child, who is a painter and photographer, invite friends for one of their superb meals at Christmastime, they love to set the table—if the party is only for six or eight—right in the kitchen. Agleam with copper and fragrant with the good smells of baking and cooking, the kitchen seems a particularly appropriate, festive setting for Christmas entertaining. "Besides wonderful food and wine," says Paul Child, "We love to have good friends and family at Christmas—usually the older generation because we have the younger ones at Thanksgiving. So at Christmas we have more sophisticated things to eat."

A fine time for a small party, the Childs think, is the day before Christmas: a luncheon for six with a sumptuous menu. The party starts in the library with champagne and pâté de foie gras topped with chopped truffles (see opposite page, below right) and accompanied by oven-made melba toast. When lunch is ready, everyone moves into the kitchen. Small candles flicker on the countertop next to the table (see opposite page, top right), and the table itself is a lovely festive composition of red and silver. At Christmastime the Childs use some of their most decorative cooking objects in various ways to add a holiday luster. Lots of French tinware is mixed with red plates and striped red napkins and placed directly on the handsome bare Norwegian pine table (which Mr. Child keeps a lovely pale color by scrubbing with detergent). For a centerpiece, half-a-dozen rice steamers are piled with red Christmas tree balls in a large tin bowl. More rice steamers and red tree balls are heaped in a three-tiered French wire epergne on the countertop.

The Childs like a menu (see right) that is partly untraditional. Lobster bisque is served from a tureen on the table. When it is time for the next course, Mr. Child carves the roast filet on a rolling hot table beside his chair. For dessert, guests move into the living room and settle comfortably while Julia Child sets up on an antique French commode, the traditional French ending to a Christmas meal—the beautiful, candlelit bûche de Noël.

NON-STOP FESTIVITIES in a house that brims over with Christmas

"I'd love Christmas to begin long before and last long after," says Mrs. Miles Pelikan of Darien, Conn. She is in fact one of those rare people who does seem to make it last longer by scheduling a whole seasonful of hospitality. Ever since she was a child in Northern Michigan where Christmas was always a big event ("we would make gifts for months beforehand and go out into the forest and cut our own tree. And sometimes we would be snowed in for days over Christmas"), Mrs. Pelikan has always felt it important "to live Christmas fully." Her husband, whose ancestry is Czechoslovakian, also has Christmas in his blood. "It isn't Christmas for him," says his wife, "until there's the smell of anise cookies in the air."

Early in December, the first touch of Christmas appears on the Pelikans' red and white New England saltbox—traditional laurel wreaths hung on the front door and outside the windows. As Christmas nears, the house is decked inside for the holiday entertaining. In the two-story living room, swags of evergreens are hung on banisters of stairs that lead up to a balcony. Red velvet bows are tied around the lamps. Bowls are filled with holly, ringed with candles. Huge wreaths are hung on each side of the immense living room fireplace, and, of course, the tree is set up—tall enough to touch the ceiling. Then comes the baking: Christmas cookies of all kinds, and a gingerbread house that Mrs. Pelikan has been making every year since her four children were tiny. Now, all but one of the children are grown and live as far away as California, but every year the whole family gathers for the holidays and Christmas wouldn't be complete without the yearly gingerbread house. Three or four days before Christmas there is always a party—forty or fifty friends of all ages, invited for 6:30 P.M. (Last year the Pelikans asked their guests to come in Colonial costume, which they thought would be fun in the saltbox.) Guests arrive to find the whole house lighted with masses of red candles, and pungent with the smell of hot punch. Later, there is a buffet supper (see menu, above). After that, a young child reads The Christmas Story, and there is caroling around the piano.

For the next few weeks, the Pelikans' hospitality continues. Fruitcake and sherry are always ready for friends who drop in. And for the family themselves, each meal is a festive occasion with table decorations (composed of ornaments collected ever since Mrs. Pelikan's childhood) and small surprises to prolong the holiday celebration.

HOUSE in the LIFE of a PLAY-WRIGHT

Edward Albee's Greenwich Village carriage house

By ANNE STAGG

Cast: Edward Albee, black-haired, lean, intense, thirty-nine-year-old author of a flock of potent plays (among them The Zoo Story, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, A Delicate Balance, and this season's Everything in the Garden). Cat-quick as he moves across a room, Mr. Albee gives an impression of taut, flashing fierceness, strongly reminiscent of a Spanish bullfighter. In addition to Mr. Albee, a visitor, four cats—Boy, George, Tigger, Cunégonde—and two Pekingese—Spider and Pucci—who dart playfully, constantly, everywhere.

Scene: A white-painted, three-story carriage house, built a century or so ago, on a pretty street lined with trees and fine old brownstones in New York City's Greenwich Village. The house is deep and spacious even though not very tall. On the ground floor, the garage plus utility and storage rooms; on the second floor, a sitting room sometimes used for play readings, a dining room, a kitchen, and two workrooms cluttered with teetering piles of manuscripts, letters, books, magazines stacked on desk tops, windowsills, even the floor; on the third floor, a large living room, a bar, a book-lined study, and at the back of the house a bedroom opening onto a terrace. In surprising contrast to the spanking white exterior, nearly all the rooms are sheathed in very dark brown.

It is late afternoon and darkening outside. A few lamps are on and the combination of soft lighting and dark walls brings out the nuances of many paintings hung throughout the house.

Albee: (he wears a dark tweed jacket, gray flannels, and a white shirt open at the throat, and he smokes a cigarette while reminiscing about the house). I've only had the house about three years, but I've lived in the Village since I was eighteen. That's over twenty years. I still prefer it to uptown even though they keep tearing so much of it down, and it's getting too crowded. Nevertheless, it's a little quieter, a little more like country. When I first came to the Village, I lived almost across the street from this house. The first day, I took a walk out and noticed the group of four or five lovely houses on this side of the block, especially this white one, and I thought, 'Wouldn't that be a nice place to live someday.' The house belonged to the actor Maurice Evans, but I didn't know that then. Many years later, one day about three years ago, I heard by accident that Maurice had decided to sell his house. That was on a Sunday, and it was going on the market on Monday. I had never seen the house inside so I went over right away, looked at it, and closed the deal the same evening. Today, there's not a wall or floor or anything that looks the same. William Pennington—he was my interior decorator—and I combined ideas and transformed the house.

Visitor: What was the biggest change?

Albee: The colors. We used almost nothing but browns and black all through the house. For walls, floors, furniture. I'm hardly ever home during the day in the city, you see. New York is mostly business, rehearsals, things like that—I do my writing in the country—so I use the city house mostly in the evenings. It's a nighttime house and we made it look like one. Dark colors give a nice feeling of enclosure, of interior, at night. Also, they're more restful, more comfortable. (Continued on page 196)

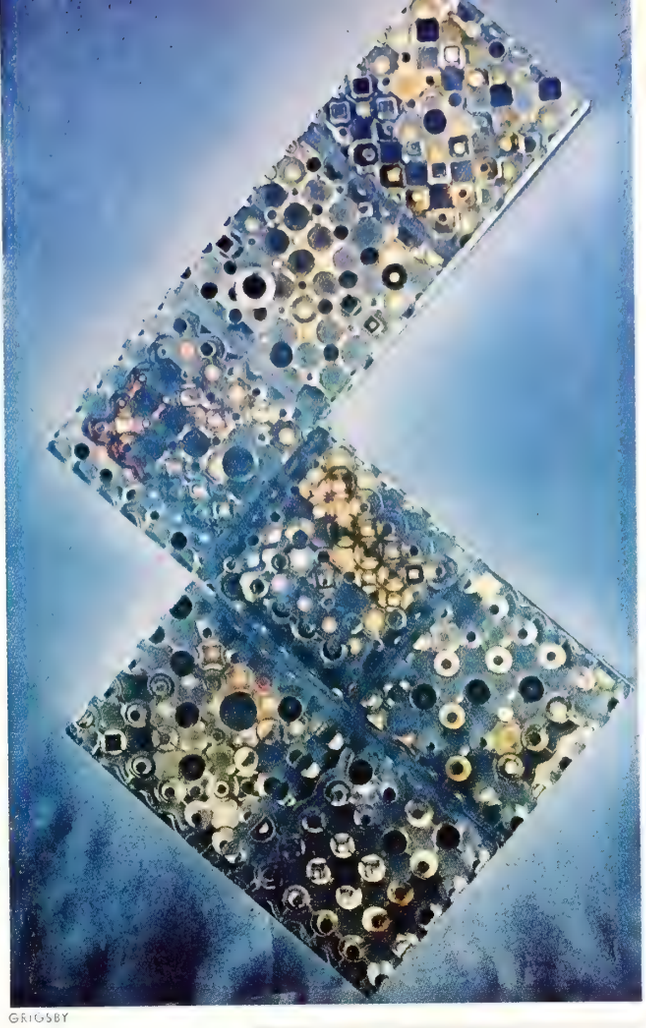
Made with Paper Made with Paper Ma

Corrugated paper-box costumes for a show by The Paper Bag Players at New York's Henry Street Settlement Playhouse.



Paper is an amiable substance. You can fold it, mold it, bend it, stack it, roll it, cut it, paint it, dye it, gild it, shred it, twist it, curl it, weave it, knit it, sew it, glue it, sleep on it, eat off it, toss it away. Above all, paper is a medium of ideas and as such lends itself to the very diverse talents of child, artist, or engineer. This winter the lasting beauty and exciting potential of paper are highlighted in a major exhibition, opening November 18 at New York's Museum of Contemporary Crafts, which may well inspire you to try your own hand with this rewarding medium. In "Made with Paper," folk crafts and festival decorations are juxtaposed with stimulating experimental concepts and industrial applications of the material. The entire installation—paper walls, paper floors, paper light fixtures, taped sounds of paper flicking, crunching, ripping—was designed by The Container Corporation of America, and after January 1 will travel to museums in the Midwest, West Coast, Europe, and Mexico. On this and the next three pages are some of the more lighthearted exhibits. (Look for the more advanced structural and design ideas in next month's H&G.) A number of these fantasies are buyable—as works of art or toys or decorations. For shopping information, see page 187.

A GARDENER GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA

BY RALPH BAILEY

I wanted to see how people gardened below the equator, to find out whether morning glories twined clockwise or counterclockwise down there (I still don't know). I wanted to see, growing outdoors, plants that I have known up here only in greenhouses. I wanted to find out if people loved their public parks and squares and made them as beautiful as they almost always do in Europe and almost never do in the U.S. I wanted to go to Brazil to talk again with Roberto Burle Marx, one of the great landscape designers of the world —and of course to see more of his work at close range.

So with Braniff's now truly international help, I booked open tickets down the west coast of South America and partway back up the east coast to Rio. I found out that to get into Brazil at all you have to show the man at the counter a firm reservation out. That gave me a compulsory return date; otherwise I might still be down there.

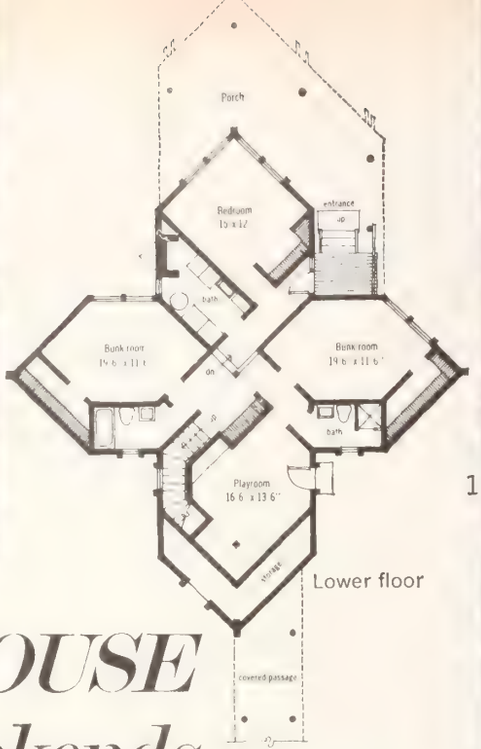
I did not have enough time to waste any of it in becoming accustomed to the high altitudes at which so much of the best of South America is to be found. So I stuck to the valleys and the forests and the lakes and the deserts and the foothills—where also much of the best of South America is to be found. Cali, Colombia, first real stop after leaving Kennedy airport, is all of 350 feet up. Lima, Peru just barely rises above the Callao waterfront. Santiago, Chile is in a broad and verdant valley. Puerto Montt, on the Gulf of Chiloé, is of course at sea level, as is Buenos Aires, northeastward in Argentina. Rio de Janeiro ripples out of the Atlantic and Guanabara Bay, then climbs the switchbacks of a wild coastal escarpment half-a-mile up to Petrópolis, where the incredible Monteiro garden, opposite page, nestles among the lush hills.

Cali is a bustling commercial town that dominates the fertile and humid Cauca valley, as green as the emeralds for which Colombia is famous. Within a stone's throw is a tidy (but not tiny) orchid farm where plants by the thousands are strung on barbed wire from tree to tree (the barbs keep them in place). It is run by a retired Cali surgeon and supplies a wide cut-flower trade, besides being a handsome catalogue of ornamental orchid varieties. Several other nurseries among the cane fields (this is sugar not coffee country) swarmed with bougainvilleas, fan palms, and rainbow swatches of succulents and bedding plants with many-colored foliage.

Along the main valley road that runs in the simmering heat from Medellín in the north to sleepy and so-Spanish Popayan, many of the pink brick and stucco houses in which cane cutters live had doorways framed with gay containers of native plants (see page 184). When I first noticed them on the way up the valley, I thought the containers were ceramic. When I stopped to look at them on the way back, I found they were ingeniously cut oil cans, painted with green and yellow stripes, wired to the walls, and dripping with chlorophytum, small aroids, trailers of philodendron, and twinkling plants I never was able to identify.

Cali itself scarcely proved a tourist's paradise. It is a bustling business city. But the morning after my arrival, I discovered, across the river from my hotel, an enchanting handkerchief-size park that was all sun-dappled grass and small groves of trees and inviting benches. The park's principal glory was a marble monument to one Jorge Isaacs (see page 184), an immigrant to Colombia during the last century who apparently married the boss' daughter and later became the country's leading poet. What especially fascinated me about the monument was the strictly Jane Austen grouping of the youthful Jorge, leaning over his adoring and adored one, who in turn is reading to him from a volume in her lap. A noble hound gazes up with impartial adoration at the young couple. Then, literally to cap all, the elderly Jorge, looking for all the world like Mr. Justice Holmes in his late years, surveys the whole lovely scene with stern benevolence. At both ends of the day, I repaired to the little park. It renewed my sunburned spirit in a way I had not realized a statue in a garden could.

The best of the trip lay ahead. In Lima, the streets are paved with sunlight and the museums are lined with gold—Inca gold. They (the writers of travel advertisements) are trying to make Lima the Paris of South America—with swimming. Tommyrot. Lima is one of the half-dozen truly great cities of the continent that is always and unmistakably itself.



Everyone who has been to Lima extolls the grandeur of the cathedral in the Plaza de Armas and the beauty of the Torre-Tagle Palace down a side street nearby. The cathedral I could take or leave as a symbol of alien conquest. But the palace, with its wonderous wooden jalousies, its superbly tiled and galleried courtyards, was quite another matter. If it taught me a special lesson, it was to see how color, in a courtyard or any other open area, can be carried to the eye in a hundred ways: tiles, carved timbers, images of never-never plants on walls, floors, and ceilings. (Continued on page 184)

High on the coastal escarpment above Rio de Janeiro, pyramidal hills encircle some of the most beautiful private gardens in the world, of which a spectacular example is that of Sra. Odette Monteiro. This entire glade, on the outskirts of Petrópolis, once summer residence of Brazil's last emperor, was reshaped, replanned, and replanted with the finest of the country's own plants by landscape designer Roberto Burle Marx, who was given a completely free hand. The whole vast garden was conceived almost as a painting, with living plants for pigments. Great sweeps of coleus are spread around the man-made lake, and among them many species of tibouchina provide pillars of color. Grasses and succulent bordered paths sweep among islands of many-colored plants. Over all, the wayward clouds parade in sun and shadow.

On each side of house, roof line has same dramatic forward thrust.

SNOWFLAKE HOUSE for snow-filled weekends

To give as much pleasure as its name suggests, a holiday house in snow country has to meet several special requirements—easy accessibility even when the drifts are 10 to 12 feet high; indoor cheer and comfort whatever the weather outside; ruggedness that can stand up to a continued parade of dripping parkas, snowy boots, and snowy gear; room for lots of guests; minimal maintenance chores to infringe on the hours to be spent on the slopes. In addition, the design of the house itself ought to have an exuberance that encourages a carefree mood.

All these demands are superbly met by the weekend house in Alpine Meadows, Calif., that architects Volkmann & Stockwell built for an energetic and gregarious San Francisco couple with four children, all ardent skiers. A two-story house sheathed in redwood, it is based on a four-pointed plan that resembles, appropriately, a simplified snowflake.

Accessibility was assured at the start by locating the parking area uphill from the house and running a wooden bridge from there to the main entrance door on the second floor. The family living rooms are on the second floor, too, as well as the master bedroom. Downstairs, the children's rooms plus a guest room plus a children's playroom can sleep a total of ten—an impressive coup in a house of 2,730 square feet. A steep pitched roof with a generous overhang helps to keep the snow under control outdoors, and a roomy entrance hall, paved with stone and furnished with benches for easy boot removal, takes care of snow tracked indoors. Quite as important as these conveniences to the family who weekend there, however, are the intangible, esthetic aspects of the house. "Visiting it is like visiting a friend," they say, "it has a character and a spirit all its own."

The two-story plan, ABOVE, consists of eight rooms, almost all of the same shape—an elongated hexagon. Open kitchen, bathrooms, and storerooms are fitted in so as not to interfere with pleasant repetition of wide and acute angles. Major rooms have generous windows on south side to take advantage of winter sun and best views.

SALUBRIOUS DRINKS FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON

BY PHILIP S. BROWN

There was a time when the "holiday season" consisted of about two weeks of merrymaking—from Christmas Eve through Twelfth Night. Nowadays the round of partying starts with Thanksgiving, runs until New Year's Day or beyond, and is a very strenuous course indeed. Sooner or later even the hardiest constitution becomes weakened, and the thought of drinking yet another Martini, Gimlet, or highball is too painful to be contemplated. Still, on occasions such as Christmas or New Year's morning, drinks are definitely in order, and these are the times when what we choose to call "restorative" drinks will be welcomed by all concerned.

Restorative drinks are pleasant and palliative, usually (although not necessarily) long, mild, and thirst-quenching, with the alcoholic components masked and diluted by other ingredients. They should not be too sweet, lest they be cloying, nor too acid, lest they further irritate the internal machinery. For daytime entertainments they should not be too strong, for such affairs frequently go on for many hours, and the participants are supposed to be mellow, not muddled. Above all, such drinks should be soothing and salubrious to sip. Here are some suggestions and recipes for popular libations in this category.

Milk Punch

In a very tall highball glass put two or three ice cubes, an ounce each of cognac and Jamaica rum, and fill with cold milk. Stir to mix well, and sip slowly. If you like the taste of nutmeg, sprinkle a little on top. A variation is to put 1 ounce each of cognac and Jamaica rum into a shaker with ice, add 2 ounces of milk and 2 ounces of cream, and shake vigorously. Pour into a highball glass and fill up with chilled club soda.

Tiger's Milk

This is nearly the same as the Milk Punch, but vive la différence. Put 2 ounces of cognac, 2 ounces of Jamaica rum, 4 ounces of cream, and 2 teaspoons of sugar into a shaker with cracked ice. Shake to a froth, and strain into a tall glass. Do not add anything else.

Black Velvet

This drink was popular in the Gay Nineties, and once you have tried it you will agree that grandfather knew what he was doing. You need a split each of chilled stout and champagne. With one in each hand, pour simultaneously into a tall chilled glass. Drink at once. If you use porter instead of stout, you will have a plain Velvet; beer gives you a Halstead Street Velvet.

Mimosa

In a part of the country which shall be nameless, this drink is also known as a California Sunshine. Half fill a large wineglass with fresh chilled orange juice, then fill to the top with chilled champagne. The champagne raises your spirits, while the vitamin-filled juice aids in the task of restoration.

Champagne Julep

In the bottom of a tall glass, crush a few sprigs of mint with a lump of sugar and a tablespoon of water. Half fill with crushed ice, add a jigger of cognac, fill up with more crushed ice, then add chilled champagne to fill the glass, stirring slowly. Garnish with another sprig of mint and sip.

Not only champagne, but other wines make good holiday drinks, either by themselves or mixed with club soda, water, ginger ale, or whatever.

Wine Cooler

Either red or white wine may be used for this; they are equally good. Muddle 2 teaspoons of sugar in a highball glass with a little water until the sugar is dissolved. Add a teaspoon of orange juice, then ice cubes, and fill the glass with any wine you like.

Wine Cobblers

Cobblers may be made of almost any wine. They are served in large wineglasses, about ⅔ full of finely cracked ice. Sprinkle a little sugar on the ice, then a teaspoon or so of fruit juice or liqueur, then add a couple of jiggers of the wine.

Claret Cobbler

To the ice and sugar add a dash of Maraschino liqueur and a tea-

Christmas Gift Cook Book

To make and give the pride of your kitchen is as old a tradition as Christmas itself, and closer to the true spirit of the season than anything you can buy. No matter how simple the food, friends are invariably delighted and impressed with the effort you have made to please them. Nothing could be more heart-warming than the experience of a friend of mine who spent one holiday in a tiny New England village. Her landlady came visiting on Christmas morning bearing a basket of jellies and said, "I want you to try a little of my sass." My friend was so pleased and touched that she now makes and gives her own "sass." My mother always made Christmas puddings, mincemeat, and fruitcakes a year in advance and anointed them liberally with brandy throughout the ensuing months, until they were perfectly aged and ready. Some people used to plan their holiday menus with the expectation of receiving one of mother's specialties.

The container you put the food in can be an integral part of the present—pâté in a beautiful terrine, for example—so keep watch during the year for unusual or handsome dishes, crocks, and jars for your gifts. Labeling the package with essential information about the food also makes it more interesting to the recipient, but be sure the label is handmade and attractive, not just a sticker from a stationery store. Include essential information about storing the contents of the package, and give instructions for any unfamiliar food—if it needs a sauce, if it should be served hot or cold, or the dish it might accompany. An additional thoughtfulness is to send the recipe along, especially for a friend who likes to extend her culinary repertoire. If the recipe has a special history, write that out, too. In this cook book you will find all kinds of ideas to start you off and, if you just can't find the time to cook, suggestions for picking out a personal sampler of cheeses, sausage, or nuts. For unusual and amusing ways to present your homemade gifts, turn to page 148.

GIFTS FROM THE OVEN

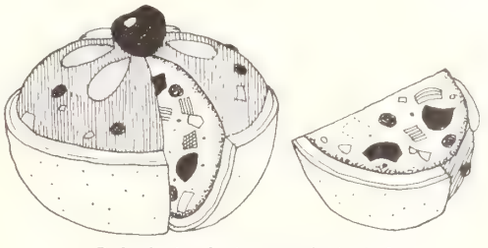
White Fruitcake

One advantage of this delicious holiday confection is that it requires no aging. It is perfect when baked in small bread tins or in 1-pint soufflé dishes, which might constitute part of the gift.

¾ pound citron, cut in the thinnest of slices
⅓ pound candied pineapple, cut in thin shreds
¼ pound candied cherries
½ pound white raisins
1 pound sliced blanched almonds
½ pound pecans
¼ pound pine nuts
4 cups sifted flour
1½ cups butter
2 cups sugar
6 eggs (large or extra large), separated
¼ cup Madeira
½ cup cognac or bourbon
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
Blanched almonds for garnish

Mix fruits and nuts together, sift ½ cup flour over them, and mix again lightly. Cream the butter well and gradually work in the sugar. Beat in the egg yolks. Add the remaining 3½ cups sifted flour alternately with the Madeira and cognac or bourbon. When well blended, combine with the floured fruit. Beat the egg whites until glossy and firm, but not dry, and just before they are done, add the cream of tartar. Fold this into the fruit-nut mixture. Pour into 4 buttered and papered 6" pans or 1-pint molds. Top with a few blanched almonds and bake in a preheated 275° oven for about 2 hours, or until they are nicely brown and the edges begin to break away from the pan.

You may add more spirits to the cakes before wrapping them. Store in the refrigerator.



Florentines

These delicious chewy chocolate-iced cookies are a perfect gift. Bake them slightly smaller than usual and store in a beautiful plastic box or jar with a very wide top. With careful handling they hold up well, but they should not be mailed unless packed in a tin.

½ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons corn syrup
½ cup sifted flour
½ cup candied cherries, coarsely chopped
⅔ cup mixed peel, coarsely chopped
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts and almonds
⅓ cup slivered almonds
12 ounces semi-sweet chocolate, melted over hot water

Combine butter, sugar, and syrup, and stir over medium heat until warmed, but not too hot. Remove from heat and stir in sifted flour, fruit, and nuts. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered cookie sheet and bake in a 325° oven until flat and brown. Remove with a spatula to racks.

When cooled, brush the flat sides with the melted chocolate, and when it has begun to set, form wavy lines with a fork or a pastry comb. You may also decorate each cookie with a cherry or candied violet. Makes about 40 cookies.

Bake fruitcake in grapefruit rind that has been candied in sugar syrup for an unusual tart-sweet combination.

Christmas Fruit Bread

This can be shaped into a loaf or into a stollen by folding the dough envelope-fashion. In either case, it looks tempting and festive when covered in polyethylene wrap and brightly tied. It keeps well and toasts beautifully.

1½ cups milk
2½ packages dry yeast or 2 yeast cakes
1½ cups sugar
¾ cup butter
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, well-beaten
5-7 cups flour
¾ cup mixed peel
¾ cup raisins
¼ cup sliced candied cherries
¼ cup sliced citron
1 cup chopped filberts and almonds, mixed
¼ cup cognac
Melted butter
Powdered sugar

Scald the milk. Dissolve the dried yeast in ½ cup of the milk then add to remaining milk and mix with the sugar. (If you use fresh yeast, cream it well with the sugar and then add to the milk.) Then add butter and salt. Next add the eggs, about 3 cups of flour, the fruits, nuts, and cognac. Beat the mixture well with a wooden spoon or dough hook. Add enough flour to make a soft dough, and knead until smooth. Cover and let the dough rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Knead again and form into 2 large or 3 small loaves. To bake as loaves, brush with melted butter, arrange on a baking sheet and allow to rise again until just about doubled in bulk. To bake as a traditional stollen, pat dough down and fold lengthwise so that the edges do not quite meet, leaving a margin about ⅓ of width. Do not press. Let rise until almost double in bulk. Bake in a 350° oven for 35-40 minutes. Cool and dust well with powdered sugar.

Don't let dryness finish the fruitcake before you do.

Ginger Fingers

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon ground ginger
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup butter

Mix the flour, salt, soda, ginger, and sugar, and gradually but thoroughly blend in the butter. Mold into round cakes and place on a cookie sheet, or press into lightly buttered layer-cake pans. In either form the mixture should be about ½" thick. Bake in a 325° oven for about 45 minutes. Cut into finger-shaped pieces while still warm. Cool and store in covered tins. Makes about 2 dozen.

Gift-wrap the tins, and if you like, wrap each finger separately in polyethylene or waxed paper. Ginger Fingers might be combined in a tin with Shortbread Fingers.

Shortbread Fingers

1 cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 cups cake flour
Pinch salt

Cream the butter and sugar together well, gradually add the flour and salt, and blend thoroughly. Form into squares and decorate, if you like, with bits of candied fruit. Place on a lightly buttered cookie sheet, or press into buttered layer-cake tins, as directed for Ginger Fingers. Bake in a 350° oven until lightly browned—about 25-30 minutes. Cut the squares or layers into fingers while still warm. Makes about 2 dozen.

Oatcakes

Friends not familiar with this Scots specialty will enjoy the crispness of oatcakes. These are unsweetened cakes that are best eaten with fresh sweet butter, frequently as an accompaniment to smoked fish or herring. They are fairly fragile, so pack them carefully.

1 cup medium-ground oatmeal
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon hot water
Additional oatmeal for rolling

Sieve the oatmeal and salt, combine with butter, egg yolk, and water, and mix to a smooth paste. On an oatmeal-sprinkled board, roll out the paste to a circle ¼" thick and 9" in diameter and then cut in pie-shaped wedges. This should yield about 12 pieces. Place on a cookie sheet sprinkled lightly with oatmeal. Bake in a 350° oven for approximately 20 minutes. Leave the oven door open, turn the oven to "warm," and allow the oatcakes to dry and crisp.

Croquembouche

This spectacular pyramidal dessert is one of the most beautiful of pastries. It makes a dramatic gift for someone who will appreciate the work and planning it entails. Present the croquembouche on a flat plate or on a board covered with bright foil. Decorate the pastry with candied flowers or with tiny, brightly colored candles that will give it the effect of a tower of jewels. Carefully tie sheets of clear plastic wrap over the entire creation, and add a huge bow.

The following recipe will make two croquembouches of impressive size.

Cream Puffs

1 cup butter
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
6-8 large eggs

Pastry Cream

4 tablespoons flour
½ cup cream
1½ cups scalded milk
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3 or 9 egg yolks, lightly beaten
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

Caramel Syrup

2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup corn syrup
Pinch salt

To make the cream puffs, combine 2 cups water and the butter in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Add flour and salt, and stir over low heat until it forms a ball and breaks away from the edge of the pan. Remove from heat. Add the eggs one by one, beating thoroughly after each addition. The dough must be thick enough to stand in peaks when it is dropped from a spoon. After adding 6 eggs, test for consistency. If more egg is needed, beat in another bit by bit until you have achieved the proper texture.

Press through a pastry bag equipped with a smallish plain tube, or drop by spoonfuls on a lightly buttered sheet. The puffs should be the size of a Ping-Pong ball when baked.

Bake in a 375° oven until puffs are nicely browned and no beads of moisture remain. Puncture each one with a knife and allow to rest in the oven with the heat off for another 10 minutes. Remove and cool. This amount of dough makes about 60-70 puffs.

Meanwhile, make the pastry cream. Combine the flour with the cream in a saucepan and gradually stir in the scalded milk. Place over low heat, cook until mixture is thickened, and simmer for a few minutes thereafter. Add sugar and salt and simmer again, stirring constantly. Dissolve the gelatin in ¼ cup water.

Temper the egg yolks by stirring in a bit of the hot sauce. Then gradually stir this mixture into the rest of the sauce and cook for a few moments over low heat, being careful the mixture does not boil. Add the dissolved gelatin and stir in well. Finally add the vanilla. Remove the sauce to a chilled bowl. Cool.

When thoroughly cooled, fill the tiny puffs by puncturing the bottoms and piping in the cream with a pastry bag fitted with a small tube, or scoop in the cream with a very small spoon, such as a demitasse spoon.

Make the caramel syrup by combining the two sugars, syrup, ½ cup water, and a pinch of salt in a heavy saucepan and stirring directly over medium high heat until the sugar dissolves. Continue cooking, without stirring, until the syrup reaches 300° on the candy thermometer (brittle stage). Have ready another, slightly larger pan ⅓ filled with hot water, to make a double boiler. Place pan of caramel syrup over the hot water.

To Assemble

Use an oiled 16" cone mold if you have one (or present a framed sketch of a Styrofoam cone covered with foil and oiled. Otherwise your eye will have to guide you. The objective is a pyramid about 10" 12" at the base. Build on a covered board or a doily if you are not using the mold. Impale bottom of each puff on a fork, and dip into syrup. Arrange in a circle while sticky, using a second fork to slide puffs off and into place. Top with another circle slightly indented. Continue building circles, each smaller than the one below, until you have achieved a beautiful pyramid. At the peak you might want to insert a confection, glittering Christmas decoration, or a final, nicely glazed puff. You might also stud the croquembouche with tiny bright candles to suggest a Christmas tree. This could be a stunning centerpiece for someone's holiday table. If you use the cone mold as your form, remove it after puffs have set in place.

Brandy Snaps

These fragile beauties are so delicious it is a shame they must be treated with such care. However, if you roll them in tissue paper of various colors and place them in a clear plastic or glass jar, they will remain intact. Be sure to put a "fragile" sticker on the package so that the small fry don't shake it to guess what's inside.

⅞ cup flour
⅔ cup sugar
1 tablespoon ground ginger
½ cup molasses
½ cup butter

Sift together the dry ingredients. Bring the molasses to a boil. Add the butter, and gradually stir in the sifted ingredients. When a rather translucent mass is formed, drop by spoonfuls on a buttered cookie sheet. Bake in a 425° oven for just a few minutes, or until spread and firm to the touch. Take from oven and cool for a minute. Remove with a spatula and roll around the handle of a wooden spoon. Cool on a rack. Makes 30-35.

Stack graduated cookies on desk spike, top with bauble. Or arrange in dime-store plastic sewing box decked with paper flowers.

Stud croquembouche with candied violets; set it on an antique plate.

Eccles Cakes

These festive English pastries are wonderfully suited to the holidays. Arrange them in an attractive box tied with colored ribbons, and give to friends who enjoy afternoon tea.

Pastry:

2 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup (1½ sticks) butter
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
Ice water

Filling:

2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup bleached sultana raisins
½ cup chopped mixed peel
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
Pinch ground cloves
1 egg yolk, beaten with 2 tablespoons heavy cream
Granulated sugar

Sift the flour and salt, and add the ¾ cup butter by rubbing in with the tips of the fingers, leaving rather large lumps. Add lemon rind and enough ice water to make a rather soft dough. Roll out in a long strip and fold into thirds. Make a quarter turn with the pastry, and roll and fold again. Repeat this procedure three more times, turning the dough each time. Chill for 30 minutes. Meanwhile prepare the filling.

Cream the butter and sugar together and add the fruit and spices. Roll the pastry ¼"-½" thick and cut into 12 4" rounds. Place a spoonful of the filling on each round, gather the edges together in the center, and seal with a little water. Place sealed-side down on a buttered baking sheet. Brush with the egg and cream mixture, and sprinkle with sugar. Make two incisions in each crust. Bake in a 350° oven until brown and crisp. Makes 12.

Christmas Wreaths

These are exceedingly festive, but take a good deal of work. When they are decorated, however, and packed in a box—perhaps a clear plastic one—they make an unusual and delightful gift, well worth the trouble.

For each wreath:

1 cup almond paste
1 egg, slightly beaten
Candied cherries
½ pound (approximately) puff paste
1 egg beaten with 2 tablespoons cream
Candied fruits for decoration

There are several good brands of almond paste available that are lightly sweetened. One or two brands have (for me, anyway) too much almond extract in them. Experiment and choose one to your taste. Knead the paste and then combine with the beaten egg. It should not be too soft, so it is best to add the egg a little at a time, until the paste is flexible, but firm enough to be rolled into a sausage shape. Insert several candied cherries in the paste before you roll it.

Roll out the puff paste in a long narrow piece the length of the almond paste roll and wide enough to envelop it. Roll slightly longer to allow some leftover puff paste for decoration. Place the roll of almond paste on the pastry. Cut off the extra length of pastry and reserve. Wet the edges of the pastry with cold water and bring them over the almond roll to meet and slightly overlap. Seal the edges together firmly. Turn the roll over so the sealed seam is underneath, and form into a ring, molding gently. Cut the reserved puff paste into leaf or flower shapes, moisten with cold water, and attach to the wreath.

Place on a buttered baking sheet, brush with the beaten egg and cream, and bake in a 350° oven until nicely browned and puffy. Decorate with candied fruits or with a glaze.

GIFTS IN JARS, POTS, AND MOLDS

Smoked Salmon Hors d'Oeuvres

Here is a delicious spread that will delight anyone who is giving a cocktail party during the holidays. Pack it in small covered crocks attractive enough to be brought out. The contents are fairly perishable and should be so labeled.

1 pound smoked salmon, preferably Nova Scotia
1 medium onion, peeled and thinly sliced
1 tablespoon capers
2 teaspoons chopped fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dill weed
1 cup sour cream or ½ cup sour cream and ½ cup mayonnaise
Freshly ground black pepper
Chopped parsley

Cut the salmon into thin strips and mix with onion, capers, dill, sour cream, and, if you like, mayonnaise. Blend well, spoon into crocks, and top with pepper and chopped parsley. Cover and chill until ready for wrapping and presentation.

Makes approximately 3 8-ounce crocks.

Jambon Persillé

This Burgundian specialty should be prepared with a delicious, mild cured ham. The ham must be tender, but not overcooked or grainy. Use a good country ham or a ready-to-cook ham.

10-12 pound ham
2 quarts chicken broth, reduced and clarified
2 tablespoons plain gelatin (if needed)
Chopped parsley

Cook the ham until very tender. Allow to cool. Combine any accumulated pan broth with a rich chicken broth which has been clarified and skimmed to remove the fat.

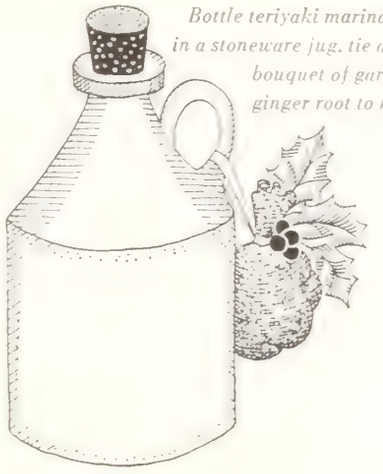
Prepare this recipe in 2 2½-quart round bowls or loaf-shaped molds such as those you use for pâtés and terrines. Test the broth. If it is not stiff enough to make a firm jelly when cold, add 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin for each quart of broth. Rinse molds with cold water and spread with a layer of chopped parsley. Spoon a layer of broth over this, and chill thoroughly. Cut the ham in bite-size pieces. Place in mold, alternating with chopped parsley and spoonfuls of broth. When the mold is filled, weight down; then remove weight, add more parsley, and seal with broth. Chill until set.

A gift of Jambon Persillé should be kept refrigerated until the last possible moment and then delivered by hand. Present it with instructions for serving—it should be cut into thin slices in the mold, or unmolded, and accompanied by tiny cornichons and hot toast.

Shrimp Paste

This is a cream of [illegible] shrimp that can be used as a spread or a [illegible]. It will keep, refrigerated, for several days or a week. Pack it in [illegible] and cover the top with melted butter to prevent [illegible].

1 clove garlic
1 medium onion, peeled and quartered
1 bay leaf
Salt and pepper
2 whole cloves
1 tablespoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup dry white wine
2 pounds shrimp, cleaned, shelled, and deveined
½ pound (1 cup) unsalted butter
½ teaspoon ground mace
½ teaspoon nutmeg
Melted butter



Combine the garlic, onion, seasonings, wine, and enough water to cover the shrimp when they are cooking. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes. Add the shrimp, bring to a boil, and cook for 3-4 minutes. Drain. Chop the shrimp very coarsely. Cream the butter with the scraped onion and mace, and fold in the shrimp. Blend thoroughly and fill small pots or jars with the mixture. Chill. Pour melted butter over the surface of the paste to seal. Cover and refrigerate. Fills about 8 4-ounce jars.

Teriyaki Marinade

Those who enjoy the flavor of soy sauce with broiled or roasted meats and fish will most likely welcome a gift of this delicious marinade. It is not a traditional one, but it has been a standard in my kitchen for several years now. Bottle the marinade in ½-pint or pint jars. You might tie a bunch of fresh garlic, as well as a piece of fresh ginger, to each jar so that the recipient can add them to taste. Wrap the jars beautifully and attach recipes. As an extra touch you might also attach Japanese graters or a pair of cooking chopsticks.

1 quart Japanese soy sauce
1 pint olive oil or peanut oil
1 pint medium-dry sherry
2 teaspoons freshly ground black pepper
Chopped ginger, fresh, candied, or preserved (preferably fresh)
1 teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients, adding ginger to taste (I like to use a full cup). Shake well or blend. Pour into jars or bottles. Teriyaki Marinade can be stored for weeks. Makes about 2½ quarts.

Bottle teriyaki marinade in a stoneware jug, tie a bouquet of garlic and ginger root to handle.

Escoffier Onions

Here is an offbeat, colorful version of onions à la Grecque. The onions should be packed in jars and will keep for a week or so, preferably under refrigeration. They can be used as an hors d'oeuvre, or as a relish with cold or hot meats, or with poultry or game. Label the jars with instructions for storing and using. This recipe makes a fair quantity, so have on hand about 8 8-ounce or 6 12-ounce jars.

5 pounds small white onions
1½ cups olive oil
1½ cups white wine
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon fennel seed or a piece of dried fennel stalk
1½ teaspoons ground coriander
1 teaspoon rosemary
2 cloves garlic
1 lemon, thinly sliced
¼ teaspoon (approximately) saffron
3 tablespoons tomato paste
1 cup white raisins

Blanch the onions in boiling water and let them stand for 10 minutes before peeling. Arrange in a single layer in 1 large or 2 medium skillets. Add oil, wine, and vinegar, and enough water just to cover the onions. Then add salt, pepper, and all other seasonings except the saffron. Cook just below the boiling point over medium heat until the onions begin to be tender. Add saffron, tomato paste, and raisins, and continue cooking until the onions are tender, but still crisp. Remove to sterilized jars. Correct seasoning of the sauce, and pour over the onions. Cool and refrigerate.

Rustic Pâté

Few food gifts will be as welcome as this pâté from your own kitchen—a true Pâté Maison.

2 pounds spinach
1½ pounds pork, (¾ lean), finely ground
1 pound calf's liver or pork liver, ground
1 pound ham ground with 4 cloves garlic
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 teaspoon summer savory
½ teaspoon thyme
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 eggs
½ cup cognac
Bacon or salt pork strips
Bay leaves
Flour and water paste

Wash the spinach well, place it over fairly high heat in a large saucepan with only the water that clings to the leaves, and cover. Cook for 5 minutes after steam begins to rise at the side. Remove, drain, and chop the spinach [illegible]. Allow to drain again while you prepare the rest of the pâté mixture. Combine the ground pork, liver, and ham with the spinach, onion, and seasonings. Break the eggs in the center of this mixture and add cognac. Blend well with the hands. Cook a small amount of the mixture in butter in a skillet and taste for seasoning. Line 2 1-quart terrines with strips of salt pork or bacon and fill with the mixture. Top pâté with one or two additional strips and a bay leaf or two. Cover and seal the rim with a thick paste of flour and water. Bake in a 350° oven for 1½-2 hours. Remove and allow to cool overnight. Take off excess fat. Present pâté in the terrine as it is or topped with aspic and decorated with tarragon leaves or leaves cut from the green leafy tops of leeks.

Curry Dip

This dip for meats, seafood, and vegetables makes a most useful gift for people who entertain frequently and are eager for new ideas. It will keep for two weeks or so, refrigerated, so include this information on the label.

1 large onion, finely chopped
5 tablespoons butter
1 apple, unpeeled, cored, and finely chopped
2 ribs celery, finely chopped
1-2 tablespoons curry powder
Salt
1 cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 tablespoon chutney, finely chopped

Sauté the onion in the butter, add the apple and celery, and cook down for a short time, until the apple is tender. Add curry powder; the sauce should be quite hot. Add salt to taste, blend, and cook for 3 minutes. Add tomato juice and paste, and cook for another 4-5 minutes. Finally stir in the chutney. Makes about 2 cups.

The sauce should be served hot. It is wonderful with such things as tiny meat balls, crab legs, shrimp, scallops, and raw vegetables.

Hard Sauce

There are as many versions of this holiday anointment for plum puddings and hot mince pies as there are cooks. The following is one long-used in my house and often given away to friends, with a plum pudding made the year before and seasoned with brandy during the months between Christmases. You might force the sauce through a pastry tube to make large rosettes in a small pottery or glass container. Decorate with leaves cut from angelica peel and candied cherries.

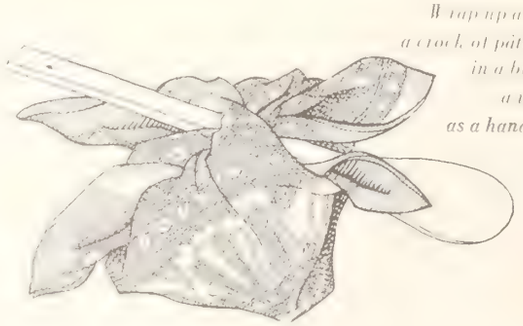
⅔ cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
¼ cup cognac
½ teaspoon salt

Cream the butter well, and add the sugar and cognac gradually. Finally add the salt. Beat the mixture to a creamy consistency. Chill. Makes about 2 cups.

Roquefort Cheese Mix

This mixture keeps well for weeks and can be used as a spread for cocktail tidbits, for a cheese and bread course, with such pies as apple and mince, for stuffing celery and raw mushroom caps, and for snacks. Pack it in jars with fairly tight-fitting lids. Cover with a little cognac-brushed waxed paper before sealing.

½ pound or more butter, to taste
1 pound cream cheese
2 pounds Roquefort cheese (with as much blue vein as possible)
½-1 cup cognac, to taste



Cream the butter with the cream cheese. Crumble the Roquefort cheese and blend thoroughly with the butter-cheese mixture. Beat in the cognac spoonful by spoonful. Finely chopped garlic or Dijon mustard may also be added, to taste. Makes enough to fill 4 8-ounce jars.

Caponata

This delicious Italian savory is wonderful as an hors d'oeuvre or an accompaniment for cold meat or fish. It keeps under refrigeration for several weeks, and it would be wise to offer it in a chilled state, packed in attractive jars, and prominently labeled "perishable."

1 large onion, thinly sliced
1 rib celery, cut into thin julienne strips
½ cup olive oil
2 medium eggplants, unpeeled, cut into thin strips
1½ cups canned Italian plum tomatoes
Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 teaspoon chopped basil
2 tablespoons tomato paste
½ cup capers
½ cup soft Italian or Greek black olives, pitted
1 lemon, thinly sliced
Chopped parsley to taste

Sauté the onion and celery in the oil until just golden and slightly wilted. Add the eggplant strips and toss well with the onion and celery. Sauté gently. Add tomatoes and cook down, uncovered. Be careful that the other vegetables do not overcook and become mushy. Salt and pepper to taste and add chopped garlic and basil. Cook for 10 minutes, then stir in tomato paste. Add capers, olives, and thinly sliced lemon. Cook another 10 minutes. Taste for seasoning. Cool, toss with chopped parsley, and then refrigerate. Makes about 2 quarts.

Wrap up a trio of gifts in one: a crock of pâté tied, bandanna fashion, in a brilliant dish towel, with a wooden spatula to serve as a handle.

Pile up a pyramid of hard-sauce rosettes in a brandy snifter that has been decorated on the inside with gold paper sunbursts and stars.

Lemon Curd or Lemon Cheese

One of the most delicious mixtures imaginable and one that keeps exceptionally well, Lemon Curd makes a welcome gift, especially when packed in pots or jars attractive enough to be used after the contents have been consumed. It makes a wonderful filling for tarts and is perfect on toast. It can also be mixed with whipped cream as a fluffier tart or cake filling.

¼ pound (1 stick) butter
1½ cups sugar
Juice of 3 large juicy lemons
Grated rind of a lemon
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks, beaten with 3 whole eggs

Melt the butter in the top of a double boiler over hot water. Combine with the sugar, lemon juice and rind, salt, and eggs. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture is shiny and thickened. Pour into jars or crocks and cool. Makes about 2 cups.

Uncooked Cranberry Sauce

It goes without saying that cranberry sauce is a winter holiday tradition. Here is a delicious uncooked version that might be offered to embellish fowl or game.

3 cups cranberries
Pinch salt
2 red-skinned apples, cored but unpeeled
1 orange, peeled and quartered (reserve peel)
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup Grand Marnier

Wash the cranberries and grind them with the coarse blade of a grinder along with the salt, cored apples, orange and its peel (be sure to remove any white inner skin adhering to the orange). Combine with sugar and Grand Marnier and blend well. Pack in sterilized jars and store in the refrigerator. Makes 4 ½-pint or 2 pint jars.

Spiced Onions

These onions are delectable for cocktails, for cold suppers, and just for snacks. They can be offered as a gift in any decorative jar that has a fairly secure top. They do not need to be sealed. It is best to prepare them in a crock and transfer them to jars later; or make them in fruit jars and then transfer them to more decorative containers. They can be made as late as two weeks before Christmas.

5 pounds small white onions
Salt
Rock alum
1 pint white wine
1 quart cider vinegar
1 pint white wine vinegar
1½ pounds sugar
1 package pickling spices
2 bay leaves

Peel the onions and cover with water to which you have added 1½ cups salt. Allow to stand for 24 hours. Place a large lump of alum in a crock or large jar, if you are using a single container, or a small lump of alum in each of several small jars. Drain the onions well and put them in the crock or pack into the jars. Combine the wine, the vinegars, and the sugar, and bring to a boil. Add the spices and bay leaves, and boil for 5 minutes. Pour over the onions and cover with a lid. Allow to stand for at least 2 weeks. Makes about 8 pints.

Turn a plump jar into a make-believe onion by stripping sides with white paper, gluing a real white onion on top.

Corned Beef Hash

For a holiday breakfast or lunch, few dishes have the hearty appeal of good hash topped with a poached or fried egg and perhaps a touch of chili sauce or pepper relish. If you indulge in a good corned beef dinner, reserve a large piece or two for making hash for special friends. Pack the hash in plastic containers, and present it along with your favorite recipe. You might like to send a handsome skillet or sauté pan as well.

5 pounds cold lean corned beef (with perhaps a little fat on each side of it)
6 medium potatoes, boiled in their jackets, peeled and chopped
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
Salt, if necessary
1 onion, finely chopped (optional)

Chop the beef coarsely and combine with the chopped potatoes and seasonings. Add the onion, if you like, although I feel this is best added fresh, to taste, just before cooking. (You might send an onion or two along with the gift.) Taste for seasoning and pack in jars or other appropriate containers. Refrigerate until ready to give, and then wrap gaily, with directions for cooking.

Sauce Collioure

This excellent cold sauce is especially good with cold roast beef and cold pork, and it complements crab meat and lobster as well. Pack the finished sauce in jars or small pots with tight lids to be stored in the refrigerator. The sauce will last under refrigeration as long as homemade mayonnaise, with which it is made.

To each cup of homemade olive-oil mayonnaise, add and blend in well:

1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon anchovy purée
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon or 1 teaspoon dried tarragon

Clarified Butter

This extremely simple item will be a welcome staple for friends who bake or sauté a great deal. Properly clarified, butter will keep indefinitely in the freezer. To make a gift of it, pour it into attractive jars or pots and label it with instructions for storage and use.

To clarify: Melt butter gently in a heavy pan over very low heat and siphon off clear liquid butter on top, discarding whitish liquid in the bottom of the pan. Do not let it burn or scorch.

Duxelles

This versatile mixture of mushrooms and butter can be swirled into scrambled eggs or an omelette, or used in sauces and farces in classic French cuisine. It makes a rich filling for crêpes, and is good just heated on toast for an hors d'oeuvre or a hot sandwich. A jar of it should delight any of your friends who take pride in their entertaining. Wrap it gaily and indicate on the label that it should be stored in the refrigerator, where it will keep nicely for several weeks. Although it can also be frozen, it does not hold its quality quite as well. Some versions of duxelles call for shallots or garlic and flour, but for general use, this simple mixture of mushrooms, butter, salt, and pepper is best.

3 pounds mushrooms
½ pound (approximately) sweet butter
Salt, pepper to taste

Wipe the mushrooms with damp paper towels. Do not wash or peel. Chop them exceedingly fine. Melt ¼ pound of butter in a heavy skillet and add the mushrooms. Cook over very low heat, turning from time to time and adding more butter as needed. The mushrooms should darken as the liquid cooks out, leaving only the butter in the pan. At no point should the mushrooms sauté, however. When the mushrooms are quite dehydrated and almost black in color (this should take 1½-2 hours, requiring only an occasional stir), season with salt and pepper to taste. Pack the duxelles in ½-pint jars and refrigerate. Makes 2 cups or more.

SAMPLERS, SPECIALTIES

Sausage Sampler

This hearty and welcome gift may be packed in a basket or hung on a rack, which you can either buy or improvise. Choose 3 or 4 different and outstanding sausages. These should include both dry sausage for slicing and eating as snacks, and sausage for cooking and eating hot. Attach a label to each sausage, identifying its name and use, and how to cook, if necessary. Your selection will depend, of course, on the availability of sausage in your locality and your ability to ferret out the unusual. Some of the types that might be included are: salami of various kinds, cervelat, kielbasy, smoked pork sausage, breakfast sausage, bratwurst, knockwurst, cotechino, pepperoni, and at Christmas time, Swedish potato sausage, if it is available in your neighborhood.

Cheese Sampler

A selection of cheeses makes an ideal gift, especially when you take the trouble to choose and assemble them yourself. There are many attractive cheeseboards and marble slabs available on the market that would make a good base for your gift, and you might like to include a cheese knife as well. Attach the cheeses to the board or marble with clear tape and wrap the arrangement with polyethylene. Do not choose the more perishable cheeses unless you can be certain they will be eaten soon after they are received. Attach a card to the package telling at what temperature each cheese should be served and whether or not it can be used for cooking. Also label the individual cheeses if they are not already marked. Here are two categories of cheese that are not too perishable and are well suited to a packaged gift.

Cheese Tray 1
(the more-or-less firm cheeses)

2-pound piece of Switzerland Gruyère
1½-pound piece of Switzerland Appenzeller
Piece of aged Canadian or Vermont Cheddar
A Canadian Oka, if available, or a piece of Tomme de Savoie

Cheese Tray 2
(goat cheeses)

There are many different types of goat cheese of various sizes and shapes on the market now, many of them known only by their generic name, fromage de chèvre. Some are wrapped in chestnut leaves, some are peppered, some are rolled in dried herbs, and some come packaged in odd-shaped boxes. Assemble a selection of various types and shapes, keeping in mind eye appeal as well as flavor. These keep rather well, so do not hesitate to splurge a bit on them.

Biscuits for Cheese

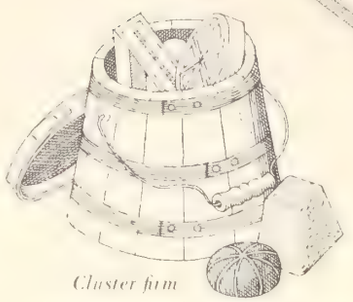
You may want to include a box of biscuits with your cheese gift, or send a selection of good biscuits as a complete gift in itself. Tins of assorted biscuits are available, but if you prefer to create your own assortment, here are two suggestions:

Biscuit Assortment 1

1 tin of Bath Oliver Biscuits
1 box of Cream Crackers
A tin of Water Biscuits
1 box of American Water Crackers
1 box of Triscuits

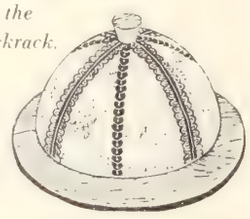
Biscuit Assortment 2

A box of Finn Crisp
1 tin of Water Biscuits
1 box of Wheatmeal Biscuits
A tin of tiny thin Soda Crackers



Pickled Salmon

Pickled salmon can be prepared with salmon steaks or a piece of salmon cut from the center of the fish. Poach the salmon in boiling salted water or in a highly seasoned court bouillon. When it is almost cooled, arrange in a serving dish that will be part of the gift—an inexpensive bowl or a good-looking refrigerator dish with a cover. Add a bay leaf, a few thin slices of lemon, and a little fresh or dehydrated dill. Cover completely with good vinegar, and add a few thinly sliced onion rings. Chill until ready to present. Label with instructions to refrigerate. If properly stored, it will keep for 2-3 weeks.



For shopping information, please turn to page 187.

Set forth a sampler of nuts on a lacquer tray (shelled ones in tiny plastic boxes). Then cover with plastic wrap.

Cluster firm cheeses in a wooden bucket that can serve for both presentation and transportation. For more perishable types, assemble a selection on a cheeseboard with a dome, and stripe the dome with paper braid or rickrack.

Suspend sausages from a wrought-iron pot rack that will be a permanent decorative addition to a kitchen.

Nut Sampler

I hear complaints from time to time that certain types of nuts prescribed for baking are not available in some sections of the country. Find a good source for these scarce varieties, and pack them in jars, or plastic bags on a tray. Attach an instruction card and perhaps some recipes. Here are some of the most sought after:

Pine nuts: for Mexican, French, Italian, and Middle Eastern cookery. Shelled pine nuts can be purchased in bulk at certain Italian or Greek food shops.

Pistachio nuts, shelled: these give color and a pleasant flavor to desserts, cookies, meats, and sauces.

Almonds, sliced: useful in decorating and flavoring many cakes and cookies; also for certain fish and vegetable dishes.

Black walnuts: for cakes, candies, and with certain fried and broiled fish dinners.

Pecan halves, blanched filberts, blanched almonds: for baking and, toasted and salted, for snacks.

Popcorn Balls and Caramel Corn

We often forget how good these two homely items can be when they are well made. In fact, someone recently glamorized caramel corn, put it on the market, and made a fortune. Pack the caramel corn in decorative plastic boxes or tins, and wrap the popcorn balls in colored paper. Tie the packages magnificently.

Popcorn Balls

2 cups sugar
1 cup corn syrup
1 cup (1/4 pound) butter
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
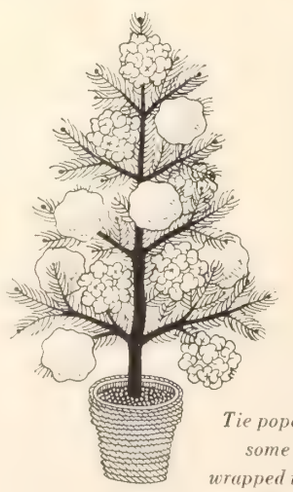
3 gallons popped corn

Combine the sugar, corn syrup, ⅔ cup water, butter, and salt, and cook over medium heat until the syrup reaches the brittle stage—about 270° on the candy thermometer. Add vanilla. Pour syrup over the popped corn and mix well. Then butter your hands and form the popcorn into balls of varying sizes. Cool thoroughly before packing.



This will yield 20-30 balls, depending on their size.

Caramel Corn

1 cup sugar
½ cup corn syrup
2-3 tablespoons dark molasses
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vinegar
2 quarts popcorn

Combine sugar, syrup, molasses, ½ cup water, butter, and vinegar, and cook to 270° on the candy thermometer (brittle stage). Gradually pour this syrup over the corn and shake well to coat it evenly. Pour onto a buttered platter or marble slab. Cool thoroughly before packing.

Note: Caramel corn may be combined with an equal amount of almonds, lightly toasted, or with an equal amount of both coconut chips and almonds or peanuts.

Tie popcorn balls, some plain, some wrapped in colored tissue, to the branches of a tiny tree planted in a yarn-wrapped flowerpot.

spoon of lemon juice. Fill glass with claret and stir.

Port Cobbler

To the ice and sugar add a teaspoon of curaçao and one of orange juice. Fill glass with port and stir.

Spritzer

Refreshing and very pretty to behold, spritzers may be made with nearly any white wine, but Rhines, Moselles, and Alsatians are the types usually used. Over ice cubes in a highball glass or large wineglass, pour 2 jiggers of chilled white wine and fill it with chilled club soda. That's all there is to it.

Bishop

In a highball glass half full of cracked ice put a teaspoon (or less) of sugar and the juice of ½ lemon and ½ orange. Fill with Burgundy or claret, stir, and garnish with a slice of orange. A few dashes of dark rum may also be included, if desired.

Ramos Gin Fizz

In the good old days in the Ramos Brothers bar in New Orleans, the shaker was passed down a line of eight energetic bartenders each of whom shook until he was tired before passing it on. Today the electric blender will do the job in a minute or so. In the blender put 3 ounces of gin, 1 egg white, 1½ ounces of cream, 3 dashes of orange-flower water, the juice of ½ lemon and ½ lime, a teaspoon or less of bar syrup, and ½ cup of cracked ice. Blend at high speed for a minute and strain into a highball glass which has been prepared by frosting the rim with lemon juice and sugar. Finish by squirting a little club soda on top.

Sazerac

Rinse an Old-fashioned glass with Pernod and shake out any excess. Add a couple of ice cubes, 3 dashes of Peychaud's Bitters, and 2 ounces of rye (preferably) or Bourbon. (Peychaud's Bitters, after a brief absence, are once more on the market, and a very good thing it is, since you can't make a proper Sazerac without them.)

Suissesse

There are many formulas for this cheering restorative—here is one of the best. Into the blender put a jigger of Pernod, ½ teaspoon of sugar, an egg white, a teaspoon of light cream, and ½ cup of shaved ice. Blend for about 20 seconds and serve, unstrained, in an Old-fashioned glass.

Morning Glory Fizz

Into a shaker put ½ teaspoon of sugar, the juice of ½ lemon and ½ lime, 1 egg white, an ounce of Pernod, a jigger of Scotch, and crushed ice. Shake vigorously and strain into a chilled highball glass. Fizz up with a siphon of soda water, stirring as you add it, and serve at once. Any kind of a fizz—Silver, Golden, Royal, and so on—will taste good and impart a feeling of well-being.

Fruit Juice Drinks

Various fruit juices have long been used as cures for overindulgence. They are refreshing as is, and are effective masks for the spirits which may be added to them. The Bloody Mary and Screwdriver, now popular drinks at any time of day, were originally designed as pick-me-ups, and very good ones they are. Lemon juice, in the form of Whiskey Sours, is an old standby, and there are devotees of drinks made with grapefruit, pineapple, lime, and even prune juice.

Bloody Mary

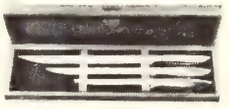
Some mixologists shake them, some even put them in the blender, but most experts like them stirred in the serving glass. Whether you use gin or vodka is a matter of personal preference. Into a highball glass put the juice of ½ lemon, 2 or more dashes of Tabasco (or less, depending upon your taste), a couple of dashes of Worcestershire sauce, a grinding of pepper, a couple of ice cubes. Now add a jigger of gin or vodka, fill with chilled tomato juice, and stir lightly. Sprinkle a little coarse salt on top if the notion appeals.

Screwdriver

Once upon a time this was a shaken cocktail—an Orange Blossom made with vodka. Nowadays, it is generally made this way: put a couple of ice cubes in an Old-fashioned glass, add a jigger of vodka or gin, fill with chilled orange juice, and garnish with a sprig of mint.

Salty Dog

Rub the rim of an Old-fashioned glass with a cut lemon, then spin in salt to frost. Drop in two ice cubes, add a jigger of vodka or gin, and fill with chilled grapefruit juice, being careful not to disturb the frosted rim. Stir slightly to mix.



Aunt Agatha

Put two ice cubes in an Old-fashioned glass and add 2 ounces of light rum. Fill to the top with chilled orange juice, stir, and serve. There are those who like the addition of a dash of bitters to this drink, and it is good. But never use dark rum—the flavor is apt to be a little too assertive.

Perhaps it isn't etiquette, but the edge would be sharp enough. You see, the steel used in handmade Gerber Blades is so hard and tough it is known as the "steel that cuts other steel." That's why it takes such a superior edge and holds it unbelievably long. It makes carving a joy. Blades look like a million. And if worse comes to worse, you can lather up. Buy them at fine stores.

In Cali, memorial to Jorge Isaacs, most important poet of Colombia.

A walk around Lima's streets on a summer morning reveals charming vignettes for the gardener to treasure—a pale gray stucco courtyard brilliant with big cannas and dramatic acanthus; out in suburban San Isidro, a simple recessed entrance planted with fig and pittosporum, loquat and frangipani—and marigolds; a secluded and charming lily pool beside the busy door of the Hotel Crillon, on whose roof terrace I stopped one torrid noon to rest my feet and gluttonize on fresh papaya.

Since even a gardener must eat, note that my favorite dish in Lima, served in the Gran Hotel Simón Bolívar's excellent grill and dining room, was Camarónes fritos à la chef—which means simply fried shrimp with garlic sauce. I liked it so much I had it twice in five days, an aberration I should have been ashamed to enjoy had I not been traveling alone.

The tendency all over the Latin world is for private houses to be turned inward, the outer walls facing blandly the world roundabout, the inner courtyards not only serving as the focus of the house, but containing its life and garden as well. It was enlightening to see the way vines were used visibly in the residential areas around Lima to make the privacy screens more attractive. Would that more building-code-conscious North American towns would allow, even if not encourage, the adornment of residential streets with flowering vines by permitting walls on which to grow them along the property lines. Almost none do here; all do down there.

Cane-cutter's house in Colombia, the doorway framed with tin-can containers of native plants.

Lima is not grand, but it is splendid. I could not manage the trip to ancient Cuzco and resurrected Pisac, all nearly three miles up, or to Machu Picchu, but I was consoled by the thought that, at those altitudes, horticulture was as thin as the atmosphere. And Lima's plazas and parks, while not breathtaking, offer the gardener some simple lessons in balancing foliage textures, fine against coarse, and making use of center malls and empty corners for parks, fountains, and memorial sculpture—all somehow warm and intimate.

From Lima to Santiago is 1,500 miles or so out of the frying pan and over the fire—meaning the Atacama of Chile, a blazing and hauntingly forsaken desert. The Atacama, with the now everpresent Andes off to the left, made the green valleys of mid-Chile a prospect of sudden beauty. For the next fortnight, it was to be green all around me, blue of water and sky at my feet and overhead with, away on the horizon, always snow.

Santiago's first attraction for me —and the last before I finally took wing—was Santa Lucia Hill, a 630-foot-pile of pink rocks in the center of the city, at the heads of Huérfanos, Agustinas, and Moneda. Santa Lucia is actually a public park—a sort of super-folie, and, in addition, the most sentimentally romantic garden within a thousand miles.

The park has a taxiable road halfway up, but if you take your time, it's more fun to walk. I spent the better part of two days wandering around among the paths and walls, the grottoes and waterfalls. Almost every plant genus I saw in all South America (except some of the tropical Brazilian natives) is represented on the grassy slopes, in the chinks of the rocks and steps, beside the walks and ramps that crisscross the mount. Star-shaped beds of succulents (many of our familiar sedums and sempervivums included) surround many of the flowering trees. Wherever there might otherwise be an empty earth pocket, one of the innumerable gardeners has inserted a marigold or a zinnia, an acanthus or a geranium.

When I wearied of scrambling among the pink stone walls and balustrades and terraces and galleries (all, seemingly, created just to become ruins), I could always find a bench from which to view the mountains: in the morning the western Cordillera that bounds Santiago's valley toward the Pacific; in the afternoon, the Andes themselves catching the late sun to the east. Would that my own garden enjoyed a prospect a tenth as majestic.

Getting out of Santiago in February (equivalent to our August) and into Puerto Montt, whence I wanted to push among the Chilean lakes, proved to be like getting to the Kentucky Derby the day before the race without a way to get there or a place to stay. But by saying si whenever a reservation clerk said no, I finally checked into the Perez Rosales—a little prim, but the best hotel in the south. With the aid of an English-speaking German in the Puerto Montt travel bureau, I located a German-speaking Chilean taxi driver who covenanted to drive me wherever I wanted to go at any time during the two following days for $70, U. S. currency.

It is hard to reduce the Chilean lakes to words on paper. Each one was lovelier than the next. Even little Chapo, the southernmost of all (way off in the hills in the general direction of Cape Horn) was haunting and lovely. Mount Calbuco and snowcapped Osorno, two of South America's three live volcanoes, were major highlights as we circumnavigated the green shores of Lake Llanquihue. Beyond, the glowering falls of Petrohue, and then the emerald waters of Todos los Santos (lake of All the Saints) were scarcely less lovely.

We journeyed leisurely through gorges, over cliffs, across moss-grown bridges, past fields (fields, mind you) of wild fuchsias. There were few gardens, as such, partly because there were few houses. But I passed each of my two precious days bemused by the beauty of the lakes, the great meadows, the innumerable eucalyptus trees, and the mountains.

Not the least of the horticultural delights, apart from those fields of fuchsias, was the grace and variety of one special tree that Chileans call the ulmo. It is actually Eucryphia glutinosa (pinnatifolia), and one of the handsomest big evergreens I have ever seen anywhere. It assumes many shapes, from modest to grand (75 feet or so), bears its myriad white roselike flowers all season, and is found all over southern Chile. Discovery of this wondrous species was one of the major highlights of the whole trip.

The ulmo will reach 10 feet in England, I am told; 40 feet in Ireland, the Irish swear. It won't grow outdoors at all in the temperate regions of North America—just temperate South America and Australia. But gardeners in our far South and on the West Coast would do well to try it.

Back north to Santiago, the next day, and thence eastward over the Andes. The plane took me over Aconcagua, at 23,000 feet the highest and wildest peak in the Western Hemisphere, then slid down to the palm-flat pampas.

Buenos Aires is a beautiful city in its beautiful parts, even a little like the Paris it is also supposed to resemble. In its more acceptable districts, it is a city of apartment dwellers. Every apartment has at least one balcony. And every balcony has at least one small tree in a tub and a satellite platoon of potted plants. I saw more balcony and roof gardens in one small corner of Buenos Aires than I can see in all of New York City. More balconies, too. Even the concrete ledges on blank building walls had their hanging gardens.

In Buenos Aires, "balconied" apartment wall, every ledge [illegible] of plants.

A young architect and his wife took me to see some of the old estancias ("spreads" or plantations) and a few of the most charming houses of the old city. Some had fine gardens, some a few great trees, some a monument or two and a patriotic shrine. All had something of the special flavor of the country's past.

I flew in over Rio's crescent beaches and the Sugar Loaf just after dark, the goose pimples breaking out all over me. But I had the best of reasons for enjoying Rio visiting again with Roberto Burle Marx and seeing, for the first time, his home base and local work. Blood kin to the Renaissance men, he is artist, designer, philosopher, inventor, jeweler, artisan all in one. He is also a truly great plantsman, the world's ranking authority, for instance, on such genera as philodendrons (all 300 of them) and heliconias.

In the living room of the Burle Marx sitiu, a tapestry flanked by arrangement of dried grasses, flowers, pods, and fruit.

The imminent inauguration of still another Brazilian president fouled up any hope of cruising Brasilia, the astonishing capital city up on the Planalto that Roberto (everybody knows him as Roberto there) had an important hand in designing and landscaping. So we had to settle for a breathless and harum-scarum evening in Rio.

With other members of his family, I spent a day at the Burle Marx sitiu, where he spends his leisure weekends, raises orchids for the cut-flower market, conducts a nursery that supplies native plants all over Latin America, cooks enormous meals for his friends, and maintains a plant museum to boot. Under huge wattle shades, he grows the most inclusive collection of philodendrons in the world, along with a full roster of marantas, bromeliads, and goodness knows what else. The temperature was hot, even for Rio. To breathe was to sweat profusely. The sitiu is hilly and I was lugging a 20-pound camera case. I could have used those wattle shades myself.

In Brazil, landscape designer Burle Marx uses rock to form natural sculpture at the entrance to his sitiu.

One unforgettable day was devoted to Petrópolis and the Odette Monteiro garden (see page 169). I settled for this one out of many that Burle Marx had done here and in nearby Teresopolis because I knew it was the special pride of Roberto himself. More than most of his other landscapes it illustrates his belief that a country's native plants can be, with careful understanding, the chief glory of even the most private landscape.

More accessible are the public gardens Burle Marx has designed in and around Rio itself—the roof gardens at the Museum of Modern Art; the waterfront Enseada de Botafogo, which is notable for its management of that all-important landscape element, scale; and his pioneer designs for the Ministry of Education in downtown Rio.

My last pleasure in Rio was visiting the fabulous jewelry shop run by Haraldo Burle Marx, Roberto's brother, where you can buy (at fat prices) gold and carved stone pieces designed and made by both the proprietor and Roberto himself. That was where I did my only important shopping—a lovely abstract carving of an aquamarine set in a plain gold band. Abstract or not, it had a plantlike look, which is probably why I bought it.

Pebble garden alternating with tropical planting in courtyard of Museum of Modern Art in Rio.

Finally, dribble-dribble through tunnels and traffic to the huge ill-smelling airport, and zip-zip, back to New York. It was 101 degrees in Rio when I left, 90 that midnight at Lima, where Braniff always stops when it has half a chance; exactly 12 at Kennedy when my wife met me the next morning. With such rude awakenings are the best of excursions climaxed.

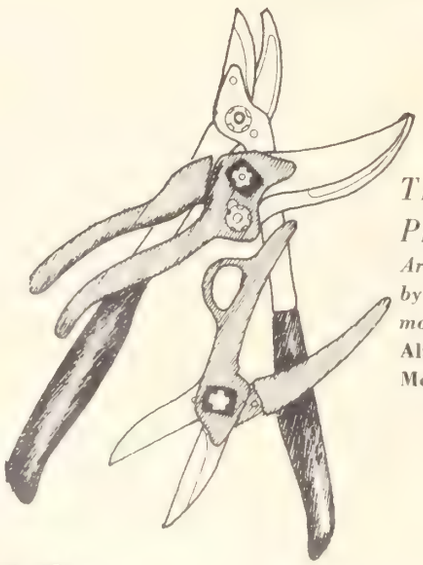
What one true gardener can give another for

THE TWELVE DAYS OF CHRISTMAS



ONE FERN-LEAF BEECH

In aristocrat among aristocrats, Fagus sylvatica heterophylla, is a form of the European species. Slow growing, it reaches a height and spread of 75 feet. A balled and burlapped specimen about 8 feet tall costs around $125.
Alternate: One bale of salt marsh hay, about $6.

TWO WATERING POTS

The choice is wide. The imported Haws is of tough plastic, holds 6 quarts, costs under $9. The long-spout Schneider, galvanized, is used by most professionals, comes in various sizes and costs from $8 up.
Alternate: Two garden baskets, $2 to $50.

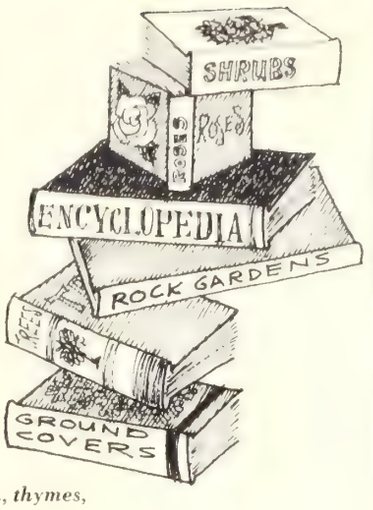
THREE PRUNING SHEARS

Archetype of fine secateurs, these current models are by Wilkinson Sword. Floral snipper, about $9. Standard model, about $15. Long handle "ladies" model, about $11.
Alternate: Three moss rosebushes—say, 'Salet,' 'Jeanne de Montfort,' 'Gloire des Mousseux.' About $3 each.

FOUR FRUIT TREES

Dwarf apple, pear, peach, and plum. Will fruit two or three years after planting from Malling IX stocks. Around $6 each.
Alternate: A quartet of iron outdoor ashtrays.

FIVE HANDSOME ROCKS



Unless you are very sure of your recipient, and are willing to choose rocks that have real merit for a specific use, don't try this. But when all conditions are right, they are as welcome as a diamond bracelet. Cost: up to 50¢ a pound.
Alternate: Five good hand tools, say $15 worth.

SIX AMARYLLIS BULBS

Get them right this minute—pink, white, red, or combinations including stripes. Can be planted now, will flower in a month to six weeks. From $2 to $8 each.

Alternate: Kit of six low-voltage lights, with transformer. From about $50 to $100.

SEVEN GARDEN BOOKS

Make your choice from the basic garden library in November H&G, bearing in mind the special interests of your recipient.

Alternate: Seven flower prints from a second-hand book and print shop. From 10c to $5 each. Or buy a reproduction of Redouté's "Roses," frame the pages. Under $4.

EIGHT ROCK PLANTS

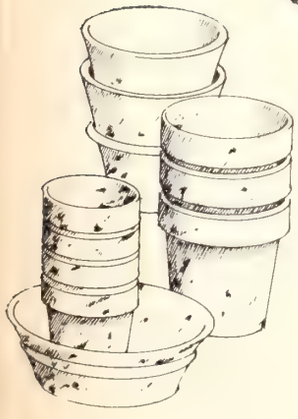
Campanulas, carpatica, and muralis, chrysoganum, thymes, alyssum, cymbalaria, erica, saxifrage, say. (Or choose your own.) To be delivered in spring. Up to $8 or $10 from a rock specialist.

Alternate: Eight 6-foot redwood stakes, about $1 each.

NINE PLANTS FOR HANGING BASKETS

Enough for three summer baskets of three each, in 3-inch pots: begonias, geraniums (pelargoniums), fuchsias. Can be bought now, kept on window sill till spring. Around $10 to $15.

Alternate: Nine smooth stepping stones, about 90c a square foot.



TEN HERBS

You pick them—seed packets, now, of things like parsley, chives, borage, and dill, or plants, later, of any of those, plus rosemary, basil, sage, and thyme.

Alternate: Ten new tulips, $1 to $3.

ELEVEN FLOWERPOTS

Plain red clay, straight or curved. An assortment, say, of four 4-inch, three 6-inch, and three odd sizes, about $5. And an old Italian shallow pot.

Alternate: Eleven peach baskets to protect winter roses. From your grocer, 0 to 25c.

TWELVE SEED PACKETS

You name them; your true love grows them. There is no better gift than a packet of good seeds—let alone a dozen. Include the fine new petunias and marigolds. Cost: $2 to $5.

There is no alternate for flower seed packets.

still wasn't getting anywhere when I happened to hear, through the Christmas Crib Association of Italy, about Signora Marisa Piccoli Catello of Naples, whose family had been collecting Christmas figures for over 300 years."

"She spoke no English, but I could speak just enough Italian to implore her to part with some of her collection. She was most reluctant, but finally she said we could buy twenty-two pieces. We worked for days figuring out which ones. I really think the ones we settled on are exquisite."

The figures range from 12 to 18 inches high. They are made of wood with hands and faces delicately carved in the manner associated with Italian baroque craftsmen. All are richly clothed and the wise men-kings are riding muscular non-Palestinian looking horses rather than camels.

Discussing the setting he designed for them, Donald Oenslager says, "It's taken almost as much work as a play, because I'd never done a crèche before. But I've had a marvelous time with it. Because the figures are eighteenth century, I'm making the frame as much like the baroque theatre of that time as possible. The backdrop is dark blue velvet studded with stars and angels, and the whole effect is blue and ivory and gold."

Along with designer Richard Cafler, who is carving the bases for the figures and the molding for the proscenium, Mr. Oenslager will come to Washington to install the lighting when the crèche is set up on December 13. For both designers it will be a labor of love.

This year the big White House Christmas tree will be decorated, as it was last year, in Early American style, with 960 little "bee" lights and 3,000 small ornaments, including nuts, real popcorn and cranberry chains, candied fruit, wood roses from Hawaii, straw stars, toy soldiers, drums, pine cones, petticoat lace, geranium bunches, and gingerbread cookies in the form of Santa Claus, snowmen, camels, teddy bears, and milkmaids. The cookies are baked by Vera Reis of New York, and are so tempting that after last year's party for underprivileged children, one gingerbread man was discovered with his leg nibbled off.

Decorating the tree takes at least two full days, and is always done over a weekend when the house is closed to tourists. Dan Arje, head of display for Bonwit Teller, who also volunteers his services, comes down from New York with a staff, and under the guidance of Bess Abell, Mrs. Johnson's incredibly efficient social secretary, the trimming proceeds.

While that is going on, the White House mantelpieces are covered with holly and other greens, and mistletoe is hung in all the doorways. Felt symbols of "The Twelve Days of Christmas," made last year at the First Lady's special request, decorate the large mirror of the north hallway. They are arranged in a tall tree-shaped triangle—the "Partridge in a Pear Tree" at the top, the "Twelve Drummers Drumming" at the base. For the family's private enjoyment, a smaller long-needle pine tree trimmed with popcorn chains, cranberry garlands, and small ceramic figures is set up on the second floor.

Every year, there are several children's parties, including one for diplomatic offspring to which even the toddlers come in native dress. There are also receptions for the distaff members of the press and for the White House staff. "The Christmas decorating is done so exquisitely here," says Mrs. Johnson, "that I try to fill the house with the people who would enjoy it."

She keeps her own Christmas decorations down at the ranch, where the family has celebrated every Christmas since 1952. (Not since the Eisenhowers has the first family spent a Christmas at the White House.)

"One of the great joys of Christmas to me is bringing out the treasured old things seasoned with warmth, like the stockings an old-time Texas friend embroidered for us when Luci was a year old. Here at the White House Christmas is more impersonal, but I enjoy the perfection of it in a different way."

How the First Lady will get through Lynda Bird's big wedding early in December, Christmas entertaining at the White House, then family Christmas in Texas, all with her traditional equanimity is hard to imagine. But she is a very strong person, with a broad romantic and sentimental streak, so she will undoubtedly carry the whole thing off with the unruffled charm and unfailing taste which are her great gifts to the American public.

CRYSTAL AND LIGHT continued from page 133

THE FOUNTAIN CENTERPIECE owes much of its splendor to the Fiber-Lite—a 6-foot ponytail of optic filaments attached to a metal light box about 8 inches long, 5 inches wide. (See it unadorned—a Christmas tree of pure light—on page 127.) Inside the box, cooled by a tiny fan, is a high-intensity bulb that, like a movie projector, forces light through the filaments. Hair-like, the ponytail can be trimmed into various lengths with a scissors; wherever each filament is cut, a bead forms at its tip and glows like a tiny star. To make the fountain, cut a wedge out of the Styrofoam base large enough to hold the light box, then insert a strong, 36-inch dowel at dead center and train the ponytail up the dowel, tying it in three places. The top will fall in a cascade which you can clip into varying lengths. Finish your bouquet as described on page 133 and then plug the Fiber-Lite's extension cord into any standard wall socket.

Fiber-Lite ponytail with its light box. Filaments conduct light, can be cut to varied lengths to form a "fountain."

entire spectrum of gastronomic pleasure.

The Complete Book of Mexican Cooking by Elisabeth Lambert Ortiz. (M. Evans and Co., $7.95.) Readers whose appetites were whetted by H&G's Mexican Cook Book (September, 1965) will be delighted with its author's full-length and definitive piece of research on a rich, unique, and little-understood cuisine. Not only a valuable cook book, but an entertaining account of Mrs. Ortiz' doggedness in tracking down and testing the authentic recipes.

The Other Half of the Egg by Helen McCully, Jacques Pépin, and William North Jayme. (M. Barrows & Co., $5.95.) This compilation of delicious, varied recipes should find a permanent place in any cook's library—with real imagination and flair it solves the eternal problem of what to do with spare egg white and yolks.

The Ballet Cook Book by Tanaquil LeClerq. (Stein and Day, $9.95 pre-Christmas; $12.50 thereafter.) The noted prima ballerina has gathered the favorite recipes of over ninety internationally famous personalities of the dance world, interspersed them with delightful reminiscences and anecdotes about the dancers, and illustrated her book with photographs of each celebrity in action. All in all, a delight to read or browse through, and the recipes, from simple sandwiches to complicated gourmet treats, are clearly presented.

We asked H&G's Food and Beverage Consultant, James Beard, to appraise the books for wine lovers (a rapidly growing group in the U.S.). His conclusions:

Once in a while books come along that keep one entranced with a fresh approach to the subject. Three such have recently been published. The first is Wine by Hugh Johnson (Simon and Schuster, $10). Mr. Johnson has an astonishing knowledge of his subject and has had the good fortune to travel the wine country of Europe and America in the company of knowledgeable people of the districts. In organization, the book is divided simply into the whites and the reds, rather than by the regions of origin. Filled with information and well written, it should take its place on the shelves with the best of wine literature.

A second delightful book is Harry Waugh's Bacchus on the Wing (S. Straker & Sons Ltd., $5.50. Available at the British Book Centre, 122 E. 55th Street, New York, N. Y., 10022). Less a reference book than a diary of travels in the wine countries, Mr. Waugh, one of the directors of Château Latour, is well informed and his book contains pertinent critiques of wine, along with the lore of the various wine districts of France, Italy, and Germany.

The third book is Wines of the World edited by André L. Simon (McGraw-Hill, $14.95 until January 1, $20 thereafter). Mr. Simon's treatise on French wines will remain a classic, and he also provides an amusing and thoroughly non-partisan section on the wines of North Africa. The essay on Spanish wines is highly informative. The volume is weakest on the wines of the U. S. and Germany. But by and large this is a good reference volume with superb pictures, a generally entertaining text, a glossary, maps, and bibliography.

This repetition of the same brown and black color scheme throughout the house is startling at first, but effective. The rooms seem to wrap around one like dark wings. In both the living room and sitting room, walls are covered with a thin layer of cork over paper; dining room walls are medium brown glazed with much darker brown. Floors are stained nearly black. Against this monotone background, a variety of textures—leathers, cane, a shaggy rug, a zebra skin, reflecting surfaces of mirrors, cut glass, varnished wood—stand out richly.

Albee: There's another reason for the browns and black: a lot of people have paintings against white walls, but I find that dark walls are a much better background for paintings. Also for flowers. And people show up better against them, too. Lighting should be in the same mood. Bright enough so people can see each other, of course, but not glaring. Subdued light, warm light. Picture lights give good light.

Visitor: How long have you been collecting art?

Albee: I don't think of it as collecting at all. It's simply surrounding myself with the things I like. My family used to have paintings so I've always had art around. Once I was able to afford them myself, it seemed only natural to have my own. I started with some Picasso drawings because of course they were a good deal cheaper than other things. I don't know when I'll stop. It hasn't really become an obsession yet, although I may be kidding myself—it may have already become one.

Paintings and drawings—by, among others, Franz Kline, Chagall, Miró, Milton Avery, Picasso, Juan Gris, Pavel Tchelitchew, Leonard Baskin—fill every room, even the halls. On tables and desk tops everywhere are more treasures—sculptures by Henry Moore, by Zorach, a carved monkey from Italy, an ostrich egg, a Greco-Roman head, shells, a Persian bowl, Chinese vases and boxes, as well as many fat, glossy art books.

Albee: My interest in Chinese art is something recent. Most of the Chinese objects in the house I picked up right here in New York. I usually bring back a lot of art objects when I go to Europe, too.

Visitor: How does your city house and life differ from your house and life out at Montauk?

Albee: I stay out in Montauk for about five months in the summer to do most of my writing. In the country, I get up around five in the morning and go to bed around ten. As the years go by, I get up earlier and earlier. In the city, it's a different schedule—usually eight to midnight or one in the morning. The country house is a daytime house, quite the opposite to this one. Lots of glass and mirrored walls to reflect the outdoors. You can't tell when you're inside and when you're outside. I use a lot of brown out there, too (chuckling) although it does go to lighter browns and beige. But, again, a good background for people and things.

Visitor: Do you entertain much here in the city?

Albee: Occasionally. I don't like large parties. About the only large party I give as a rule is on Christmas Day. Maybe about forty or fifty people over around noon for champagne and piroshki and caviar before they go off to their Christmas dinners. But ordinarily I don't like to entertain for more than six or eight. Sometimes I have a dinner party for six and then ask another six or eight over after dinner. Small groups are much nicer. I cook rather well and can manage on my own for six or so unless it's going to be a terribly formal sit-down dinner party. I always arrange the flowers for the house myself. And I like to have a rather formal, beautiful, glittering table. That's easy to do, though. All you have to do is keep everything clean and put it all in the right place. (Pause) I used to have a marvelous English housekeeper, but she went mad.

It is almost dark outside the house by now and the street lamps are on. Albee goes over to the living room window and closes the curtains. The room folds in upon itself; the light from lamps and picture lights grows richer. Colors glow, deepen, start their slow, nighttime burn. Woods gleam, treasures glimmer. Like an owl, somnolent during the day, the house is coming alive with the night.
